FOREWORD

NOW and again some relatively small knot in the wide fabric of human affairs gathers into itself a surprising number of diverse strands out of the long historical patterns and holds them still for us to look at and to marvel. Such a "knot" is this modest venture in bibliography. Here in these pages one may trace a history of the art of printing in America, or a development of American industry. One sees the long roll of American scholars engaged in most meticulous study of ancient languages and the art of translating them. The movement of American life may be traced from the colonies on the Atlantic seaboard to its western shores. Here there is documented a small but important aspect both of commercial enterprise and of benevolent initiative. More than all these, one may trace the power of religion and a great religious book to mold the life and ideas of a nation as it rose from small beginnings to greatness.

In considering the problem of the selection of entries from among Scriptures published in the United States to be entered in the anticipated revision of the first volume of "Darlow and Moule," * the Library of the American Bible Society adopted the writer's suggestion of preparing (primarily for local reference) a loose-leaf bibliographical catalogue. Upon this basis the skilled and accurate labors of Miss Dagny Hansen drew together the considerable material in the Society's library, the entries in O'Callaghan, Editions of the Bible; Evans, American Bibliography 1639–1800; Simms, The Bible in America; Wright, Early Bibles in America; and Pope, English Versions of the Bible; and the records of the Library of Congress's Union Catalog. The considerably more than five-foot shelf resulting has been enlarged and elaborated by Mr Robert D. Allenson, and all has been overseen and re-edited by the exceptional experience of Miss Margaret T. Hills, M.A., the Society's Librarian.

* Historical Catalogue of the Printed Editions of Holy Scripture in the Library of The British and Foreign Bible Society, compiled by T. H. Darlow, M.A. and H. F. Moule, M.A., London 1903.

Discovering that the result was of keen interest to other libraries and librarians, the possibility of publication was raised. Here, the Bible Society turned to its fellow-citizen of New York, The New York Public Library. The present collaboration in publication has resulted. This is particularly appropriate because The New York Public Library was for many years the caretaker of the Society's collection while the latter occupied a building not adequately fireproof. For this counsel and collaboration the Society wishes to thank in particular Dr David V. Erdman and, for much professional editorial skill, Mrs Elin Wolfe.

INTRODUCTION

AS DR NORTH has stated in his Foreword this bibliography began as a working basis for the selection of matter to be added in a new edition of the Darlow and Moule Historical Catalogue of the Printed Editions of Holy Scripture in the Library of the British and Foreign Bible Society. As it grew in bulk and scope, it seemed more worthy of elaboration and publication. The work could have been done quite differently if we had had in mind the publication of this material in its present form.

The bibliography is based on the American Bible Society's collection of American printings of the Scriptures in English, checked against similar holdings in The New York Public Library and a microfilm (secured in 1956) of the English Bible section of the Library of Congress Union Catalog of Bibles. These entries were further checked against E. B. O'Callaghan's A List of Editions of the Holy Scriptures . . . Printed in America previous to 1860, John Wright's Early Bibles of America, P. Marion Simms's The Bible in America, and Hugh Pope's English Versions of the Bible (Revised and Amplified by Rev Sebastian Bullough). In each entry the copy described is either one owned by the American Bible Society (NNAB) or, lacking that, a New York Public Library copy (NN). Descriptions of books in neither of these collections were often obtained by correspondence, although Robert Allenson also examined personally a good many volumes at the American Antiquarian Society, Yale, Harvard, and several libraries in Philadelphia. All the items in Part I and many in Part II were either examined personally or checked by correspondence. Other items in Part II were taken directly from the Union Catalog microfilm. Efforts were made to locate some items in Part I through writing to libraries and historical societies. Where no location could be found for a copy listed in O'Callaghan or Wright, the page reference to that source is given. We have relied heavily on O'Callaghan and Wright for much valuable information incorporated into descriptions of items, and it seems appropriate that this new bibliography should appear exactly a century after the publication of Dr O'Callaghan's most valuable work.

We have included in this work only Scriptures in English but hope that a similar publication covering editions in other languages may eventually be prepared.

It sometimes happened that an entry ascribed in the Union Catalog to a particular library could not be located, in which case the symbol was removed from the entry or a note added.

ARRANGEMENT is chronological by year. Within each year Bibles are given first, by size (largest to smallest), then Old Testaments and Old Testament parts, then New Testaments and New Testament parts. In general only complete Bibles or Testaments are listed. When a new translation appeared in parts, however, the separate parts have usually been listed as issued, although in some cases the later parts have been listed under the first entry. Undated books have not been included without some evidence for ascribing a possible date. Books issued over several years have been entered under their earliest date, the entry date usually being that of the main title, and the second date, where differing from the main title, that of the New Testament (e. g. 1782/81). Books issued in volumes are entered under the date of the earliest volume.

TITLES as given do not reproduce exactly the type style, line breaks, punctuation, or capitalizations of the title-pages except for a few such important books as the first New Testament and the first Bible printed in America (Nos 1 and 11). The name of the publisher is always given before the place of publication and is preceded by the name of the printer or plate maker. Square brackets enclosing a name indicate that it appears not on the title-page but on its verso.

PAGINATION is usually given in totals, though for some important editions a summarized collational formula is given. In a formula such as "(10) (1276) 1277–1310 (89)" (No 30) the first sum within parentheses represents the number of pages containing preliminary matter, the second the number containing Old and New Testaments with intervening matter; the page numbers in series indicate a group of paginated additional matter (pages 1277–1310 Index and Tables); the third sum the number of pages containing another unpaginated or separately paginated group (89-page Concordance). When the sum is one, it is enclosed in square brackets if that page is unnumbered, thus [1]. When totals are given simply as "555 p" they signify pagination from page 1; parentheses "(555 p)" mean total pages of text not beginning on page 1. The statement "Reported as 555 p" is used for books not directly examined.

Where a book is indicated as a reprint of an earlier entry, pagination is not repeated.

MEASUREMENT in Part I (usually taken from page 3 of the text) covers the type page, including marginal material, folios, etc, and is given in millimetres. It is recognized that such measurement for books of this period may for various reasons not always be dependable. In Part II the measurement is of the height of the spine, in centimetres.

Where measurements could not be obtained, as for unlocated items in O'Callaghan, the listed size is given — e. g. "12mo."

LOCATION of copies is indicated by the symbols in the Eighth Edition Revised of Symbols used in the National Union Catalog of the Library of Congress. A table of the symbols with identification appears on p xxix.

In some cases we have included descriptions of privately owned copies or of copies found only in a publisher's office collection. Inquiries about these should be addressed to the American Bible Society.

VERSIONS: Unless otherwise indicated the text is that of the King James or Authorized Version, first published in 1611. No history of this version is given here nor of the Rheims-Douay Version of 1582–1609/10, as both these standard versions and their histories are well known. Nor is mention made of the revision of the Rheims-Douay text by Dr Challoner in the middle of the eighteenth century. For identification of such editions up through 1860 we have depended on Father Parsons' study, "First American Editions of Catholic Bibles." The reader is referred to Pope's English Versions of the Bible for much interesting and valuable information on Roman Catholic editions. For other translations or revisions we have attempted to give details as to the translator or translators and the background, purpose, and scope of the work.

DESCRIPTIONS: After version or edition identification (if not AV text), comes first a descriptive list of the make-up, contents, and arrangement of the text if it is not in normal double-column, verse-paragraph form. This is followed by any additional information.

APOCRYPHA: If the word Apocrypha appears in the title, its inclusion is not always given in the description of a King James Bible. The pagination is usually separate and stands out where full pagination is given. This material was very often included in quarto and folio Bibles through the first half of the nineteenth century but appears less and less in recent editions and in general is not included today. Exceptions are specifically indicated.

REPRINTS: In the case of frequently reprinted editions from the same plates or series of plates, we have listed later printings under the first entry (see Scott's Bible, 1827 No 583; Family Expositor, 1833 No 837). In Part I we have included all the reported printings of American Bible Society editions, but in Part II we have listed only new formats, recording in some instances the number of copies that have been printed from some of the more popular forms during the life of the plates or the series of related plates.

ILLUSTRATIONS: We have not been very systematic in dealing with illustrations. We were interested in Alexander Anderson and a few other American artists, who are listed in the general index, but have made no attempt to list all the artists, engravers, etc whose works appear in the books described.

INDICES: The following indices have been provided to enable the user of the bibliography to find various kinds of material:

Geographical Index: Publishers listed by towns, the towns being grouped by states.

Index of Publishers and Printers: A list of firms and individuals with the reference numbers of related items. Figures in parentheses refer to instances in which a printer or firm is referred to in relation to a publication which does not bear his name.

Index of Translations and of Translators and Revisers: A list of translations and versions, and a list of individuals who have revised or translated afresh the actual text. This may involve simply changes in English wording or different readings or renderings of the basic Hebrew or Greek texts.

Index of Editors and Commentators: A list of people who have added introductions, concordances, dictionaries, notes, and other material supplemental to the Bible text.

Index of Edition Titles, such as the Dartmouth and Polyglott Bibles.

General Index: Lists artists, individuals, first appearances of special items such as the 1611 "The Translators to the Reader," and various other points of information.

We have not included in the indices all the editions with Canne's marginal references, Brown's or Cruden's Concordance, William Stone's plan for Reading the Bible through in a year, or other often-reprinted supplementary matter, though there is usually a note at the first appearance of such matter.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS: In addition to the words of Dr North, it is fitting here to repeat recognition for the contribution of Miss Dagny Hansen in the original spade work on this project, including days spent in the Annex of The New York Public Library amid the unavoidable dust from thousands of aging leather-bound Scriptures, stultifying hours examining the DLC Union Catalog microfilm, and organizing a welter of material. Robert D. Allenson spent only four months on the project but his knowledge of and interest in the field were invaluable. Miss Kathleen M. Davidson of the American Bible Society staff has been a constant help in all phases of the work.

We are also greatly indebted to many patient librarians who have answered our many specific inquiries, to name only a few, the staff of the Alderman Library, University of Virginia; Miss Elizabeth Hughey of the Methodist Publishing House, Nashville; Mr Yeatman Anderson III of the Public Library of Cincinnati and Hamilton County; Miss Dorothy C. Barck, New York State Historical Society, Cooperstown; Mr Robert H. Haynes, Harvard; and the long-suffering staff of The New York Public Library. Miss Marjorie Peabody of Brattleboro supplied helpful material on the Holbrook & Fessenden firm; Miss Mary C. Urquhart of the Canadian Bible Society has given material on Canadiana.

It was Mrs Elin Wolfe who devoted meticulous editorial care to the preparation of our manuscript for publication. David H. Stam has shared the proofreading chore. To the Library's skilled compositor, Paul A. Arbucho, the Composing Room, and the Press Room, we are deeply indebted for the care, accuracy, and patience with which this material has been set and printed.

But we pay special tribute to the Reverend Eric M. North, D.D., long a General Secretary of the American Bible Society and now Consultant, who originally proposed the project and whose wise guidance and encouragement at every step have been invaluable.

As to myself, I accept responsibility for all the errors and inadequacy of the work. I have been over it many times in various stages, always finding something that I would like to add or reword and too often finding something to correct. Corrections, omissions, and amplifications will always be welcome.

THE ENGLISH BIBLE IN AMERICA

ENGLISH BIBLES came to America with many of the settlers at Jamestown and Plymouth and for many years thereafter they came with arriving colonists as cherished treasures from home and as sustaining supplies for a new life. Fires and other disasters inevitably related to frontier life as well as the needs of expanding families created demands for new Bibles among people whose life was traditionally Bible-oriented. The ships were small and the ocean wide in those days, but Bibles from England and Holland were often listed in the goods advertised in local newspapers as "just arrived" along with textiles and household necessities. Among other locally developing industries were printing and book making, but even a New Testament, to say nothing of a whole Bible, required a great deal of type, skilled labor, and paper, all scarce items. A very real obstacle was the Crown monopoly restricting the publication of the King James Bible to the King's printers.

William Bradford, the pioneer printer of Philadelphia and New York, late in the seventeenth century had issued a prospectus for an annotated Bible to cost 20 shillings (half to be paid in silver and half in produce). A few years later Cotton Mather sought subscriptions to finance his Biblia Americana, an annotated edition on which he had worked for years, but was unable to find a publisher either in America or England. (John Eliot's Massachusetts Indian Bible and Christopher Saur's German Bibles belong to another story.)

Sole witness for the first English Bible printed in America is Isaiah Thomas. When he was six years old he went to work for a Boston printer, Zechariah Fowle, to whom he was apprenticed a year later. While he was learning to set type he heard compositors talking about a Bible and New Testament on which they had previously worked. When, after half a century in the business, Thomas wrote his History of Printing in America, he told of a New Testament printed in Boston by Gamaliel Rogers and Daniel Fowle (brother of Zechariah), and also of a Bible printed by Kneeland and Green. He stated specifically that of a 12mo New Testament 2,000 copies were printed and of a Quarto Bible 700 to 800. Funds seem to have been supplied by a relative of Governor Hancock, Daniel Henchman, who was then interested in several publishing ventures. From the known dates of the two partnerships the New Testament must have been printed about 1749 and the Bible before 1752. Thomas, however, says the Bible was printed with the London imprint of Mark Baskett, whose dated imprint does not appear before 1761 although the Baskett family was printing Bibles from 1713 through 1769. When writing his book Thomas did not know of the location of any copies of either the Bible or Testament but said that Governor Hancock had owned one of the Bibles. Hancock's library seems to have been destroyed by fire, and no copies of either book have since been successfully identified. Presumably a volume printed in Boston with a London imprint could be distinguished from an actual London product by, as Thomas says, "the niceties of typography."

It is true that Isaiah Thomas was a very young boy when he heard the compositors' tale; yet Clifford K. Shipton, who has written a most interesting book on Thomas, says that he "was a marvelously accurate reporter; whenever I doubted him, I was proved wrong." Thomas may easily have got the first name of the imprint wrong. But who can say whether the Boston Baskett Bible is really fact or fiction?

The Massachusetts Gazette for 7 December 1770 carried an advertisement by John Fleeming of Boston for "The First Bible ever printed in America," in two folio volumes, with annotations, etc by the Rev Samuel Clark, to be printed from new type. Mr John Alden of the Boston Public Library tells us that in the Massachusetts Historical Society there is a four-page sheet with a sample of the text. This is not recorded in Evans or in Ford's Massachusetts Broadsides, but it is quoted in O'Callaghan (p xvii, 27). Printing was to begin as soon as 300 copies had been subscribed for, but the required subscriptions did not come in and the work was not begun.*

With the opening of the war with England the colonies were cut off from supplies of Scriptures from England, although some came in from Holland. The importance of English Bibles to the leaders of the country is evident in the concern of the Continental Congress, which voted on 11 September 1777 (by a majority of one) to import at government expense 20,000 Bibles from Holland. Without waiting for our struggling government to take this proposal from the shelf, several American printers undertook to provide Testaments printed in Philadelphia, Trenton, Boston, and Wilmington. Even these small books, in view of the scarcity and poor quality of paper and ink, were ambitious undertakings. It was not until toward the end of the war that the printer to the Congress, Robert Aitken, undertook a whole Bible. (See 1782/81 Bible, No 11.)

* Our account of these early publications is given only as background for our present work. For detailed studies the reader is referred to O'Callaghan, to Rumball-Petre's America's First Bibles, and to the following: Clifford K. Shipton, Isaiah Thomas (Rochester, Leo Hart 1948); Isaiah Thomas, The History of Printing in America (2d ed Albany 1874); Charles L. Nichols, The Boston Edition of the Baskett Bible (Worcester, American Antiquarian Society 1927); and Harry M. Lydenberg. "The problem of the Pre-1776 American Bible," Papers of the Bibliographical Society of America XLVIII (1952) 183–194 (an excellent summary).

After the Revolution American printers felt no compunction to heed the British monopoly of the printing of the King James Bible, although there was hesitancy about including the flowery seventeenth-century dedication to King James (first included in 1809 Bible, No 168). In 1791 Isaiah Thomas, now 42 years old, an experienced printer and business man, and in some sense a scholar in spite of complete lack of formal schooling, went into the Bible business extensively with folios, quartos, and smaller books, frequently reprinted from standing type (Nos 29 and ff). Also in 1791 Isaac Collins, a Quaker, began in Trenton a series carried on by his sons in New York. Both Thomas and the Collins family were particularly concerned for the accuracy of the Bible text, getting the best Bibles from England for copy and employing clergymen to read proof. They also provided introductions which they felt more appropriate to American use than the old Dedication to King James.

One of the most interesting of the early Bible printers was the Irish political refugee, Mathew Carey, who in 1790 printed the first American Douay Bible, but who ten years later went into publication of King James Bibles, of which he issued thousands during the following fifteen years. He specialized in quarto Bibles on several grades of paper, with varying kinds of maps and illustrations, and with or without the Apocrypha, a Concordance, and/or the Metrical Psalms (these particularly for Scotch Presbyterians). All of these men and their successors in the early nineteenth century were ambitious printers and good business men who had "on their lists" many other books, and were also concerned about economical methods of printing. Hugh Gaine (1792 Bible, No 40) imported type set in Scotland and shipped tied up in pages.

The invention of stereotyping (see 1812 Bible, No 213) begins a story that has not yet been fully told, particularly as it relates to the circulation of stereotype plates among New England and New York state printers during the early nineteenth century. O'Callaghan has some information on this, but to carry it further would require minute examination of hundreds of editions in addition to those represented in the Bible Society's own large collection. The Rev Wilfrid Parsons, S.J., covers early Roman Catholic editions in his "First American Editions of Catholic Bibles" (Historical Records and Studies, Vol xxvii). Many of the editions of the Phinney firm have similar pagination but have been reset page for page and often nearly line for line, and Bibles with other imprints are closely related to these. The plates used by most of the printers and publishers before 1860 were stereotyped by only two or three firms. The same paginations occur even well into the later decades of the nineteenth century. The Phinney and Holbrook and Fessenden firms were developed by enterprising frontier publishers. John Holbrook was a capable business man who had done well for himself in several lines before taking over his son-in-law's publishing business on that young man's sudden death. Neither Cooperstown nor Brattleboro in the early 1800s would seem natural centers for publishing enterprises, but the number of entries for these firms in the index of publishers and printers will show something of the extent of their activities in Bible publishing. The Connecticut Valley seems to have been a particularly active region in addition to Lunenburg, Mass, Windsor, Vt, Claremont, N. H., Concord, N. H., and Hartford. The geographical index includes many towns no longer associated with printing at all.

The geographical index also shows some interesting editions with Canadian imprints, which present a fascinating problem. For not only was it illegal to print the King James Bible in Canada, but according to a law passed by Parliament in 1825 it was illegal to import into Canada books whose publication in Great Britain was illegal. On 26 July 1827 the Colonial Advocate (published in York [now Toronto], Upper Canada, by William Lyon Mackenzie) carried a story about a "most noteworthy and revered preacher of the Presbyterian persuasion (of and from the United States of America)" having solicited subscriptions for a quarto Bible to be printed in Canada on Canadian-made paper and to be bound by Canadian bookbinders. Soon some 800 copies had been subscribed for at five dollars in sheep and six in calf. Mr Mackenzie had cooperated with this Rev Mr Thompson in his inquiry about printers, for he himself was most interested in fostering domestic industries. Now he had learned that "his reverence" had made up his mind to get his Bible printed "on the second hand stereotype plates of some country printer (whose name we have forgotten) in that portion of his late majesty's domains now known as the state of New York." On 9 August Mackenzie printed a story headed "Beware of Wooden Nutmegs," warning again of the imminent importation of these books, and calling as witnesses to his previous claim of misrepresentation Mr John Eastwood, papermaker; Francis Collins, printer; and Mr Maxwell, cabinet maker (among others), and referring to the law of 1825.

In the Toronto Public Library there is a broadside (Bibliography of Canadiana, No 1445) dated 6 August 1827 warning the public of this nefarious plot. The English Bible of 1827 (No 580), published in Cooperstown by E. and H. Phinney, seems to be the book that disturbed him. One copy at least got into Canada, for it is now in the Toronto Public Library — Printed by H. and E. Phinney for S. Thompson, York (U. C.).

The fiery Mackenzie was leader of a rebellion in 1837 and in the same year printed an edition of the New Testament (No 987) in Toronto, not in the King James Version but in Dickinson's translation (see 1833, No 839) against which there was no prohibition. He had hoped to publish the English Bible in Canada in the King James Version, for O'Callaghan (p xlix) quotes letters from Mackenzie stating that he purchased in 1835 or 1836 from the "Bible Society in New York" a set of Bible plates from which he intended to print a Bible, securing new titles with his own imprint, that instead he sold the plates to Mr Eastwood, who printed one edition on Canadian paper. Both Mackenzie and the Eastwood sons, however, told O'Callaghan in 1858 that one edition had been printed, about 1839 or 1840, but that they could find no copies; none are reported currently in the Canadian libraries consulted. While the American Bible Society disposed of some worn plates at about this time, it has no record of having sold any to Mackenzie. Other Bibles and Testaments with Canadian imprints were actually printed in the United States, but we have come upon no further record of opposition to their importation. It is fascinating to speculate on whether they were smuggled in or some later ordinance permitted their entry. As records now stand, no edition of the Authorized Version was legally printed in Canada until the World War II emergency edition of 1944 (No 2427).

That editions published by the Bible Societies south of the border were admitted is indicated in an article in the Colonial Advocate of 6 April 1826. In the course of a letter from Peter Russell Grant on printing in North America, reference is made to the need for importing Bibles from the "British and United States Societies" and to $211 remitted to the American Bible Society by a society in Niagara. This is recorded as from the Niagara Bible Society, in the American Bible Society report for 1826, page 101.

The Bible Societies, non-commercial publishers, appeared early in the nineteenth century. Earliest was the Philadelphia Bible Society, in 1808, inspired by the British and Foreign Bible Society founded in London in 1804. Its first edition (No 213) was printed from stereotyped plates made in England. Soon other local Societies were formed, most of them purchasing their Bibles from local printers (see Nos 168, 181, 234). In 1816 many of these joined in founding the American Bible Society. The need for inexpensive Bibles and Testaments on the expanding frontier made such a national Society necessary, and it has carried on its traditions ever since by supplying Scriptures far and wide in America and abroad and to such special groups as people in hospitals, prisons, and the armed forces, and refugees from fire and flood; also Scriptures in various languages for European immigrants and migratory workers.

In spite of the care with which Isaiah Thomas and Isaac Collins prepared their Bibles, many minor discrepancies had crept into the text at the hands of compositors and editors, so that in the 1830s the American Bible Society was often looked to as the protector of the text and many editions of sundry publishers bore on their title pages the statement: "Text . . . to the standard of the American Bible Society . . ." (see for example 1828, No 614). The Society made extra efforts for an accurate text in 1833 (No 822) and in 1834 (No 869).

In addition to providing accurate texts, the Society has sought to help young people by introducing into its editions American spelling and by changing some of the now obsolete forms of the King James version, as well as correcting punctuation, etc. This was first done in the 1850s (Nos 1443, 1504, 1643) and more recently in 1932 (No 2328).

Many of the early publishers printed Bibles for other firms, while usually keeping their own names in the imprints. (See 1822 Phinney B, No 439). Later in the century appeared the practice of using local distributor imprints with no indication of the actual publisher or printer. This practice is only sketched in these entries, but we find St Louis and Alabama imprints on books that were obviously not printed there but closely resemble issues of A. J. Holman and Co or the National Publishing Company. Each of these firms used emblems or trade marks by which their editions can be identified. National Publishing editions also usually carry copyrights by J. R. Jones, the founder of that firm.

By the second half of the century, Bible publishing began to settle down in New York and Philadelphia and firms active today began to appear, such as A. J. Holman and Co and J. B. Lippincott.

Also by the middle of the century some English Bibles appeared with the names of Thomas Nelson and Sons, Oxford University Press, and William Collins and Company of Scotland, all with American addresses. These editions were all printed in Great Britain until late in the century, when some were printed from plates imported from England or were imported in sheets and bound in the United States. All these processes have been carried on for some time, and the practice of each company has varied a great deal over the years. It has therefore been impossible to get a clear picture of the American printing history of such firms even for a particular format. We have entered books from our own collection in which American printing is indicated, but we are sure this is not a complete picture. Many of the twentieth-century Bibles sold by Harper and Bros are also printed in England and many copies of the Rheims-Douay Bible, such as those sold by the C. Wilderman Co, have been printed in Belgium, and so do not appear in these pages.

To give a true picture of the editions sold in America, one would need fuller data on these imported publications. One of the most frequently asked questions in the library of the American Bible Society is "How many Bibles were sold in the United States last year?" or "How many Bibles have been sold since the invention of printing?" As there is no complete list of printings, and certainly not of the number of copies printed, such questions cannot be answered; commercial publishers do not often issue their statistics.

During the 150 years of English Bible printing the physical appearance of the book has gone through many changes. In the eighteenth century, Bibles were generally bound in some grade of brown calf or sheep. Cloth appeared occasionally in the 1830s, but black leather was not general until about twenty years later, and limp, "divinity circuit" not until the late nineteenth century, though "envelope flaps" were common on small Bibles in the mid-nineteenth century. (Bindings, however, are seldom included in the descriptions in the following pages.)

Illustrations followed two streams — the imaginative, to make the book more attractive, and, as interest in archaeology developed, the more factual. The earliest were woodcuts and engravings based on the work of European artists. Even before the end of the eighteenth century, however, American artists were creating their own interpretations of Bible scenes, some perhaps rather crude. Alexander Anderson was one whose lively woodcuts were widely used in the 1820s and 1830s.

An engraving that appeared in many Bibles of the 1830s was The Peaceable Kingdom, illustrating Isaiah 11:1–9. This was from a drawing by Richard Westall and is said to have influenced several representations of the subject by the Pennsylvania "primitive" Edward Hicks (see No 717). Then came colored illustrations and lithographs, particularly for special title pages. Of particular interest is the "Illuminated Bible" published by Harper and Brothers about 1843 (No 1161) with hundreds of small engravings scattered through the text "to help and encourage the reader." Fine steel engravings decorated some of the large Bibles. There was another series of "Illuminated" Bibles toward the end of the century with half-tones "cut in" to the text on almost every page. Some of these were from photographs and some from drawings. The Doré illustrations vividly interpreted many of the family Bibles from about 1870 on. Reflections of changing social ideas are the chained African slave in an engraving The Redeemer of the World in a Douay Bible of 1858/57 (No 1673) and the allegorical frontispiece by Thomas Nast for Hitchcock's Analysis (1871 No 1868) showing a frock-coated missionary helping "heathen" and other sinners struggling toward "the Light." Early in the twentieth century appeared sepia reproductions of famous paintings and more recently still excellent colored reproductions of the world's most famous Biblical masterpieces. Various publishers have used colored paintings which seek to reproduce dramatic scenes in accurate detail.

As archaeologists began to report on actual scenes and discoveries in Bible lands there appeared first engravings and then half-tones from photographs of scenes in the Near East (No 2070) or from the paintings of Tissot in the 1880s based on life in Bible lands, or, more recently, from excellent color photographs of Bible lands. A fully illustrated modern edition is The Good News, a New Testament published by the American Bible Society in 1955 (No 2554) with more than 500 black and white photographs of Bible lands with brief archaeological notes.

The first American pronouncing New Testament appeared in 1814 (No 264), although a more popular edition was that of 1822 (No 452) "to which is applied, in numerous words, the orthoepy of the Critical pronouncing dictionary . . . by John Walker. By which the Proper Names are accented and divided into syllables exactly as they ought to be pronounced, according to the rules drawn from analogy and the best usage with an explanatory key by Israel Alger, Jun. . . ." A similar Bible was published in 1825 (No 531). These were often reprinted and have been followed by many other "Self-pronouncing" editions.

A number of optimistic people have published Testaments in revised spelling systems. There was Comstock's "perfect alphabet" (New Testament, 1848 No 1388) and a different but anonymous system (New Testament, 1855 No 1596). See p 202 and 234 for title pages.

Of course large English Bibles from 1535 had contained marginal references and these had continuously been elaborated and revised. Most of the early American quarto Bibles had references, often, as described in title pages, "those copious marginal References, known by the name of Canne's" (1807 B, No 143), or later simply as "Canne's Marginal Notes and References" (1816 B, No 296). Later the "Reference Bible . . . with References . . . Key Sheet of Questions . . . by Hervey Wilbur" had an extensive reprinting for thirty years (1823 NT, No 482; 1826 B, No 559). Another encouragement to easy reading was John H. Wilkins' "Revised Testament . . . in which the text of the common version is divided into paragraphs, the punctuation in many cases altered, and some words, not in the original expunged" (1824 NT, No 511). The printer Robert Estienne in the sixteenth century had popularized breaking the text into little numbered segments, but in the nineteenth century the process was reversed. In 1834 James Nourse prepared a Paragraph Bible (No 873) with verse numbers in the margins. It was many times reprinted, and the form was adopted in more and more new editions. A Testament probably of 1858 (No 1685) printed the text without any chapter or verse numbers and introduced quotation marks.

In the twentieth century there appeared a considerable number of abridged editions of which a few of the more interesting have been included. See General Index, abridgments.

Annotated Bibles, originating in England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (and not protected even there by Crown monopoly), soon became very popular, in spite of the discouraging experiences of William Bradford and Cotton Mather. Scottish Presbyterians were particularly fond of John Brown's Self-interpreting Bible, first printed in New York in 1792 (No 37) and reprinted for a hundred years. There were also Thomas Scott's Bible, first printed in New York in 1804/09 (No 113), and the Matthew Henry Bible. Some of the founders of the Bible Society were particularly fond of Thomas Scott's Bible. Thomas Jefferson also had one (see No 113).

In mid-century, Case and Coffin and others printed many editions of the smaller, annotated Cottage Bible (No 818). Perhaps the most interesting from a publishing point of view is the Polyglott Bible (first American edition 1831, No 753). Not a polyglot Bible at all, nor even an annotated edition, it was an edition of the King James Bible with a full set of center references (Bibles earlier had references in outer margins). Originally it was published in England by S. Bagster and Son as a part of a true polyglot, with matching text in seven other languages, printed on two large facing pages from plates that could be used separately for each language or arranged in various combinations. There seems to have been some magic in the title, for by 1871 there had been published, apparently without any permission or any acknowledgment to Bagster, at least 100 erroneously titled "Polyglott" editions, mostly in small size but sometimes in fine quarto (e. g. Holbrook & Fessenden, 1833 No 820).

There have been many Bible commentaries. We have listed only those which were published as annotated Bibles, with complete text and usually copious notes (often Brown's or Scott's), or those which contained independent translations (such as The Speaker's Commentary, No 1893), or certain early twentieth-century editions in which the text was rearranged and annotated, following changes in the orientation of biblical scholarship and interest (such as Kent's Student's Old Testament, 1904–27, No 2158).

For hundreds of years people have been entering on blank Bible leaves records of weddings, births, and deaths, but it was not until the 1820s that publishers provided special pages for the purpose, usually two or four leaves between the Old and New Testaments. Starting out rather simply, these became increasingly elaborate, with appropriate figures and symbols. In 1858 (No 1670) a wedding certificate as part of a "Perpetual Genealogical Family Record" appeared in a Family Bible published by the Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, and this in various forms appeared later in many Bibles. Holman for years used one in color with doves, wedding bells, and bride and groom. In the 1880s there were included also "illuminated" Temperance pledges and albums for family photographs. During World War II, pages for service records were added.

In addition to maps and charts and pictures, for hundreds of years Bibles have contained concordances and explanations of terms. Popular in the early nineteenth century were lists of the offices and conditions of men, and tables of kindred. With the growing study of archaeology and manuscript discoveries of the late nineteenth century, the sections of helps grew bulkier and more elaborate. The Family Bibles contained illustrated dictionaries and all sorts of informational matter. Lithographed "illuminated" pages with the Lord's Prayer appeared in the late nineteenth century, and in the mid-twentieth century there were decorative pages for the Beatitudes, reproductions of Hoffman paintings, and pictures of Thorwaldsen statues. Some Roman Catholic editions had illustrated sections explaining the Rosary and the Stations of the Cross. Lists of prophecies, parables, and miracles and harmony outlines were common.

Late in the nineteenth century appeared Bibles (1899, No 2103) with the words of Jesus printed in red; one publisher tried putting them in italics, but in a bolder italics than were used traditionally for added words. Then there were Bibles with stars beside Old Testament verses that contain prophecies fulfilled in the New. One called the "Rainbow Bible" over-printed in various colors passages relating to Prophecy, Salvation, etc.

An important part of this story is the desire of scholars to make the writers of the Bible speak more directly to their contemporaries. The basically simple sixteenth-century English of the AV seemed less dignified than the elaborately balanced sentences of the eighteenth century and some of the terminology offended Victorian sensibilities. Such editions were prepared in Great Britain and soon after in this country. Noah Webster's (1833, No 826) was an interesting example and Rodolphe Dickinson's version (1833, No 839) was perhaps the most extreme (Luke 1:53: "but the affluent he has dismissed destitute").

The first English translation of the Greek Septuagint (a translation made from the Hebrew perhaps 200 years before Christ) was made by Charles Thomson, ex-Secretary of Congress, and printed by Jane Aitken, the daughter of Robert Aitken (1808, No 153).

These and other scholars were also often concerned about the Greek and Hebrew texts underlying the AV. Not all of them lived up to the principles stated in their prefaces, for some made relatively few changes in readings or renderings. One of the more effective was Alexander Campbell who based his work on that of James Macknight and Philip Doddridge and of George Campbell (whose rather modern views on translation were set forth in volume 1 of the first edition of his translation of the Gospels, London 1789). Jonathan Morgan (1848, No 1389) solved the problem of different translations for certain Greek words by leaving them in Greek. Julia E. Smith (1876, No 1918) the first woman to translate the whole Bible, was a staunch rights-for-women leader who sought to translate every Greek or Hebrew word in every instance by the same English word. As scholarship advanced during the nineteenth century with researches in archaeology and the discoveries of such ancient manuscripts as the Codex Sinaiticus and, later, the even earlier papyri, competent American scholars were available to contribute richly to the English and American Revisions of 1881–1885 and 1901, the Revised Standard Version of 1946–1952, the Jewish Publication Society Version (1903, No 2151), and the Confraternity Version, some of them such as Dr Goodspeed (1923, No 2260) and Dr Moffatt (1917, No 2235), even publishing their own translations.

During the early nineteenth century translators usually worked alone. In the entry for L. A. Sawyer's New Testament (1858, No 1687) there is quoted from his preface a plea for the value of the work of an individual translator: ". . . there are great works which individuals can perform better than multitudes or councils. Councils did not make the Bible at first. It was made by individuals each man acting for himself, and giving utterance to the mighty thoughts that God had given him . . . . nor has a council ever produced any immortal work of genius or learning, unless it is the English Bible of King James. . . ." This was written while the American Bible Union Committee (1862, No 1764) was working and may be a reflection of Sawyer's attitude toward that project. But the advantages of group scholarship have been demonstrated by the American Bible Union Version, and the other committee versions referred to above.

Another aspect of the results of developing Biblical scholarship was the change in the traditional order of the books. Dr Moulton's Modern Reader's Bible illustrates this as does also Kent's Shorter Bible (1918 NT, No 2242; 1921 OT, No 2253). Dr Moffatt in his Old Testament (1924–25, No 2275) tried to indicate the various sources of the Hexateuch by the use of different types.

Bible printing on a large scale, once under way, seems to have been generally a profitable business, but the fact that it continues to be profitable is due not to the ubiquity and number of its publishers, nor to their use of special features and promotion schemes, but to the continuous ability of the Bible to make a place for itself. Its physical coverings may change from brown calf to red fabricoid, its appurtenances from Tables of Offices and Affinities to Bible dictionaries and concordances, its illustrations from fanciful representations of the Dragon Chained to beautiful photographs of the Sea of Galilee, and even its words from sixteenth to twentieth-century vocabulary. Its pages may glow with texts printed in red, it may appear in unadorned style on poor paper in poor binding or be printed in beautiful type on the best paper for a fine church; it may be simply produced for missionary purposes or elaborately prepared and promoted for "status seekers." It may be the most published and even the most unread book, but a good proportion of the copies printed, somewhere, sometime, meet a heartfelt need of some man, woman, or child.

Commercial publishers have of course played a very large part in keeping this Book on the market and in adapting its appearance to changing tastes, and its publication has indeed been good business. The Bible Societies and other non-profit publishers have also had a great share in getting copies into homes, hotels, and institutions. There are thousands of homes in the United States with shelves of unused Bibles and there are thousands of homes still without any copy at all. But there are also hundreds of thousands of well-used Bibles and Testaments in homes all across the country and hundreds of thousands of thumbed Testaments in pockets and handbags of American men and women. All of these Bibles still carry the same history of a great people and the message of a changeless God and His love for mankind.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF EDITIONS OF THE BIBLE AND THE NEW TESTAMENT PUBLISHED IN AMERICA 1777–1957

PART I

1777 through 1825

1777 The New | Testament | Of our Lord and Saviour | Jesus Christ: | Newly Translated out of the | Original Greek; | And with the former | Translations | Diligently compared and revised. | Appointed to be read in Churches. | Philadelphia: | Printed and Sold by | R. Aitken, | Printer and Bookseller, | Front Street. | 1777. | Spectamur agendo. 1

1 vol: 353 [1] p 140 × 80 mm NN, PHi

Signatures: [A]^6, B–2F^6, 2G^3.

Evans 15243. Title page has imprint and motto set in designed border; verso has Order of Books. A vignette — hat, flute, etc. — appears on p 353. Last page has Books Printed and Sold at R. Aitken's Printing-Office, opposite the London Coffee-house, Front Street. Error in I Tim 4:16, thy doctrine, for the doctrine.

This is the first English NT printed in America. Since is was forbidden to print Bibles in English in America during the colonial period, and their importation from England was cut off during the Revolutionary War, a serious need arose for making the Scriptures available to the people of this country. This matter was brought before Congress by a select Committee in 1777, and a resolution was passed to import 20,000 Bibles from Holland and Scotland. However, the project did not materialize (see Wright, p 54–56). At this time Robert Aitken, printer to Congress, undertook the printing of a NT in English which appeared in 1777. Other editions were published in 1778, 1779, and 1781. For Aitken's Bible, see 1782, No 11.

1778 The New Testament . . . R. Aitken: Philadelphia 2

Not Located

Evans 15743. O'Callaghan (p 30) says the only source for this NT seems to be a notice in the Pennsylvania Packet for Nov 3, 1778.

1779 The New Testament . . . R. Aitken: Philadelphia 3

Not Located

Not in Evans. O'Callaghan (p 30) lists a school edition.

1779 The New Testament . . . Printed and Sold by Isaac Collins, Printer to the State of New Jersey: Trenton 4

Reported as 348 p 150 × 88 mm PHi

Not in Evans. Appears to be first NT printed in New Jersey. Most of the Epistles have material at end stating where they were written. Pages 325 to end misnumbered 345–368. For Collins' first Bible, see 1791, No 31.

1780 The New Testament . . . Massachusetts-Bay . . . Printed by Thomas and John Fleet, at The Bible and Heart in Cornhill: Boston 5

Reported as 397 unnumbered p 151 × 92 mm MB

Signatures: A–2B^8. Cited copy lacks T2–T7 and 2B^8.

Not in Evans. This is the first English NT printed in Massachusetts. Isaiah Thomas reported of these printers: "They were correct printers, very attentive to their concerns, punctual in their dealings, good citizens, and much respected." (Thomas, p 123)

1780 The New Testament . . . Hall and Sellers: Philadelphia 6

Unpaged 152 × 90 mm PP

Evans 16715.

1780 The New Testament . . . Francis Bailey: Philadelphia 7

151 × 85 mm NN

NYPL 717. Cited copy incomplete from end of John (p 161) through Revelation.

PHi has undated copy (298 p, 155 × 90mm) imprinted Pennsylvania: Printed by F. Bailey, Lancaster, and J. Steele, at the Printing-Office, Octorara. Octorara is in Lancaster County. See 1801 NT, No 83.

1780 The New Testament . . . Isaac Collins: Trenton 8

Not Located

NYPL 717. DLC has card with reference to Nelson (William Nelson, Check-List of the Issues of the Press of New Jersey, 1725, 1728, 1754–1800, Paterson, N. J., 1899) but no location. The Nelson entry reads "n 1780. New Testament, Trenton. Isaac Collins." The n indicates that the compiler desired full, lined-off titles and collation.

1781 The New Testament . . . Printed and sold by James Adams: Wilmington, Delaware 9

408 p 153 × 85 mm DeWI, DLC

Signatures: [A]^6, B–U^6, W–2K^6.

Evans 17102. The first NT printed in Delaware.

1781 The New Testament . . . R. Aitken: Philadelphia 10

Unpaged 143 × 80 mm CSmH

Evans 17101. Appears to be same as NT of the 1782/81 Aitken Bible (No 11).

1782/81 The | Holy Bible. | Containing the Old and New | Testaments: | Newly translated out of the | Original Tongues; | And with the former | Translations | Diligently compared and revised. | [Device — Arms of the State of Pennsylvania] | Philadelphia: | Printed and Sold by R. Commentaries are arranged in form of footnotes. NT title, undated, imprinted Berwick [England]; Printed By And For John Taylor. 28 plates.

The general title imprint would indicate that the OT was printed in Philadelphia even though the wording "Printed for the Proprietors" is somewhat indefinite. However, there seems to be some evidence that the whole Bible was printed in England. Rumball-Petre in the Antiquarian Bookman for March 8, 1952 (IX, no 10, p 972) states that the paper used in both Testaments is the same, the type of both title pages is from the same font, the columns of text are the same width, and the plates are all by British engravers.

The theory has also been advanced by Whitman Bennett that this may be the folio Bible published by William Woodhouse, Philadelphia, in 1788 (see Evans 20960). Since a copy of the Woodhouse Bible of this date has never been located, any relationship between these two Bibles cannot be definitely established. (See also Antiquarian Bookman IX, no 6 [Jan 19 and 26 and Feb 9, 1952] p 640–641.)

Evans 21681 (1789); 22349 (1790). Rheims-Douay Version, based on Bishop Challoner's second edition, 1763–64. Vol I preliminary matter includes Order of Books, Approbations, and Names of Subscribers (page v has designation "Vol I" at foot); text: Genesis-Proverbs. Vol II (no title) text: Ecclesiastes-Maccabees; NT — Matthew-Apocalypse; and Tables of References, Chronological Table, Order and Distribution of Books, and a Table of the Epistles and Gospels.

This is the first American edition of the Douay translation of the Vulgate Bible, and is alleged to be the first quarto Bible published in the United States.

Mathew Carey (1760–1839) was a journalist in his native Ireland and in his zeal for exposing injustice — especially the persecution of the Irish Catholics — he at one point found it expedient to seek temporary refuge in France where he was befriended by Benjamin Franklin and the Marquis de Lafayette. About two years later he returned to Ireland and continued his journalistic career. This time his attacks on the English government brought him a jail sentence of one month. After his release in 1784 at the age of 24, and still facing a libel suit, he escaped to America in disguise. With the aid of Lafayette, then in America, he established himself as a printer and publisher in Philadelphia.

In 1789, Mr. Carey announced plans to publish a translation of the Vulgate Bible if he could secure 400 subscribers. The actual number secured was 471. The total number of the edition printed is not known; however, it could not have been much over the number of subscriptions as the demand for a Catholic Bible was small in the United States at that time. The undertaking was therefore an expensive one for the size of the edition, and it was first decided to print the Bible in 48 parts, to be issued weekly. Though it is generally assumed that a few parts were printed (the designation "Vol 1" does not appear on any signatures on the first 89 pages of text), Carey abandoned the scheme and formed the publishing firm of Carey, Stewart & Co., which published the Bible on Dec 1, 1790. The type was specially cast by Baine and Co., Philadelphia. It is now the rarest of the notable early American editions of the Bible. (See Rumball-Petre, America's First Bibles p 97–106.)

In the course of a few years, Carey's firm became one of the largest bookselling and printing firms and the largest and most important Bible printing house in the country. Eventually he was to publish three editions of the complete Rheims-Douay Bible (one in 1790, and two issues in 1805), three Catholic English Testaments (1805, 1811, and 1816), and over sixty editions of the Bible according to the King James Version. See note under 1801, No 77, for further information concerning Carey's printing of the King James Version.

In 1817 his eldest son, Henry, became associated with his father and four years later Mathew's son-in-law, Isaac Lea, joined the firm. Carey retired in 1824. In 1833 William Blanchard, who had worked for the firm, became a partner and the firm was known as Carey, Lea and Blanchard. On Henry's retirement it became known as Lea and Blanchard. It later was known as Henry C. Lea and Company and, from 1907, as Lea and Febiger.

In the graveyard adjoining Old St. Mary's Church in Philadelphia, originally a Catholic edifice, there is a plaque listing "Matthew [sic] Carey, The leading publisher of the early years of the Republic and the chief force in the creation of early American literature. . . . " He had first been buried here but in 1918 his remains were removed by his descendant, Edward Carey Gardiner, to Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania.

Carey was the first president of the American Company of Booksellers, organized in 1801 in New York, which in 1802 held a Book Fair in New York. The next year the fair was held in Philadelphia and thereafter alternately in the two cities for some years.

Evans 23186. This is Thomas' folio edition, issued in two volumes. Vol I has two preliminary leaves (frontispiece and title), text to end of Proverbs, and 14 plates. Vol II has three preliminary leaves (frontispiece, title same as above, and blank leaf), text beginning with Ecclesiastes, Apocrypha (colophon reads: This Folio Edition of the Bible, and one In Royal Quarto, were printed by Isaiah Thomas, at Worcester, Massachusetts, in the year MDCCXCI), NT followed by Index, and 23 plates. All plates are executed by American engravers: J. H. Seymour, J. Norman, S. Hill, and A. Doolittle.

Division of material in volumes differs in some copies; also the number and position of plates vary. NN has two copies: one with 48 copperplates (two are missing), and another in one vol. Also issued without Apocrypha.

Isaiah Thomas, whom Benjamin Franklin called "the Baskerville of America," was one of the notable publishers of the Bible during the early days of the Republic. He began his publishing venture in Boston, together with Zechariah Fowle, in 1770. Shortly thereafter he became sole owner of the firm. At this time he published the newspaper Massachusetts Spy, in which he supported the colonial cause. During the Revolutionary War he moved his presses and types to Worcester, Massachusetts, where he built up a large business. He also established branches in other cities: Thomas & Andrews, Boston; Thomas, Andrews & Penniman, Albany; Thomas, Andrews & Butler, Baltimore; and Thomas & Co., Walpole, New Hampshire.

In 1790, Mr. Thomas announced his plan for the publication of a folio Bible and also for one in Royal quarto (see following entry, No 30). He made a special effort to procure a correct text for his Bible and examined about thirty editions of the King James Version printed at various dates by different publishers. His text was further examined by a number of clergymen of Worcester and by other qualified people who compared it with no less than eight copies. (O'Callaghan, p 40.) It has the correct reading in I Tim 4:16, the doctrine.

Thomas published one folio edition and several quarto, octavo, and duodecimo editions. See 1797, No 57, for note on Thomas' standing type for his duodecimo editions.

Evans 23185. This is Thomas' Royal quarto edition issued in one volume. Has five preliminary leaves: frontispiece; title with verso blank; To Christians of Every Denomination; To the Publick with Order of Books on verso; and OT title with "The Property of " inscribed within border. With Apocrypha followed by Family Record pages. Text has marginal references. NT followed by Index and Tables (p 1277–1310) and A Brief Concordance to the Holy Scriptures by John Brown (89 p). NT colophon reads: This Royal Quarto Edition of the Bible, and likewise one in Folio, with Fifty Copperplates were printed by Isaiah Thomas, at Worcester, Massachusetts, MDCCCXCI.

Number of plates varies with different copies and some copies do not have Concordance. Also found bound in two vols.

In order to make the quarto edition more generally available, Mr. Thomas made special arrangements for payment. "The price to subscribers . . . shall be only Seven Dollars, although the English Editions of the same size, and of an inferior quality are sold for eight or nine dollars. . . . For those who are not able to pay for one all in Cash — from such the Publisher will receive one half of the sum, or twenty-one shillings, in the following articles, viz. Wheat, Rye, Indian Corn, Butter, or Pork, if delivered at his store at Worcester, or at the store of himself & Co. in Boston by the 20th day of December 1790, the remaining sum of 21 shillings, to be paid in Cash" on delivery of the books. Evans 23184. Has four preliminary leaves: title with verso blank; To the Reader [by Dr. John Witherspoon]; Account of the Dates with verso blank; and Order of Books with verso blank. With Apocrypha. Index, Tables, and A Brief Concordance by John Downame (1790) follow NT. Error in I Tim 4:16, thy doctrine, for the doctrine.

Material added to the text varies with copies. NN and NjT copies have Practical Observations on Old and New Testaments by Reverend Mr. Ostervald. The Observations are in smaller type and follow the Apocrypha.

NNAB copy lacks the Observations. PHi has copy without Apocrypha. Also found bound in two vols.

This is the first Bible printed in New Jersey and the first to be printed by Isaac Collins, a Quaker and native of Delaware. He later moved to Trenton where he was a printer to the State of New Jersey. He remained there until 1795, when he moved to New York where he carried on his business for another ten years. Collins' first printing of the Scriptures was a New Testament which appeared in 1779 (No 4).

In 1789 Collins issued a proposal to publish the Holy Bible on receipt of 3000 subscriptions, at a cost of Four Spanish Dollars; One dollar to be paid at the time of subscribing, the remainder on the delivery of the book. He later announced that Downame's Concordance would be included at no extra cost. This Bible was published in 1791 in an edition of 5000 copies. (Simms, p 130.)

In the Advertisement to his second edition, 1807, Collins gives the following information about his first edition of 1791. In order to comply with the various sentiments regarding the inclusion of the Apocrypha and commentaries, Collins offered to print the Bible with the Apocrypha or Ostervald's Notes — or both or neither — providing subscribers made their wishes known in advance. An address To the Reader by Dr. Witherspoon was substituted for the Dedication to King James, and an Account of the Dates or Time of Writing the Books of the New Testament, also by Dr. Witherspoon, was published for the first time in this Bible. Both were later used by many other printers in their editions. Similar material is found in W. Young's 1790 duodecimo printed in Philadelphia (No 25).

"As the Dedication of the English translation of the Bible to King James the first of England seems to be wholly unnecessary for the purposes of edification, and perhaps on some accounts improper to be continued in an American edition, the Editor has been advised by some judicious friends to omit it, and to prefix to this edition a short account of the translations of the Old and New Testaments from the original Hebrew and Greek in which they were written." "The Publisher has only further to add, that he has made the following impression from the Oxford edition of 1784 by Jackson and Hamilton — and has been particularly attentive in the revisal and correction of the proof-sheets with the Cambridge edition of 1668 by John Field — with the Edinburgh edition of 1775 by Kincaid, and, in all variations, with the London edition of 1772 by Eyre and Strahan — that where there was any difference in words, or in the omission or addition of words, among these, he followed that which appeared to be most agreeable to the Hebrew of Arias Montanus, and to the Greek of Arias Montanus and Leusden, without permitting himself to depart from some one of the above-mentioned English copies, unless in the mode of spelling, in which he has generally followed Johnson." (From To the Reader, first and last paragraphs.)

This edition of Collins' Bible is particularly known for its accurate text. A number of eminent authorities in the field, including Dr. Witherspoon, superintended the work. Recourse was had to the most authentic copies of the Bible in the original languages and to the best English versions. The typography was thoroughly checked and it was said that only two errors were found after its publication — one a broken letter, the other a punctuation mark. Collins also notes that Mathew Carey, Wm. Durell, and other printers adopted this edition as their standard of correctness.

A copy of this edition was used by Noah Webster as printer's copy for the sections in which he followed the King James text, including the error in I Timothy 4:16; see 1833, No 827.

Evans 23976; 25011 (1792 edition). Index (4 p) at end of Vol III.

TNJ–R has Vols I and III only, the latter printed by Pritchard and Hall.

This is the first appearance in the United States of the Wesley Version. As a result of his intensive study of the Greek text (particularly the Bengel edition) begun in 1729, John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Church, felt the AV could be improved by the use of a better Greek text and by better renderings into English. He made 12,000 deviations from the AV, a very considerable number of which were adopted by the ERV and some by the RSV. The text appeared first in 1755 in London, with explanatory notes; a standard edition was issued in 1760 and a pocket edition, without notes, in 1790. This is the first American edition, many times reprinted with and without the notes. The title pages generally do not indicate that the text is not that of the AV. See the edition of the 1790 text, without notes, prepared by George C. Cell in 1938 (No 2369).

Address, with To the Reader on verso (1 leaf); An Introduction to the Right Understanding of the Oracles of God (18 leaves); Appendix of Tables and the Order of the Books (2 leaves). Tables follow NT. Contains 20 plates, each labelled Engraved for the American Edition of Brown's Family Bible. Apocrypha wanting?

NNAB has a second copy, with title page and frontispiece missing, which has Apocrypha. Following NT are Table of Proper Names, List of the Subscribers [headed by] George Washington, Esq. President of the United States of America, and an Acknowledgment to the Subscribers by the publisher. Wright (p 387) lists a Royal folio NT which is probably made up of the NT parts, but no copy has been located.

This is the earliest edition of the Bible printed in New York. It was published by subscription, George Washington being the first subscriber, and was printed in forty parts over a period of two years. See O'Callaghan, p 45; also Wright, p 104–109. John Brown (1722–1787) was a Scottish weaver who became a Presbyterian minister. Although self-educated he prepared an annotated Bible, Bible dictionary and concordance, and a metrical version of the Psalms. His Self-Interpreting Bible appeared first in 1778 in Edinburgh and was many times reprinted in Scotland and in America.

The ruby type for this edition is said to have been set up in Scotland and imported in page form, ready for printing. The type was apparently kept standing. In 1803, the forms were sold to Mathew Carey of Philadelphia (see No 106). Because of the delay on his own school edition, Thomas is said to have purchased 500 copies of this Bible in sheets in 1792.

Evans 25171; 26666 (NT only). Preliminary matter includes Order of Books with Account of the Dates on verso, and To the Reader. NT, dated 1794, has Tables at end.

1793 The Holy Bible . . . Isaiah Thomas: Worcester 44

960 p 187 × 106 mm MiU, MWA, NN, NNAB, OClWHi

Signatures: [1A]^{8}, 2B–22Z^{8}, 23A–45Z^{8}, 46A–59O^{8}. Each quire numbered by one in ascending power.

Evans 25172. Leaf following title has Advertisement to the Folio and Quarto Editions, To Christians of every Denomination; and To the Publick. Apocrypha is unpaged. A Table of Offices follows NT.

NN copy lacks Apocrypha. MWA has second copy with NT dated 1801.

This is Thomas' octavo edition which was carefully copied from his folio and quarto editions; see 1791, No 29 and No 30. In the Advertisement to this edition, Thomas announced that he was putting to press two other editions — one in Demy quarto; the second in duodecimo, or the Common School Bible.

1793 The New Testament . . . J. Bailey and W. Dickson: Lancaster [Pennsylvania] 45

Unpaged: 150 leaves 162 × 88 mm MWA, PHi

Signatures: A–M^{12}, N^{6}.

Evans 25191.

1794 The Holy Bible . . . translated from the original Greek . . . Printed by William Young: Philadelphia 46

152 × 87 mm CSmH, MWA, NNAB, TNS

Evans (26648) notes that the type and signatures agree with Hugh Gaines's Bible of 1792 (No 40) and with Carey's 1803/02 edition (No 106). The format is similar to Young's 1790 edition (No 25). See also 1808, No 154. The general title seems to be a rearrangement of the NT title, in which the word "Greek" is used instead of "tongues."

MWA has second copy with Metrical Psalms.

1794 Expository Notes with Practical Observations upon the New Testament . . . Wherein the whole of the . . . text is recited . . . by William Burkitt . . . Printed by Abel Morse for the Rev. David Austin of Elizabethtown 47

1 vol: (vi) 7–1168 229 × 178 mm CtHi, MWA, NNAB

Evans 26668. William Burkitt (1650–1703) was a minister of the Church of England who is remembered particularly for his often reprinted Expository Notes of which the Gospels were first published in London in 1700 and Acts through Revelation in 1703.

1794 The New Testament . . . Printed By Alexander Young and Thomas Minns, for J. Boyle, B. Larkin, J. White, Thomas and Andrews, D. West, E. Larkin, W. P. Blake, and J. West: Boston 48

Unpaged: 144 leaves "12mo" MBAt, MWA

Signatures: A–Z^{6}.

Evans 26664. Verso of title has Order of Books. Table of Kindred follows text.

1794? The New Testament . . . First Edition. Peter Brynberg and Samuel Andrews . . . : Wilmington 49

Reported as 306 unnumbered p 162 × 92 mm DeWI

Not in Evans. Undated, but cited copy has pencil notation at bottom of title page: "1794 or prior"; however no information as to when or by whom the entry was made. "A Checklist of Delaware Imprints up to and including 1800," by Dorothy L. Hawkins (Master's thesis, Columbia University, 1928) mentions the firm of Brynberg and Andrews which printed books in Wilmington from 1791 to 1793, after which date Brynberg worked alone. So 1794 is a possible publication date for this NT.

1796 The Holy Bible . . . Berriman & Co., by Jacob R. Berriman: Philadelphia 53

Unpaged: 376 leaves 363 × 216 mm CSmH, ICBS, MiU, MWA, NN, NNAB, OC, PPL
Signatures: [A]^2, B–9D^2.

Evans 30065. Has four preliminary leaves: frontispiece; title page with verso blank; Order of Books with verso blank; and A Correct Map of the Countries surrounding the Garden of Eden. Has marginal notes. Index, Tables, and a List of Subscribers follow NT. 16 plates and 2 maps.

Also issued without plates and with general title reset in different fonts of type, without date.

Wright (p 325) says this Bible is valued as a collector's item, as the illustrations give excellent examples of the work done by several American engravers of this period.

1796 Expository Notes . . . New Testament . . . by William Burkitt . . . First American Edition. Printed by T. Dunning and W. W. Hyer: New York 54

1796 The Four Gospels, translated from the Greek. With Preliminary Dissertations, and Notes Critical and Explanatory. By George Campbell . . . Printed by Thomas Dobson . . . : Philadelphia 56

1 vol: (viii) (xvi) (488) (196) (16) 215 × 152 mm MWA, NNAB

Evans 30086. Pages 277–278 incorrectly numbered 275–276, disturbing subsequent pagination.

This is the first of several American editions of the George Campbell Version. George Campbell (1719–1796), a Scottish Presbyterian theologian who was long principal of Marischal College, Aberdeen, made a translation of the Gospels which was first printed in 1778 in England and many times reprinted. It was also published with James Macknight's Epistles (1845) and included in Alexander Campbell's 1826 NT (No 567).

1797 The Holy Bible . . . United States of Columbia. Isaiah Thomas: Worcester 57

Unpaged: 396 leaves 154 × 90 mm NN

Signatures: [A]^{12}, B–2K^{12}.

Evans 31806. Leaf following title has Advertisement, To Christians of every Denomination signed by Isaiah Thomas; To the Publick; and Order of Books. Tables of Scripture Measure and Table of Time follow OT. Error in Acts 6:3, whom ye may appoint, for whom we may appoint.

MWA has copy with NT dated 1800.

This is Thomas' duodecimo Bible, advertised in his 1793 octavo edition (No 44) as a Common School Bible to be printed on beautiful new type cast particularly for the purpose to be completed with all speed. The first edition was not published until 1797. It is known as Thomas' Standing Edition as the type was kept undistributed or standing ready for the press. During this period it was common practice for printer-publishers to reset and reprint a standard work again and again, in order that the type could be released for other work as soon as any printing was accomplished. This process was very expensive in terms of labor and time. With such an extensive book as the Bible and with a continuous sale, the problem was a serious one. Isaiah Thomas conceived the idea of buying sufficient type to set up the entire Bible at one time, so that it could be reprinted at convenience. Negotiations were undertaken with the Fry Foundry in London, and in 1791 Thomas agreed to the terms of £1444 for nonpariel type for a duodecimo Bible, to be completed in "not less than 12 months." See The Isaiah Thomas Standing Bible by Douglas C. McMurtrie (pamphlet privately printed, 1928). See also Isaiah Thomas by Clifford K. Shipton (Rochester, The Printing House of Leo Hart, 1948).

1797/92 The Holy Bible . . . Hugh Gaine: New York 58

150 × 88 mm MiD, MiU, MWA, NN, NNAB

Evans 31807. Same as Gaine's 1792 edition (No 40). NT title page dated 1792.

1797 The New Testament . . . J. Bailey and W. & R. Dickson: Lancaster [Pennsylvania] 59

Unpaged: 150 leaves 165 × 89 mm MWA, NN

Signatures: [A]^{2}, B–10D^{2}, 10E^{3}, ^{2}A–2L^{2}, χ^{1}, ^{3}A–3T^{2}. 9C missigned 'C9'.

Evans 30066 (1796); 33408 (1798). Vol I has three preliminary leaves: frontispiece by Alexander Lawson is inscribed Published by J. Thompson & Abm. Small for the Hot-pressed Bible Philadelphia Nov. 1798; general title with heraldic eagle surmounted by a Bible, verso blank; and Order of Books, verso blank. Vol II begins with Proverbs; Apocrypha printed in italics; Index and Tables at end of NT which has its own title page.

NNAB copy is incomplete. Also published with List of Subscribers.

This is the first hot-press edition of the Bible printed in America. In the advertisement (April 30, 1796) it was "proposed to deliver the whole in forty numbers, at one half dollar each; one of which will be completed every two weeks." The finished work was completed in 2 vols in November 1798.

1798 The Holy Bible . . . Isaiah Thomas: Worcester 63

151 × 87 mm ICBS, MWA, NN, NNAB

280 p 162 × 90 mm NN, NNAB

Evans 33416. Has Order of Books on verso of title. Verso of last leaf of NT contains list of Books Printed and Sold by Peter Brynberg. Last page numbered 291 as pagination skips 12 pages from 229 to 240.

1798 The New Testament . . . Printed and sold by Edward O'Brien: New-Haven. Also, sold wholesale and retail by David Dunham: New York 65

152 × 87 mm MWA

Evans 33415. Same as 1797 O'Brien NT (No 60).

1799 The Holy Bible . . . Thomas Dobson: Philadelphia 66

367 × 214 mm ICU, MWA, NNAB, PHi, ViU

Evans 35188. Format is similar to Berriman & Co. folio of 1796 (No 53). John Adams heads the List of Subscribers.

Has map by A. Anderson, assumed to be Alexander Anderson (1775–1870) who, according to Wright, was the first American wood-engraver. The following entries from his diary (Burr, p 207) are of interest: "Dec. 7, 1798 I intended to confine myself to wood-engraving; but C. Tiebout wishes me to undertake a map, and I cannot resist the offer. . . ." "23rd, Sunday I infring'd upon my general rule and labour'd at the map all day — except in the afternoon. . . ." Anderson was educated for medicine at his parents' insistence, but abandoned the medical profession in 1798. Many of his woodcuts and engravings appear in Bibles of the first half of the 19th century.

1799 The Holy Bible . . . Isaiah Thomas: Worcester 67

153 × 89 mm IU, MWA

Evans 35189. Same as Thomas' 1797 edition (No 57) from standing type. United States of Columbia appears in imprint.

NN and NNAB have copies with NT title dated 1800. IU also has NT (1799) bound separately.

Shaw 170; O'Callaghan, p 57. With Apocrypha. Error in Acts 10:26; Saying stand up, for saying, Stand up. Issued in parts.

NN copy has Dr. Witherspoon's Preface and 16 plates. NNAB copy has 14 plates but number and position of plates vary with copies. Vignette on title page signed A. Anderson shows Adam and Eve, and there is a full page engraving, also signed, of Jonah under a huge gourd. O'Callaghan lists 15 engravings copied from W. Heptinstall's Bible (London, 1794–95).

1801 The Holy Bible . . . Printed for Mathew Carey . . . by Joseph Charless: Philadelphia 77

Text ends 5G2 245 × 199 mm NN, NNAB, PHi, ViU

Shaw 171. Preliminary matter includes Order of Books on verso of title, Subscribers' Names (2 leaves), and Preface by Mathew Carey (2 leaves). Apocrypha, set in smaller type, has preliminary page with "This Bible is the Property of " inscribed within border which is surmounted by two vases. Family Record pages precede and follow NT. An Errata follows NT colophon. At end are An Index to the Holy Bible; A Table of Offices; Tables of Scripture Measures; Tables of Proper Names; Table of Time; A Clergyman's Address to Married Persons at the Altar; The Old and New Testaments Dissected; Portrait of an Apostolic Preacher, from Cowper; A Table of Kindred and Affinity; and Judea, Palestine or the Holy Land (a description). 9 historical engravings are included but the Map of Palestine mentioned on title page is omitted.

NN copy has woodcut in place of Errata and the Map of Palestine is included.

This appears to be the first edition of the King James Version to be published by Mathew Carey. Carey was the foremost printer and publisher of the Bible in America during the first quarter of the nineteenth century and published over sixty duodecimos and quartos of the King James Version (see note under 1790, No 23). As his business expanded, much of the work was transferred to other printers, as can be noted from the above imprint and imprints of many subsequent editions.

The distinctions among the various quarto editions are in the number and arrangement of materials added to the text in the form of tables, indexes, commentaries, plates (maps and historical scenes), and the quality of the paper on which they are printed. According to Carey's Advertisement of 1816 (quoted in O'Callaghan, p 131–134), prices varied from $3.75 for a Bible printed on coarse paper without Apocrypha, plates, etc., to $20 for a Bible printed on superfine paper with Apocrypha, Concordance, 100 plates, etc., and done in Morocco gilt with gilt edges.

1801 The Holy Bible . . . Printed By M. L. & W. A. Davis, For Gaine & Ten Eyck, S. Campbell, John Reid, John Broome & Son, E. Duyckinck, T. & J. Swords, T. S. Arden, P. A. Mesier, S. Stevens, and T. B. Jansen & Co.: New York 78

1 vol: (1080) (72) 243 × 185 mm NN

Shaw 5848. With Apocrypha. Verso of OT title page has Order of Books, Index to Articles Annexed, and List of Maps and Plates. A Table of Offices, Index of Years and Times, Analysis of the Old and New Testaments, and Family Record follow OT. NT title imprinted Fourth Philadelphia Edition . . . Printed by William Hancock . . . 1804. Following NT are Judea, Palestine or the Holy Land; Index to the Holy Bible; Table of Time; Table of Proper Names; Table of Kindred; A Concise View of the Evidences of the Christian Religion by J. Fletcher; Table of Passages in the Old Testament quoted by Christ and His Apostles in the New Testament. Has Brown's Concordance (T. Kirk, Printer, 1804) at end — 72 p. Text has marginal notes and references. 10 maps and 20 historical engravings.

In 1803 Mathew Carey decided to publish a new edition of the Bible in quarto and keep the type standing; the above appears to be the first printed from this standing type. It has certain typographical variations which appear here for the first time and are repeated in subsequent editions. The format of the text — 1046 p, with added material to 1080 p — is consistent in Carey's quartos after 1804. This is the first Carey edition in which the Apocrypha is printed in the same type as the Testaments. The reference in the title to the Collins 1791 Bible should also be noted; this latter is remarkable for its accurate text and typography and Carey and other printers of the time adopted it as a standard of correctness (see 1791, No 31).

1804–09 The Holy Bible . . . With Original Notes, Practical Observations, and Copious Marginal References. By Thomas Scott . . . The First American, from the Second London Edition, Improved and Enlarged . . . Printed By and For William W. Woodward: Philadelphia 113

4 or 5 vols 232 × 174 mm DLC, MnM

Shaw 5847, 7990. Vol I (1804) preliminary matter includes To the Reader and Introduction; text: Genesis-Samuel. Vol II (1805) Kings-Solomon's Songs. Vol III (1806) Isaiah-Malachi. Vols IV and V (1809, sometimes bound together) Preface (Printer's note reads "The American publisher did not receive the General Preface of the Author, until the whole work was completed in London . . .") followed by complete NT text; at end is List of Subscribers, including Elias Boudinot (first President of ABS) and Thomas Jefferson, and 2 leaves of Family Record.

DLC has the copy owned by Thomas Jefferson, which is No 1471 in E. Millicent Sowerby's Catalogue of the Library of Thomas Jefferson (II, Washington, The Library of Congress, 1953). Miss Sowerby quotes Jefferson as writing that in 1807 Scott was awarded a Doctor of Divinity diploma from "Dickinsonian College," Carlisle, "by persons whose names I never before heard." She also quotes a letter from the publisher asking if he wants the last volume bound as one or two, adding that the price will be $1.75 more than the original subscription of $20 for the set.

NNAB has copy with Vol II lacking, Vols IV and V bound together, and Vol I imprinted The Second American Edition . . . 1807. Printer's note in Vol I (1804) reads "The call for the work was so great, that after I proceeded with about 200 pages of Vol. second, I found it necessary to increase the number of copies; and in Vol. third to proceed with that increased number, which of course called for the reprinting of all the first volume and part of the second. . . ." Consequently, there are two editions of Vol I only.

Vol I of the second printing contains Scott's note to the revised edition (London 1809) stating that the proper Preface will be written after the completion of the revision. This Preface is followed by a Recommendation signed by six "respectable Ministers of the Gospel in Philadelphia . . ." including Ashbel Green and Jacob J. Janeway who were active in founding the Philadelphia Bible Society in 1808. In addition to the text there are long chapter summaries, copious references in both margins and a great amount of commentary in smaller type in the lower part of the page.

This is the first appearance in the United States of the popular family commentary known as Scott's Bible. Thomas Scott (1747–1821), a Church of England clergyman with Calvinist leanings, prepared a commentary for the English publisher Bellamy, which was planned to appear in 100 weekly numbers (a procedure popular at that time). Scott was to receive a guinea a number and the first number appeared in March 1788. But because of financial difficulties when the work was completed (in 174 numbers, in June 1792) Bellamy was bankrupt and Scott not only lost his money but was saddled with a debt from which he was relieved by friends in 1813 (Darlow and Moule I, 309). Wright (p 202) quotes Horne (Manual of Biblical Bibliography p 259) with the statement that "twenty-five thousand two hundred and fifty copies were sold in the United States of America from 1808 to 1819." Its popularity lasted well into the middle of the century. The last London edition seems to be the sixth, published in 1823.

Shaw 7991. Rheims-Douay Version. The term in the title, First American, from the Fifth Dublin edition, means only that this is the first appearance in the United States of Dr. Troy's 1791 Dublin edition of the Bible.

Preliminary matter includes Subscribers' Names, Historical and Chronological Index to the Old Testament, Order of Books, and Directions for Placing Plates. Following NT title is An Admonition and Prayer before the Reading, with a translation of the Decree of the Council of Trent and Order of Books on verso. At end are An Historical Index to the New Testament, A Table of References, and A Table of the Epistles and Gospels. Has 3 maps, chart of Scheme of the Lives of the Patriarchs, and 6 engravings. Inserted between p 384 and 385 of the OT are 385, 386 and 387, 388; and in the NT 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, and 47, 48 are inserted between p 40 and 41.

NN copy has different arrangement of supplementary material and a different series of illustrations.

Format resembles that of the 1792 Self-Interpreting Bible of Hodge & Campbell (No 37). OT, Apocrypha, and NT all have separate signatures. Apocrypha in smaller type. NT imprinted Printed by Hopkins and Seymour for Robert McDermut.

PPL–R copy has plates. O'Callaghan (p 82) describes a copy with 24 engravings from Thomas' 1791 folio (No 29), from which the references have been erased but the engraving numbers have in most cases been retained. This has the added imprint of J. & T. Ronalds.

Has Table of Kindred added. O'Callaghan (p 84) notes that the type from which this Testament was printed was cast expressly for it in Philadelphia, set up in Hartford, and distributed as fast as each form was worked off. The edition consisted of 10,000 copies.

1807 The Holy Bible . . . Edinburgh, Printed for W. Swan & S. Allinson, New York; And Sold by them, and by the Principal Booksellers in the United States 140

Text ends 5G2 256 × 201 mm NN, NNAB

Probably not printed in U. S., but O'Callaghan (p 85) lists this because title page wording and added materials follow Carey's 1801 quarto (No 77). Contains Apocrypha, Index of the Bible, Cowper's Portrait of an Apostolic Preacher, Clergyman's Address to Married Persons, Account of Judea, Tables, and Brown's Concordance (1807). One map and 9 historical engravings.

NN copy has imprint Printed for W. Swan et S. Allinson, New York, And Sold at Paris, by Truchy, Bookseller, 18 Boulevart des Italiens . . . Edinburgh. The general title page was printed separately and pasted in. The mistake of et for & in the title seems to point to Paris as the place of printing, but both Testament titles, though foreign in typographical appearance, are printed with signatures and the NT title reads &.

1807 The Holy Bible . . . Mathew Carey: Philadelphia 141

Collins' second edition, based on his 1791 edition (No 31). Preliminary matter includes frontispiece (Providence by Carracci), Advertisement to the Second Edition, Dr. Witherspoon's To the Reader and Account of the Dates, List of Maps and Historical Engravings, and Order of Books. With Apocrypha, followed by Ostervald's Notes and Family Record pages. NT followed by Index to the Holy Bible, A Table of Time, Tables of Scripture Measure, Table of Offices, Table of Kindred, Table of Proper Names, and Brown's Concordance (1806). Plates are labelled Engraved for Collins's Quarto Bible, Second Edition. Plate of St. John the Evangelist, before John's Gospel, signed by A. Anderson.

NNAB has another copy with Apocrypha and plates omitted.

In the above-mentioned Advertisement to the Second Edition, Collins makes the following statements: "The admirers of engravings in their Bibles, will be pleased with those introduced into this edition. The great price paid for the engravings, the plan of procuring a single plate from each of the first artists of our country, and some from an eminent engraver lately from London, and the exciting a competition by the reward of a gold medal for the best, have produced a set of plates, which may be regarded a specimen of the degree of perfection to which the art of line engraving has advanced in the United States. . . . As some persons may prefer their Bibles without plates, copies may be had without them. The same regard to the accomodation of individuals will also be observed with respect to the Apocrypha, and the Notes of Ostervald."

In 1796, Isaac Collins moved his business from Trenton to New York and in 1802 his son became a partner in the firm. When in 1805, Benjamin W. Perkins, Jr also became a partner, the firm became known as Collins, Perkins and Co.

1807 The Holy Bible . . . With those copious marginal References, Known by the name of Canne's Notes . . . Jacob Johnson, and Kimber, Conrad and Co.: Philadelphia 143

Text ends 6H4 203 × 117 mm MBU–T, MWA, NjMD, NN, NNAB, PP, ViU

Apocrypha lacking? Preliminary matter includes Order of Books and Tables of Scripture Weights, Money, and Time. Following NT are A Table of Offices, Table of Passages, and Table of Kindred. The references and notes appear in both margins and historical dates at the head of each column of text.

This is the first appearance in the United States of Canne's Bible. John Canne (d. 1667?), a leader of the English Independents in Amsterdam, prepared marginal notes or references which were described on the title as "shewing the Scriptures to be the best interpreters of Scripture." They first appeared in a small Bible probably printed in Amsterdam in 1662 (and possibly even as early as 1644) and were many times reprinted. These references, more for the purpose of commentary and explanation than for scholarly understanding, are often suggestive and carefully selected. In their many reprintings they became full of typographical errors and were often added to by later editors.

Vols IV–VI are dated 1808 and have Etheridge and Bliss in place of Etheridge and Company. This is the first American edition of the Doddridge Version, first published in England in 1739–1756. A two-volume edition was also extracted from the original Family Expositor (see 1807, No 148; also 1836, No 935). The Rev. Philip Doddridge D.D. (1702–1751) was a Congregational minister and hymn writer. He received the degree of D.D. from both universities at Aberdeen. One of his best known hymns is "Awake, my soul, stretch every nerve." Strong (p 109–133) says Doddridge was particularly careful in translating verb tenses, demonstrative pronouns, and the definite article, producing a rather flat text but providing a paraphrase which assured pleasurable and profitable reading. The notes show the "warm evangelical spirit of the man." In England at least 13 editions of the Family Expositor (in 4 or 6 vols) were published by 1824.

Signatures: All signatures in each volume preceded by volume designation. Vol I, π^2, A–Z^4, Aa–Zz^4, 3A–3Q^4, 3R^2. Vols II–IV have identical scheme but end with following signatures: Vol II, 3P^3; Vol III, 3I^4, Vol IV, 3N^2.

Vol I, Genesis-I Samuel. Vol II, II Samuel-Psalms. Vol III, Proverbs-Malachi, followed by note about the translation, and Errata. Vol IV, NT. Each volume has general title page as well as its own part title page. Text is printed in single-column paragraph form, with verse numbers in left margin. Italics are rarely used except for emphasis, words supplied to complete the sense being bracketed. Has a few footnotes. Without Apocrypha. Copyright Pennsylvania, Sept. 12, 1808.

Charles Thomson (1729–1824) made the first translation of the Septuagint into the English language, and the first English translation of the NT in the western hemisphere. He emigrated to this country from his native Ireland in 1739. By chance he met a patroness who provided his early education. After receiving the degree of Master of Arts, he served as a tutor at the College of Pennsylvania, which later became the University of Pennsylvania. He adopted the patriot cause, and was unanimously elected secretary to the Continental Congress upon its organization in 1774. He held this post until 1789 when he resigned in order to pursue his scholarly interests. His first acquaintance with the Septuagint came when he purchased one part of Bp. Pearson's edition as a curiosity at an auction. After his inquisitiveness had turned to fascination, he found the other part in the same store. This edition, including also a reprint of Thomas Buck's printing of the Greek NT (1632), was published by John Field at Cambridge, England in 1665.

Thomson spent twenty years in making the translation. The books called Apocrypha, which are included in the canon of the Greek OT but not in the Hebrew, were omitted in his translation. After copying the MS four times, he had it published at Philadelphia by Jane Aitken, the first woman to print any part of the Holy Scriptures in America, and the daughter of the printer Robert Aitken. It is of interest that the name "Cha. Thomson" appears as the signer of the Congressional resolution in the front of the 1782 Aitken Bible (No 11).

A manuscript copy in three volumes of Thomson's translation of the Septuagint (and NT?) is in the Reis Library, Alleghany College, Meadville, Pa. NNAB has a portion of the autograph translation of the work. It has many textual changes in the original hand on 305 numbered foolscap sheets. Leaves 1–32 are lacking, 305 is in fragments. The MS seems to have included Job to Malachi; leaf 33 begins with Psalm 22:20. Thomson's own printed copy of the translation with his last MS corrections is owned by the Library Company of Philadelphia. The Pennsylvania Historical Society's library has his translation from the Greek NT, The New Covenant Commonly Called the New Testament, one volume. PHi also has the Synopsis of the Four Evangelists, and Interpretations of Biblical Words and their translation from Greek into English, 3 vols, in his handwriting.

In addition to the translations, a Synopsis of the Four Evangelists; or, A regular history of the conception, birth, doctrine, miracles, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ in the words of the Evangelists was published for the editor by Wm. M'Culloch, Philadelphia (iv, 200, 50 p. 23 cm, NNAB and PMA). PMA also has the MS of this work.

Thomson's OT was printed in London in 1904 in 2 vols by S. F. Pells. It was followed by the NT in 1929.

1808? The Holy Bible . . . William Young: Philadelphia 154

151 × 86 mm NNAB

Similar to the Young editions of 1790 (No 25) and 1794 (No 46) with general title page dated 1794 but now correctly worded. Also published with NT dated 1810.

This is the first Bible printed in Connecticut and was referred to by the publishers as the "School Bible." The firm of Watson and Goodwin, Hartford, Connecticut, published the well-known Connecticut Courant. In 1779 Watson died and Barsillai Hudson became the publishing partner of Goodwin, establishing the firm of Hudson and Goodwin. The following (from O'Callaghan, p 96) appeared in the Connecticut Courant of 18 October 1809: "Hudson and Goodwin have the satisfaction to announce to the public that they have this day completed their first edition of the School Bible. The type is entirely new, imported at heavy expense (from the foundry of Wilson and Sons, Glasgow, at a cost of 6000 crowns), and the paper is so good a quality that it is asserted with confidence to be the best of the kind offered for sale in this country." The type was apparently kept standing and O'Callaghan notes that it was sold for old metal about 1837.

Between 1809 and 1813 copies of this Bible were purchased at about sixty cents each for distribution by the following newly formed organizations: Albany Bible Society, Bible Society of Charleston, South Carolina, Auxiliary Bible Society of the County of Cayuga, New York, Connecticut Bible Society, Fairfield County Bible Society, Connecticut, New Jersey Bible Society, New York Bible Society, Bible Society of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. A copy in the Library of the British and Foreign Bible Society, London, was presented by the Connecticut Bible Society as a sample of the books they were purchasing for distribution. No copies have been located with the Connecticut Bible Society imprint.

Wait and Company . . . for W. Wells: Boston 171

1 vol: (xxx) (612) 151 × 86 mm ICU, MB, MBS, MWA, NN, NNAB, PMA

Preliminary matter includes Introduction, Order of Books, and Table of Undisputed and Disputed Books According to Eusebius. Text is printed in paragraph form, with verse numbers in left margin and notes at foot of page.

This seems to be the only American edition of Belsham's "Improved Version" of Newcome's translation. Archbishop William Newcome of the Church of Ireland was one of the eighteenth century British scholars concerned with improving the English Bible. He published an edition of the Minor Prophets in London in 1785, of Ezekiel in 1788, and a New Testament in 1796. Newcome's NT was taken as a basis for one prepared by a group of London scholars, chief of them being Thomas Belsham, a Unitarian. Variations from the Textus Receptus were indicated in the margin where there were also placed passages from Newcome's text that had been changed in this new text, first printed in London in 1808. A London edition of 1817 contains some changes made after comparison with Griesbach's second edition.

In 1809 there was printed in Philadelphia by Kimber and Conrad an edition of An English Harmony of the Four Evangelists, Generally disposed after the Manner of the Greek of William Newcome (NNAB). This had first appeared in London in 1802, arranged by Richard Phillips using the AV, and was arranged in parallel columns (xiii, 476, 4 p). Newcome's Greek Harmony had been published in Dublin in 1778.

"Particular inquiries were made for the purpose of ascertaining whether it would be eligible for the Society to purchase types; and considering the delay, expense, and uncertainty incident to any proceedings for importing stereotype from Europe, the idea was entirely relinquished. Means were also employed to ascertain where the best and cheapest Bibles could be procured at home; and those printed by Messrs. Hudson, Goodwin, & Co. Hartford, were, on the whole, preferred. From them have been procured two thousand copies, and two thousand more have been ordered. All Bibles procured for the use of the Society, are stamped on the cover and upper edge of the leaves with the name of the New-York Bible Society, and deposited in the Book-store of Messrs. Williams & Whiting, who have generously offered, without any compensation, to take the trouble of delivering them as the Managers shall direct." O'Callaghan, p 103. Text covers Romans through Jude, Greek and English texts.

James Macknight (1721–1800) was a Presbyterian divine and Biblical critic, born in Ireland of Scottish ancestors. He studied at the Universities of Glasgow and Leyden and in 1769 served as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. In 1756 he published in London a Harmony of the Gospels with the King James Version. In 1787 he published his own version of Thessalonians, which was followed in 1795 by an edition with the rest of the Epistles. His text was several times reprinted in England and in the United States.

1812/11 The Holy Bible . . . Mathew Carey: Philadelphia 208

242 × 182 mm DLC, KKB, MWA, NjMD, NN, NNAB

Appears to be the same as Carey's 1804 edition (No 112) and has identical maps and historical engravings. In most respects the typography has the variations of the Carey standing type, but it is possible that parts of the type were reset at this time. The error in Esther 1:8, to the King, for so the King, which occured in the 1811 edition (No 187) is continued here. The error in Lev 19:12, the God, for Thy God, occurs in this edition for the first time. NT title dated 1811.

NNAB has another copy in which NT is dated 1812 and the plates consist of 5 maps and 6 historical engravings; and a third printed on inferior paper with Concordance and plates omitted. O'Callaghan (p 108) lists copy with 10 maps and 15 historical engravings, and another with 2 maps only.

1812 The Holy Bible . . . John Cunningham, Printer . . . Published by Merrifield and Cochran: Windsor [Vermont] 209

1 vol: 5–956 957–964 (25) 228 × 176 mm ICN, ICU, MBU–T, MH, MWA, NNAB, OC, VtHi

This is the first Bible printed in Vermont. With Apocrypha. Preliminary matter includes general and OT titles and Order of Books. Following NT are A Clergyman's Address to Married Persons, Analysis of the Old and New Testaments, Chronological Index, Summary History of the Bible (in smaller type), Family Record, Index of the Holy Bible, Table of Proper Names, Tables of Scripture Measures, Table of Kindred, and Table of Time. Continuously paged through Family Record (p 957–964 are scrambled); Index and Tables (25 p) are unpaged.

O'Callaghan (p 108) lists copy with 7 engravings which are labelled First Vermont Edition, of which 6 are by Isaac Eddy, Weathersfield, Vt., and one by James Hill. VtHi has copies with map.

1812 The Holy Bible . . . M. Carey: Philadelphia 212

152 × 88 mm MWA, NN, NNAB

Same as Carey's 1803/02 edition (No 106) except for minor changes. Does not have subject headings. Has doubled ruled lines at head of first text page of each Testament. Initial letter of each signature is in larger type.

Title page and Chapters i to xxxv of Genesis are missing in NN copy.

1812 The Holy Bible . . . Stereotype Edition . . . Stereotyped by T. Rutt, Shacklewell, London, for the Bible Society of Philadelphia 213

1 vol: (633) (192) 152 × 83 mm CSmH, ICHi, MiU–C, MWA, NN, NNAB, PP

Preliminary matter includes Order of Books and Account of Dates. Tables of Scripture Measures and Table of Time follow OT.

This is the first stereotyped Bible to be printed in the United States. The plates were imported from England by the Philadelphia Bible Society. The British and Foreign Bible Society donated £500 toward the cost and the United States government admitted the plates free of duty. They were received in October 1812, and were immediately turned over to the printer, William Fry of Philadelphia. His initial print run of Bibles was 1050 copies; of NTs, 750 copies (see 1812, No 222A). The sixth printing in May 1814 brought the total number of Bibles to 14,125 copies; the total number of NTs to 3,250.

The Bible Society of Philadelphia, the first in the United States, was organized in December 1808. Its first president was Bishop White, who, as one of the chaplains to Congress, reported on the Aitken Bible in 1792.

Alden Bradford (1765–1843), a descendant of Governor Bradford and John Alden, graduated from Harvard in 1786, served as Congregational Minister in Wiscasset, Maine, and later was clerk of court there. His experience as a bookseller in Boston was financially unsuccessful. For a time he edited the Boston Gazette and served as Secretary of the Commonwealth from 1812 to 1824. His strong anti-Mason activity resulted in his loss of the secretaryship. He had already become a Unitarian and was a man of strong upright character, public spirit, and cultivated tastes. Closely resembles the E. Duyckinck, etc. edition of 1812 (No 211). Preliminary matter includes To the Reader [by Dr. Witherspoon] and Account of the Dates. Apocrypha is unpaged. Tables follow both Testaments.

This edition consisted of 12,000 copies (O'Callaghan, p 124).

968 p 191 × 108 mm DLC, NNAB, ViU

Order of Books and Account of Dates precede text.

The Bible Society of Baltimore was founded in September 1810. In its Sixth Report, presented at a meeting in September 1816, the Society reported that "the Brevier octavo Stereotype plates," part of which had arrived the year before, were now all in hand and an edition of 500 copies was being printed. It was also reported that plans were under way for a second edition of 2,500 copies. These plates were later sold to the American Bible Society; see 1829, No 673.

1815 The Holy Bible . . . Apocrypha . . . Anson Whipple: Walpole [New Hampshire] 275

1 vol: (735) 740–959 [1] 188 × 105 mm CSmH, ICN, KyLo, MB, MBU–T, MWA, NN, NNAB

Preliminary matter includes To the Publick, Account of Dates, Order of Books, Tables of Scripture Measures, and Table of Time. Apocrypha (88 leaves) is unpaged. Table of Offices appears on last leaf.

This is the first Bible printed in New Hampshire. O'Callaghan (p 125) says that Whipple was Isaiah Thomas' son-in-law and that Thomas owned the press on which the Bible was printed. Typesetting began about 1810 and the printing progressed to Deuteronomy 26 when the project was suspended and not resumed until 1812. Rumball-Petre (Rare Bibles p 29) says 8,000 copies were printed on coarse paper.

1815 The Holy Bible . . . Munroe, Francis and Parker: Boston 276

Appears to be from same type as Munroe, Francis, and Parker edition of this year (No 276).

1815 The Holy Bible . . . Stereotyped and Printed by D. & G. Bruce: New-York 279

684 p 160 × 89 mm MB, MWA, NN, NNAB, NNC, NjMD

Nonpareil type. Has Tables at end of both Testaments.

This is the first Bible printed from stereotype plates cast in the United States. Verso of title page reads "This first American stereotype Bible has been copied from the Edinburgh edition printed under the revision of the General Assembly of the Kirk of Scotland, and carefully compared with the Cambridge, Oxford, Hartford and New York editions."

David Bruce emigrated from Scotland to America in 1770, and pursued his trade as a printer. In 1804 he and his brother established the printing firm of D. & G. Bruce in New York. In 1812 David Bruce went to England and there learned what he could of the stereotyping process. On his return he introduced a number of improvements in the process, which soon came into wide use in America. (American Dictionary of Printing and Bookmaking p 72–73.) Unpaged 158 × 89 mm MWA Strip pasted across title, and, originally, over "Carefully . . . Payson, D.D.": First New-Ipswich Edition.

O'Callaghan (p 137) quotes from Kidder and Gould's History of New Ipswich (Boston 1852, p 237): "Mr. Ide, having purchased a small Ramage press and a font of bourgeois type which had already been pretty well worn on an edition of Shakespeare, placed them in the blacksmith's shop on his father's farm, and undertook to print an edition of the New Testament in duodecimo form. By the assistance of a sister, about twelve years old, in setting type, it was accomplished in about six months. That this, his first publication, might be as free from errors as possible, he engaged the Rev. Dr. Payson, of Rindge, to read the proof sheets. As there was only type enough to set twelve pages at a time, he walked to his house, a distance of four miles, twice a week, to read proofs with him; and to give greater currency to the edition, he prevailed on Dr. Payson to allow him to insert on the title page, 'Revised and corrected by Rev. S. Payson, D.D.' Some of the Doctor's friends having got the impression that he had been making a new Translation of the Testament, it gave him no little uneasiness. To relieve him of this, Mr. Ide printed the words 'first New-Ipswich edition,' and pasted the slip over the obnoxious line. An edition of 5000 was worked off, and 1000 copies, in full binding, were sold to the New Hampshire Bible Society, for $280, which was less than cost, in order to raise money to purchase paper. The others were retailed at fifty cents a copy."

1816 Exposition of the Old and New Testaments. By Matthew Henry . . . Hogan & Towers: Philadelphia 292

6 vols Not Located

O'Callaghan, p 134. This is said to be the first American edition of the commentary by Matthew Henry, first published in London, 1708–10, in 5 vols. Matthew Henry (1662–1714) was a Presbyterian minister at Chester. He died after completing the Gospels and the rest was prepared by several ministers. While not a critical commentary, it was long celebrated as the best of English commentaries for devotional purposes and is still in print.

1816 The Holy Bible . . . together with the Apocrypha . . . J. Holbrook's Stereotype Copy. First Edition. : Brattleborough [Vermont] 293

Reported as (8) 9–683 (160) (2) 687–930 (2) 243 × 181 mm CtY, MAnP, MWA, VtHi

Format agrees with that of the Collins 1816 quarto (No 296). J. Holbrook's Stereotype Copy. First Edition. appears inside octagonal device on title page. NT title imprinted Stereotyped by B. & J. Collins: New York. Plates.

VtHi copy has added engraved titles (1816). VtHi has another copy dated 1816 but imprinted Second Edition.

This is the first of many editions printed in Brattleborough (or Brattleboro).

In 1803 William Fessenden (1779–1815), a young printer from New Hampshire, came to Brattleboro and a year later established a newspaper and printing business. Among his publications was Webster's spelling book, the plates and rights to which he had secured from Anthony Haswell at Bennington. His business flourished and he married a daughter of John Holbrook (1761–1838), a successful business man who had built up a considerable business in shipping meat and other products down the river to Connecticut. In 1815 Fessenden died very suddenly, and his father-in-law, then living at Warehouse Point, Conn., returned to Brattleboro to take over Fessenden's business which he successfully developed into an industry that was an important factor in the growth of the town. He immediately undertook the publication of the above Bible. "For undertaking to publish a large family Bible, by subscription, in this obscure town so far away from the great centers of trade, Mr. Holbrook was ridiculed by the greatest publishers of the day in New York and Boston, and certain failure of the enterprise was by them confidently predicted." To secure an adequate supply of paper Mr. Holbrook set up a paper mill, which in itself was quite a project in an area with no machine shop, no iron foundry, nor engine lathe. The iron castings were brought by horse from Rhode Island. William Fessenden's brother, Joseph, joined the firm but died in 1834. Deacon Holbrook withdrew from the firm in 1832 when he became president of the bank. John C. Holbrook and others then bought out the old firm. The company failed during the financial crisis of 1836 but was reorganized as a joint stock concern as the Brattleboro Typographic Company which "died a gradual lingering death." (Henry Burnham, Brattleboro . . . Early History with Biographical Sketches of Some of Its Citizens, D. Leonard: Brattleboro, 1880, p 34–35. See also Mary R. Cabot, The Annals of Brattleboro, Press of E. L. Hildreth and Co.: Brattleboro, 1921, Vol I, p 232–235 and 1681–1895.)

In 1837 the Brattleboro Typographic Company approached the ABS with proposals for printing but the ABS Managers considered the matter "inexpedient."

The number of entries for this firm in its various forms during the 1820s and early 1830s is indication of its success.

1816 The Holy Bible . . . M. Carey: Philadelphia 294

242 × 182 mm NN

Same as Carey quarto of 1812/11 (No 208). With Apocrypha and Concordance (1816). Errors in Esther 1:8 and Lev 19:12 continued. 70 maps and historical engravings.

This Bible was published originally at $12.50, $15, and $18 (O'Callaghan, p 130).

Family Record follows OT. Index, Tables, and Concordance (1815) follow NT. 20 historical engravings and 4 maps.

MBU–T has undated copy which lacks Brown's Concordance and is imprinted Published by Charles Ewer: Boston. Stereotyped by B. & J. Collins.

This is the first stereotyped quarto edition of the Bible printed in the United States. To do the stereotyping, the publishers employed John Watts, who introduced the art into the United States about 1813, having learned about the process from Richard Watts and Andrew Wilson in London. It was issued with and without Apocrypha: with Apocrypha and Concordance; with Concordance; with Ostervald's Notes; with Ostervald's Notes and Concordance; and with Ostervald's Notes, Apocrypha, and Concordance. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $18.50 according to contents, paper, and binding. See O'Callaghan, p 129–130.

1816/18 The Holy Bible . . . with Thomas Scott's Notes. In Five Volumes . . . The Sixth American, from the Second London Edition . . . S. L. Loomis, Hart and Lincoln, Printers . . . Published by Sheldon & Goodrich, and Simeon L. Loomis: Hartford 297

This is the first Connecticut edition of Scott's 1804–09 Bible (No 113). Vol I (1816) Prefaces followed by OT text, Genesis-Samuel. Vol II (1817) Kings-Proverbs. Vol III (1818) Ecclesiastes-Malachi, followed by Family Record. Vol I of NT (1816) Matthew-Acts. Vol II (1817) Romans-Revelation, with Tables, Etc., and Concordance (Printed . . . by John Holbrook, Brattleborough, Vt., n. d.) at end.

NNAB copy has each volume bound in two parts, thus making ten books. Each has separate title page, but volume designations I to V only are used. Part designations are labelled on the spine of each book. No Concordance. K has copy with all volumes dated 1817; no Concordance.

1816 The Holy Bible . . . with Original Notes and Practical Observations. By Thomas Scott. In Six Volumes. Fifth American Edition . . . Published by Samuel T. Armstrong: Boston 298

6 vols 210 × 123 mm MH, MWA, NjP

Scott's Bible; see 1804–09, No 113. Also known as Armstrong's first Boston edition. Vols I–IV, preliminary matter includes Preface, Introduction to OT and to the Book of Moses; OT text. Vols V–VI, preliminary matter includes Introduction to NT; NT text. At end of Vol VI are Retrospective Review of the Predictions Contained in the Revelation of St. John, Tables of Scripture Measures, Table of Offices, Family Record, and Names of Subscribers. Text has footnotes throughout and each book has an Introduction. Each volume has separate signatures.

NT sometimes dated 1815. MAnP has set with Vols I–III dated 1816, Vols IV and VI dated 1817, and Vol V dated 1815.

MB, MWA, and NN have Armstrong's second Boston edition, variously dated 1817 or 1818; NcD has NT only. MWA and ViU have Armstrong's third Boston edition, Armstrong with Crocker & Brewster, Boston, and J. P. Haven, New York, 1823; NRU has Vols II, III, and IV only without New York imprint.

Brevier Duodecimo Bible. Preliminary matter includes Order of Books. NT imprint reads Published by the American Bible Society. Tables on verso of NT title. Length of printed matter on page varies.

NNAB and MWA copies have imprint of New York Bible Society on both general and NT title pages.

The imprint of the American Bible Society is seen for the first time on this Bible. The ABS was founded in May 1816 "to encourage the wider circulation of the Holy Scriptures without note or comment," using "the version now in common use." Managers of the new organization felt that their first exertions ought to be directed toward the procurement of well-executed stereotype plates, for accommodation of large areas of the American continent. They accordingly contracted for three sets of stereotype plates of duodecimo size and three sets of octavo size for the English Bible to be ready in the spring of 1817. During the interim when the plates were in preparation, the New York Bible Society, which was founded in 1809, and the New York Auxiliary Bible Society united in presenting the American Bible Society with the stereotype plates of a duodecimo size Bible in brevier type which they had had made with funds contributed by other societies and individuals in different parts of the country. The ABS printed its first edition of 10,000 copies from these plates of which the above described Bible is a copy. It was issued in November 1816 and sold for $1 to $1.85.

By the end of 1820, the ABS had the following sets of plates for the whole Bible and for separate NTs:

BIBLE: 1 set — Brevier Duodecimo, stereotyped by E. & J. White, priced at 85¢ to $1. See 1817, No 332.

3 sets — Minion Duodecimo, stereotyped by D. & G. Bruce, priced at 64¢ to 73¢. See 1819, No 377.

3 sets — Long Primer Octavo, stereotyped by E. & J. White, priced at $1.25 to $3. See 1818, No 347.

NT: 1 set — Bourgeois Duodecimo, stereotyped by D. & G. Bruce, priced at 30¢ to 35¢. See 1819, No 388.

2 sets — Brevier Octodecimo, stereotyped by A. Chandler, priced at 22¢ to 25¢. See 1820, No 412.

The prices given above were current in 1821 and the variations in cost were due to differences in paper and binding.

In 1824, one set of plates for a New Testament of octavo size in pica type, stereotyped by A. Chandler, was acquired. This sold for 56¢ to $1.13. See 1824, No 503.

Of the above plates, two sets for the whole Bible (one Minion Duodecimo, and one Long Primer Octavo) were loaned to the Kentucky Bible Society which was to be responsible for printing editions for distribution west of the Alleghanies. See 1819, No 376. (See also American Bible Society Reports, 1817–1825.)

1816 The Holy Bible . . . Stereotyped by E. & J. White. Published by the American Bible Society: New-York 304

1 vol: (832) (254) 155 × 87 mm MWA, NN, NNAB

This Brevier Duodecimo is the first Bible which carries the imprint of the American Bible Society on both general and NT title pages. It is from the same plates as the 1816 edition (No 303) printed by the ABS bearing imprint of the New York Bible Society.

The ABS Report for 1842 (p 30) says a new book is being prepared to take the place of the Brevier Duodecimo, for the plates are worn out. See 1844, No 1209.

Reprint of 1816 ABS Brevier Duodecimo (No 303).

MWA has copy with NT dated 1816.

Daniel Fanshaw, of 20 Sloat Lane, obtained a ten-year contract with the ABS which was twice renewed. In 1826 he put into the Bible House on Nassau Street the first power presses (Treadwell) ever used in a book office in New York and soon acquired nine more. His contract was not renewed in 1844, partly due to his refusal to put in larger presses. His printing business then shrank but he had invested in real estate uptown and at his death in 1860 was reputed to be a millionaire. Among his eccentricities were his refusal to wear an overcoat and an item in his will that would disinherit his son should he ever use tobacco. (Wright, p 334.)

Vol II (1820) text: Jeremiah-Revelation; at end are Index, Tables, List of Authors, and Family Record.

O'Callaghan (p 143) notes that this Bible was originally to have been issued in numbers. Each signature has volume number to which it belongs.

Thomas and James Swords established their printing business about 1786, printing periodicals and general literature and gradually increasing their theological publications until they practically became the unofficial printers to the Protestant Episcopal Church. Thomas was for 30 years vestryman of Trinity Church. James retired in 1832, becoming president of the Washington Fire Insurance Company, and Edward Stanford joined the firm, which was then known as Swords and Stanford and Company. After Thomas died in 1843, his sons Edward and James joined the firm, which was known as Stanford and Swords until 1855 when it ceased. (C. E. Butler, "T. and J. Swords, Publishers," NYPL Bulletin xxv, No 2 [Feb 1954] 89–93.)

O'Callaghan (p 143): "Though at first view this edition would seem to be a Carey 12mo of 1808, with only new title pages, yet the text has evidently been recomposed. Like the editions of 1812, 1814 and 1817, there are no headlines to the columns. In many places the short s is used where the long ſ is found in the other editions. There are no signature figures to the edition of 1808. In Exodus 19:11, 'Sinai' is printed 'Sinia:' (an error to be found also in the editions of 1814 and 1817) and in I Kgs 4:29, 'the sea shore,' is printed 'these ea shore'."

Reported as 334 p 158 × 85 mm MWA

Appears to be same as S. Southwick 1816 edition (No 316). "Finis" on last page appears in the same design.

This is the first edition published by William Williams who came from Framingham, Mass., in 1787 and made Utica an important center of book production and distribution. He served his apprenticeship with his brother-in-law, Asahel Seward (who had been apprenticed to Isaiah Thomas), and became his partner in 1807. Williams executed many woodcuts, some for local banknotes. He took part in the War of 1812, was an elder in the Presbyterian church, a delegate to the convention that established the American Bible Society in 1816, and superintendent of the Utica Sunday Schools and teacher of a class as well. He also published books for the Mohawk and Choctaw Indians and two Hawaiian tracts for E. Loomis, contributing the cost of paper, press, and binding. During the cholera epidemic of 1832 he personally attended the sick. He published both Protestant and Catholic Testaments. His activities in the anti-Masonic movement and financial losses connected with the publication of the American edition of the Edinburgh Encyclopedia caused his financial ruin in 1833. A head injury from a fall in 1840 seriously impaired his activities and he died in Utica in 1850. He was the father of S. Wells Williams, American missionary and Chinese scholar, who was president of the ABS from 1881 to 1884. (Madelaine B. Stern, "Books in the Wilderness," NYHA New York History xxxi, No 3 [July 1950] 266–270).

1820 A Translation of the New Testament: By Gilbert Wakefield . . . From the Second London Edition. Printed by the University Press, by Hilliard and Metcalf: Cambridge [Massachusetts] 406A

1 vol: (xii) (450) (2) (163) 166 × 91 mm ICU, MB, MH-AH, MWA, NN, NNAB

Preliminary matter includes Advertisement to this first American edition, dated 1820; Errata; Dedication to Rev. Robert Tyrwhitt, dated 1791; and Preface. Text is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in left margin. Notes at end.

Gilbert Wakefield (1756–1801) was a classical scholar and controversial writer who became a Unitarian after serving as an Anglican clergyman. His alterations in the AV consist mostly in regard to "some low obsolete or obscure word, some vulgar idiom, etc." He made use of Walton's Polyglott Bible. His NT was first published in London in 1791 and again in 1795, although Thessalonians had been privately printed in 1781 and Matthew in 1782.

1822 The Holy Bible . . . [The Self Interpreting Bible]. By the Late Rev. John Brown . . . Printed and Published by T. Kinnersley: New-York 433

1 vol: (8) (li) (1) 3–1222 (2) 393 × 206 mm MWA, NNAB

Text, appended materials, and pagination agree with the S. Walker edition for this year (No 432) but without Apocrypha. Frontispiece has notation Published by S. Walker . . . New-York; added engraved title page has The Self Interpreting Bible . . . Printed & Published by S. Walker . . . New-York . . . 1820. All other titles dated 1822. Colophon reads: Stereotyped and printed by J. McGowan, London. This Bible was published in 162 parts. Part numbers appear at foot of page of each new part. 38 historical engravings and one map.

Number of engravings varies with copies. Also published with Apocrypha.

T. Kinnersley published the Self Interpreting Bible with London imprint in 1816 (first printed 1814) and it was also stereotyped and printed by J. McGowan with the same pagination (NNAB). It would seem that both this and the Walker editions of 1820 and 1822 may be made up of imported sheets or else were printed from imported plates. See 1792, No 37.

Samuel Wood (1760–1844), a former teacher and bookseller, in 1806 began publishing children's books of his own compilation and authorship on a small press in the rear of his shop. The business thrived and was carried on by several sons. The office in Baltimore was opened in 1818 but as it was unsuccessful it was soon abandoned. (Harry B. Weiss, "Samuel Wood & Sons," Bulletin of the NYPL XLVI [Sept 1942] 755–771.)

O'Callaghan, p 157–158. Has Witherspoon's To the Reader, Indexes, Tables, and Family Record, but no Apocrypha.

This is the first of a series of quarto Bibles published by H. and E. Phinney in Cooperstown between August 1, 1822, and the winter of 1848, when a fire destroyed their plant. O'Callaghan (p 158) quotes a letter from E. Phinney stating that the first edition consisted of 500 copies but that the last of the 138 editions (totalling 154,000 copies) printed during the latter part of 1848 was 4,475 copies. About 100,000 copies included the Apocrypha and 14,750 had Brown's Concordance. "The stereotype plates were made by H. and E. P. at Cooperstown. Two proofs were read with the greatest care, the text having been compared with other editions, and a premium offered to the men in the establishment for the discovery of errors, even after the plates were cast." (O'Callaghan, p 158.)

The Phinney brothers, Henry and Elihu, were the sons of an enterprising printer, Elihu Phinney, who came through the wilderness from Connecticut to Cooperstown in 1795 with press and type and established a press, bookshop, and newspaper serving much of western New York State. Yet he found time to serve as judge in the Court of Common Pleas. He died in 1813. James Fenimore Cooper, who in 1816 was a delegate to the convention that formed the American Bible Society, learned to set type in his shop, for fun. The Phinney's imported all sorts of books from New York and Philadelphia and distributed them with their own publications through towns and villages from large wagons with moveable tops and counters, even providing a canal boat book store on the Erie Canal. They established a stereotyping foundry in 1820 and by 1830 had the largest plant in the town, employing forty hands and five presses and were part-owners of a local paper mill. In 1839 the founder's grandson, Henry Frederick Phinney, joined the firm. Labor troubles arose when new power presses were installed and a number of men dismissed. At this time the fire occurred and the plant was moved to Buffalo. In 1854, H. F. Phinney, who had married a daughter of Cooper, moved to New York and joined Henry Ivison in educational publishing. (Madeleine B. Stern, "Books in the Wilderness," NYHA New York History XXXI, No 3 [July 1950] 261–266.)

Editions from similar plates were issued in 1833 by R. White & Co., Hartford (No 816) and G. M. Davison, Saratoga Springs (No 813); in 1842 by Jesper Harding, Philadelphia (No 1129); in 1852 by Alden, Beardsley and Co., Auburn (No 1488) — reprinted by Jesper Harding in 1857 (No 1639) and again by A. J. Holman in 1872 (No 1895); and in 1871 by William Harding (No 1867) — reprinted by Henry Altemus in 1890 (No 2037). The pagination in these editions is similar but the division of lines within the same verses occasionally varies, indicating that some must have been from other type-settings.

Reported as 381 p 170 mm MBU–T

This is the first edition printed by Luther Roby. Roby was born in Amherst on Jan 8, 1801. At 15 he entered the office of the Farmer's Cabinet as an apprentice, where he remained for six years. Early in 1822 he opened a printing and book shop on Amherst Plain but in December he moved to Concord where he issued the first number of the Statesman on Jan 6, 1823. He sold the paper in May but continued as its printer, in addition to producing school books, Testaments, Bibles, etc. With other colleagues he printed many editions during the next thirty years. It is said that his presses were at one time turned by a horse attached to a vertical shaft in the basement below the pressroom.

Published by the Editor . . . and sold by him — Also by Abm. Small . . . : Philadelphia 477

2 vols: Vol I, (xvi) 17–358 359–360; Vol II, (x) (420) 421–443 (2) 158 × 87 mm
ICN, NNAB

Kneeland Version. Preface signed Abner Kneeland . . . April 1, 1822, Notes on the Greek Alphabet, etc., Order of Books, Account of Times and Places of Writing Books, Disputed Books, and Contents precede text. Text is printed in parallel columns in paragraph form, with verse numbers in text. At end of Vol I is Errata. At end of Vol II are Abstract Containing Some of the Most Important Articles in Parkhurst's Greek Grammar, Emendations, To the Candid Reader, Greek Errata, and Publisher's Advertisement.

O'Callaghan (p 160) lists both the diglot and the Greek text alone for 1822, and Hall (p 30) describes an edition of the diglot with Vol I dated 1822 (and the final "r" in printer omitted) but Vol II, 1823. Hall also lists separate Greek and English editions for 1823, as well as this 1823 diglot. He adds that the Greek type seems to be the same as that used by Mathew Carey in his edition of Epictetus, 1792. For the English text alone, see No 478.

The Rev. Abner Kneeland (1774–1844) was originally a Baptist minister, but later became a Universalist and then a Deist. During his ministry at the Universalist Church in Philadelphia he prepared this edition. While he originally planned to use Newcome's (Belsham) "Improved Version," according to the "Emendations" he soon found he wished to make more changes. He also lists further improvements he would like to make for a later edition.

In January 1834, Mr. Kneeland was tried for "a certain scandalous, impious, obscene, blasphemous and profane libel of and concerning God." Although conviction was secured, a long series of hung juries and postponements in the appellate courts delayed his sentence until 1838. Despite a protest petition signed by several eminent men, the sentence was enforced. Theodore Parker's words gave vent to the feelings aroused by the case: "Abner was jugged for sixty days; but he will come out as beer from a bottle, all foaming, and will make others foam." In 1839 Mr. Kneeland immigrated to "Salubria," on the Des Moines River in Iowa. His proposed rationalist colony never materialized, and he died there in 1844. Among his other works was A Brief Sketch of a New System of Orthography, 1807.

Preface signed by A. C. and Introduction to the Gospels precede text. Text in single-column paragraph form, divided into sections. Hints to the Reader in smaller type follows the Gospels. Introductions, also in smaller type, appear before Acts and Paul's Epistles. At end are Errata, Appendix, Prefatory Hints to the Other Epistles, and Revelation. Aids to translation are at foot of page. Edited by the publisher. Copyright February 3, 1826.

This is the first appearance of the Alexander Campbell Version of the NT which has been in print for over a century. Alexander Campbell (1788–1866) was born in Ireland and educated at the University of Glasgow. He came to America in 1809 as a Presbyterian minister, but soon became a Baptist and later founded the Disciples of Christ. He was greatly impressed by a New Testament published in London in 1818 which contained the Gospels translated by George Campbell (see 1796, No 56), the Epistles by James MacKnight (see 1810, No 186), and the Acts and Revelation from the Family Expositor of Doddridge (see 1807, No 147). He failed in his attempt to arrange for its publication in America and undertook to produce an improved version of that text. He admired the translation principles of George Campbell but also took suggestions from the works of other scholars. However, he based his text mainly on Griesbach's Greek NT, particularly the 1809/10 edition.

A recent study of Alexander Campbell's work is Cecil K. Thomas' Alexander Campbell and His New Version (The Bethany Press, St. Louis, 1959). In the foreword, Dr. Luther A. Weigle says: "Campbell was an indefatigable student of Greek, honest in dealing with it, and courageous in presenting its meaning. I agree with the author's statement that he 'was aware of the basic principles of interpretation and translation which were accepted by the best scholars of his day and which have been proved valid by the testing of over a century of critical study.' "

Although Campbell substituted some ornate words of Latin derivation for the ordinary words of common use, undue colloquialism in a modern (19th century) speech version would have been less desirable. He was particularly concerned with the Greek readings considered spurious and the handling of these constitute important differences between later editions. In the first and second editions they are printed in italics but in the third most are removed to an appendix and the others printed in regular type.

Alexander Campbell also made a translation of Acts which was included in the American Bible Union Version (see 1862–63, No 1764).

This Bible was planned by Crocker and Brewster in 1821 or 1820. Several Boston firms rejected the project but Armstrong joined in having the first volume stereotyped. "It was so successful that the rest of the set was also stereotyped within a year and a half at a cost of twenty thousand dollars." Crocker and Brewster sold more than twenty thousand sets, each of which cost about $6 to produce, went to the trade at $12, and sold at retail price of $24.

This was the firm's most successful book, and when Crocker and Brewster went out of business in 1876, the plates were sold to H. O. Houghton. (Rollo G. Silver, "The Boston Book Trade, 1800–1825," Bulletin of The New York Public Library LII, No 10 [Oct 1948] p 492.)

1 vol: (xi) (116) 25 cm NNAB

George Rapall Noyes (1798–1868) was born in Newburyport, Mass. He studied theology at Harvard College, and thereafter was ordained a Unitarian minister. In 1840 he became professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages and lecturer on Biblical literature at Harvard. Early in his career he became interested in translating parts of the Bible. He first translated the above cited Book of Job, which was followed by the Psalms (1831), the Prophets (3 vols, 1833–37), and Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Canticles (1846). The second edition of the Book of Job was published by James Munroe and Company, Boston, in 1838 (NNUT); the third edition in 18??; and the fourth, revised, with Ecclesiastes and Canticles, in 1868 (No 1833). Noyes's most extensive work was the translation of the NT from the text of Tischendorf, published in Boston in 1869 (No 1845). From 1866 on, all editions of the Noyes translations were published by the American Unitarian Association, Boston.

1828 The Holy Bible . . . D. Fanshaw, Printer. Stereotyped for the American Bible Society by D. & G. Bruce: New-York 626

837 p 19 cm NN

This is known as the Hornet copy. Note on last leaf reads "USS Hornet foundered at Sea in the Gale of Sep. V, 1829. And 199 Bibles like this went down with her. Simonds. This the only one saved. Myself the only person." This was Lieutenant L. E. Simmonds, U. S. Navy. For further details see David H. Clift, "The Hornet Bible," The New York Public Library Bulletin xxxix, No 6 (June 1935) 441–445. Although Lt. Simmonds actually seems to have been transferred from the ship about a month before the storm, the ship was lost with all hands.

In Nov 1817 the ABS donated sixty-five Bibles "to the United States ship, the John Adams, for its crew," thus beginning a long history of the supply of the Scriptures to the U. S. Navy and to the other branches of the Armed Forces. The Hornet had received several specific donations.

1828 The New Testament in the Common Version, Conformed to Griesbach's Standard Greek Text. Press of the Boston Daily Advertiser. W. T. Lewis, Printer: Boston 643

Unpaged 22 cm DLC, MB, NN, NNAB

Text printed in paragraph form with verse numbers in the left margin and spaces within the line to indicate the beginning of a new verse. Copyright by Nathan Hale, District of Massachusetts, 1828.

The editor was John Gorham Palfrey (1796–1881), an ordained Unitarian minister and Dexter Professor of Sacred Literature at Harvard, 1831–39. In later years, he acted as politician, postmaster, lecturer, etc., as well as contributing to the North American Review, which he took over in 1835. The Advertisement (p [8]) of this NT states that "the editor . . . has exactly reprinted the Common Version, except in places where the Greek text, from which that version was made, is now understood to have been faulty. In other words, he has aimed to present the Common Version precisely as it would have been if the translators could have had access to the standard text of Griesbach, instead of the adulterated text of Beza. In the translations which he has introduced to correspond to the amended Greek, it has been his careful endeavor to imitate the style of the received version. . . ."

DLC, MB, MH, NN, and NNAB have 1830 reprint by Gray and Bowen, Boston, marked 3rd edition; copyright July 7, 1828 (491 p, 20 cm).

The translator was Egbert Benson (1746–1833) who was a leader in the Revolution and representative in the Continental Congress, several succeeding conventions, and in Congress. He served as judge of the New York Supreme Court, 1794–1812, and was considered an authority on legal matters, second only to Alexander Hamilton. He was a trustee of Columbia University and one of the founders and the first president of the New York Historical Society. He was granted LL.D. degrees by Union, Dartmouth, and Harvard. His object in this edition seems to have been to give the proper translation of the terms for charity and bishop, which he rendered as love and overseer.

NN suggests that the pagination probably agrees with a copy of the NT in general use at the time which he had marked up, as he prepared no further text.

1831 The English Version of the Polyglott Bible . . . With the Marginal Readings: Together with a Copious and Original Selection of References to Parallel and Illustrative Passages. Exhibited in a Manner Hitherto Unattempted. Stereotyped by L. Johnson . . . Published by Key & Meilke: Philadelphia 753

1 vol: (viii) (587) (190) 15 cm NN, NNAB

Each Testament has frontispiece and added engraved title (with publisher spelled Mielke). Order of Books and Preface to the English Version of the Polyglott Bible signed T. C. (Chevalier) precede text. Text has references in center column.

This is the first American edition of the frequently reprinted "Polyglott" Bible. It is actually the English text from Samuel Bagster's genuine polyglot Bible which had originally been printed in London in 1822 with the complete text in eight languages, four to a page. The whole edition, except a few copies of the NT, was destroyed by fire. It was reprinted and issued in 1831, some copies with only six languages. The English text, first printed in 1816, was the AV with a full reference column of over 60,000 references. See also 1825 Bible, No 534.

A large number of these "Polyglott" Bibles were printed in the United States, particularly in New England, and in various sizes. The title and references must have been a sales "gimmick" as indicated by the following quotations from Richardson Lought's Hawkers and Walkers in Early America, Strolling Peddlers, Preachers, Lawyers, Doctors, Players and others from the Beginning to the Civil War (Philadelphia, J. B. Lippincott Company, 1927): "The early peddler, if contemporary documents are to be believed, was a lanky and hawk-beaked youth, an adventurous, brave, mercenary fellow, who had a rare understanding of human nature and a ready tongue. His most effective salesmanship was the 'soft sawder' flattery. He was accused of purveying wooden nutmegs and cucumber seeds, oak-leaf cigars, shoe-peg oats, polyglot Bibles (all in English) and realistically painted bass-wood hams. He was, moreover, a commercial bird of passage. He always left his customers convinced and satisfied with their share of the bargain, but he usually managed to clear out after finishing his deal." (p 25) "It is said that the house of every substantial farmer in the days following the Revolution had three ornaments — a polyglot Bible, a tin reflector and a wooden clock. . . . The polyglot Bible 'all in English' (one Yankee peddler is alleged to have sold £16,000 worth of them) is a myth." (p 77)

Also published in 2 or 3 vols.

Noah Webster (1758–1843), compiler of Webster's Dictionary and a Congregational layman, undertook a revision of the English Bible. As early as 1784, in his Grammar, he had pointed out an error in Mt 23:24. In 1822 he consulted Professor Moses Stuart at Andover and a group of scholars about revision. In 1831 he sent out a manuscript circular asking about its desirability. Only James Milnor, then one of the secretaries of the American Bible Society, seems to have replied (Jan 30, 1832) and that discouragingly.

In his interesting preface Webster points out that changes have taken place in the language in the past 200 years so that some words "are not understood by common readers, who have no access to commentaries, and who will always compose a great proportion of readers." Other words have changed meaning, thus causing false ideas and so "do not present to the reader the Word of God." He corrected errors in grammar, substituted words and phrases now in good use "for those either wholly obsolete, or deemed below the dignity and solemnity of the subject," inserted "euphemisms, words and phrases which are not very offensive to delicacy," and corrected a few errors in translation in consultation with the original languages. Feeling that all denominations should use one Bible, he tried to avoid offending any group. Many whom he consulted seemed to feel that some revision of the common version was needed but "no person appears to know how or by whom such revision is to be executed." The revisions turned out to be quite minor — about 150 words and phrases were changed — and rendered little aid to a clearer presentation.

Webster was keenly hurt by the indifference of the public to what he considered "the most important enterprise of my life." When the Bible was issued in September 1833, it sold at $3. In 1836 he authorized N. and J. White in New York to sell it at $2 and later at $1.50. (Webster Bibliography, p 378–380.)

The Bible was republished in 1841 (No 1112) and the NT issued separately in 1839 (No 1061).

1833 A New and Corrected Version of The New Testament; or, a Minute Revision, and Professed Translation of the Original Histories, Memoirs, Letters, Prophecies, and Other Productions of the Evangelists and Apostles . . . A Few . . . Notes. By Rodolphus Dickinson . . . Published by Lilly, Wait, Colman, & Holden: Boston 839

1 vol: (xl) 41–381 [1] 383–499 [1] 25 cm DLC, MB, NcAs, NN, NNAB, ViU

Fly title, frontispiece (portrait of Dickinson), Dedication, Preface, References, Divisions, and Subdivisions precede text. Appendix and list of some of the subscribers (dated 1833) at end. Copyright 1831, by Rodolphus Dickinson, South Carolina. Published by subscription.

Rodolphus Dickinson (1787–1863), a rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Paul's parish in the District of Pendleton, South Carolina, sought to make the text more readable both in content and form. It was based on the Greek version of Griesbach. In the Preface, Dickinson states: "The lapse of centuries has produced a revolution in the English language, requiring a correspondent change in the version of the scriptures; and I may add, that the errors in grammar and rhetoric, the harsh and indelicate expressions, dispersed through the generally adopted text, demand amendment." The Testament was printed in paragraph form with no other material on the page than the text and headings. The titles of the several books were changed. The translation was for the most part a mere substitution of words which did not always enhance the readability of the text. See O'Callaghan, p 225f; also Simms, p 232.

The left-hand page heading throughout the NT is "Apostolic Productions." In I Tim 4:16 Dickinson translates "Attend to yourself, and to your doctrine," continuing the error which has been noted in many AV editions since 1791. His translation of the Lucan canticles is remarkable: "And it happened, that when Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the embryo was joyfully agitated . . . ; and she exclaimed with a loud voice, and said Blessed are you among women! and blessed is your incipient offspring!" (Luke 1:41–42) . . . "He has precipitated potentates from their thrones, and has exalted the lowly. He has satisfied the necessitous with benefits; but the affluent he has dismissed destitute." (Luke 1:52–53.)

Baptist Edition appears at head of title page. Vol I (1835, Stereotyped by Thomas G. Wells and Co.: Boston) Genesis-Judges. Vol II (1836, Fessenden and Co.: Brattleboro') Ruth-Psalm

LXIII. Vol III (1837, Brattleboro' Typographic Co. Stereotyped by Folsom, Wells and Thurston . . . : Cambridge) Psalm LXIV–Malachi. Vol IV (1834, Stereotyped by Shepard, Oliver, Lancaster and Co., Lancaster, Mass.) Matthew-John and elaborate Family Record pages. Vol V (1838, imprint same as Vol III) Acts-Revelation. Vol IV is the first volume of the NT and was published first according to the Preface. Each volume has frontispiece and numerous plates. Copyright dates are same as imprint dates.

Also published in 6 vols, Vol VI containing a Supplement to the Commentary dated 1838 (see No 894). Range of dates varies, e. g. 1834–39, 1834–46, 1835–38, 1834–40. Vol IV of the 1834–46 set (NN) imprinted J. B. Lippincott and Co.: Philadelphia.

For non-denominational edition, see 1835–38, No 894. The only difference seems to be that some pages were reset for the Baptist edition (Vol IV: 14, 16, 17, 18, 310, etc.) with slight changes, each such page being identified by the addition of BAPTIST EDITION at the bottom. These two editions are reported in American Baptist Magazine for Aug 1834 (p 336).

William Jenks (1778–1866) graduated from Harvard in 1797 and became a reader in Christ Church Cathedral, 1797–1805. He was ordained a Congregational minister in 1805, serving at First Church, Bath, Maine, for thirteen years. He served as an Army Chaplain in the War of 1812. After several years as professor of Oriental Languages and English Literature at Bowdoin College, he returned to Boston where he devoted himself to work among seamen. The immediate sale of the Comprehensive Commentary was over 20,000 copies. (DAB)

James A. Warne was born in England in 1795. At an early age he became associated with the Little Wild Street Baptist Church in London. After coming to America he served pastorates in Newbern, North Carolina, Providence, Rhode Island, South Reading and Brookline, Mass., and Philadelphia. He died in 1881.

General title page missing from cited copy; above from NT title. Preliminary matter includes Editor's Preface by Coit, The Translators to the Reader (from the first edition of the AV, 1611), and Tables. Alternative readings and renderings appear at foot of page.

O'Callaghan (p 231) quotes the American Baptist Magazine with the statement that this is the first printing in an American Bible of the 1611 Translators' Preface, but see No 770.

Dr. Coit was Rector of Christ Church, Cambridge.

1834 The Right-Aim School Bible; comprising the Holy Bible . . . and an Annexment containing the Free-Debt-Rule Petitions, addressed the First to the twenty-four states, the Second to the Congress, the Third to the President, of the United States of America, and affixed Memorials; the Fourth Petition to three high offices of the Government of England; also the Declaration of Freedebtism, In view of a humble and earnest Call on all People to "Search the Scriptures" and to heed the analogy and application of Freedebtism to Religious Principle and Scripture Text instancing from the Lord's Prayer and Precepts, in His Sermon on the Mount, "Forgive us our Debts as we forgive our Debtors," "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the Prophets." Entered . . . in the year 1834, by Rufus Davenport, In the Clerk's Office of the District of Massachusetts. Stereotype Print: [Boston] 871

1 vol: (510) (162) (6) 19 cm NN

Order of Books appears on verso of title. Regular AV text.

Not a school Bible but a Bible of the Right-Aim School:

> The main FREE-DEBT RULE is, "All persons shall become free from debt by surrendering, at the place of their inhabitance, all their estate to the use of all their creditors, in ratable proportion." The RIGHT-AIM example of Dealing on Free-Debt Rules, is "Any nonfulfillment from unexpected innocent inability shall not subject a party to imprisonment, nor to more payment than ability shall afford in ratable proportion to all creditors. . . ."
>
> The author, in publishing this annexment, in the binding with Scripture, by the name of the RIGHT-AIM SCHOOL BIBLE, adds no preface, more than is contained in the title page; but refers to the preceding forms of the FREE-DEBT-RULE DEALING-BILL, with the FREE-DEBT-RULE ACCOUNT, and gives notice, that details may be expected, in a separate publication, soon after measures shall be sufficiently advanced, with the organization of the Right-Aim School, whereof is herein contained the preliminary brief.

1835? The Devotional Family Bible . . . with Practical and Experimental Reflections on each Verse of the Old and New Testaments . . . By Rev. Alexander Fletcher . . . Virtue, Emmins and Company: London and New York 891

Reported as (iv) (1622) 37 cm CtHi

References in center column; Reflections at foot of page. Has Address, Tables, etc. 57 plates. Published in numbers.

NNAB has four copies: one imprinted Virtue and Yorston, New York which lacks Address but has engraved titles and plates and Concordance (80 p); another bound in 2 vols, with Apocrypha; a third set unbound; and an undated edition imprinted National Publishing Co., Philadelphia, which has inscription showing a gift in 1884. This Bible seems to have been reissued a good many times, for NNAB has record of the following imprints: Emmins and Co., Virtue and Company, and George Virtue, all undated.

1835 The Holy Bible . . . With Canne's Marginal References . . . Text Corrected According to the Standard of the American Bible Society. Stereotyped by James Conner, New York. Andrus and Judd: Hartford 892

1 vol: (527) (78) (168) 29 cm NN

With Apocrypha. Frontispiece and engraved title have imprint Published by Silas Andrus, 1835. Added are Index, Tables, Lives and Martyrdom of Evangelists, etc. Illustrated.

Also published with Metrical Psalms.

1835 The Holy Bible . . . With Canne's Marginal Notes and References . . . Stereotyped by E. White, New York. Kimber and Sharpless: Philadelphia 893

Reported as (570) (112) 573–770 29 cm DLC

With Apocrypha, Tables, and Brown's Concordance. Plates.

Wright lists 1840 (p 398) and 1847 (p 401) editions, the first, with Apocrypha, held by NN. IU has 1845 edition, but Family Record has entries indicating publication before 1845. NN has 185–? edition with Concordance and Metrical Psalms. All of these editions of uniform pagination are undated and the ascribed dates are probably much later than when the books were actually issued.

1835–38 The Comprehensive Commentary on the Holy Bible: Containing the text According to the Authorized Version; with Marginal References; Matthew Henry's Commentary, condensed . . . the Practical Observations of Rev.

Thomas Scott, D.D., with Extensive Explanatory, Critical, and Philological notes, selected from Scott, Doddridge, [etc.] . . . Edited by Rev. William Jenks . . . Brattleboro' Typographic Company: Brattleboro' 894

6 vols 28 cm DLC, IaU, MiU, OO

Similar to 1834–38 Baptist Edition re-edited by Warne (No 860). Publishers of volumes vary. Vol I has frontispiece and added engraved title page. Illustrated with plates and maps.

Also published in 5 vols, with Vols III–V imprinted Fessenden: Brattleborough. The 5-vol set is sometimes dated 1835–40.

NNAB has 6-vol set of this non-denominational edition dated 1836–46. Vols I, III, and IV dated 1845; Vol II (imprinted Fessenden & Co.), 1836; Vol V (imprinted J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia and Joseph Steen & Co., Brattleboro'), 1846. Vol VI is the Supplement (Brattleboro Typographic Co., stereotyped at the Boston Type and Stereotype Foundry, Incorporated October 26, 1836) and contains Concordance (1838, 280 p), Guide (198 p), Biographies of Biblical Writers (227 p), Index (20 p), Tables (26 p), Symbolic Dictionary (56 p), and General Index (58 p).

Joseph Steen (1797–1881) served as an apprentice with William Fessenden remaining with Holbrook and Fessenden until 1828 when he became associated with paper-making and later bookselling and binding. He was the object of ridicule from his fellow workers in the printing trade because of his abstemiousness (a whiskey distillery from which they seemed to draw their strength was next to the Brattleboro printing house) and was active in organizing a temperance Society in 1830. He shared in many phases of community life, serving variously as pension agent for soldiers of the Revolution, assignee in bankruptcy for Windham County, justice of the peace, selectman, member of the school board and newspaper proprietor and editor. From the Holbrook-Fessenden plates Steen published "eleven thousand royal octavo Bibles, one thousand five hundred pages each, two thousand school books and one thousand pocket Testaments." Mary R. Cabot, Annals of Brattleboro, 1681–1895, Brattleboro, 1921. p 244–245, 312–314.

1836 the new testament . . . in raised letters for the use of the blind, by the american and massachusetts bible societies. Printed at the new-england institution: boston 953

Reported as 147 leaves 31cm PPAmP

The first of four volumes containing the NT in raised letters. Text ends with Luke 6:49. This was the project of Samuel G. Howe, M.D. of the New-England Institution for the Education of the Blind, Boston, who had been investigating the problem for several years. He had purchased type and a press by March of 1835 and printed the Acts (100 copies). Mark and John had been previously printed elsewhere, possibly in England. The ABS and the MBS each contributed $1,000 to the project and the New-York Female Bible Society, $800. (ABS Report 1835, p 27–28, 92–94.) In May 1836, Dr. Howe sent to the ABS a copy of the volume cited. He hoped to have the other three in a few weeks. (ABS Report 1836, p 87.) Ever since this time, the ABS has regarded the supply of Scriptures for the blind as part of its regular work.

The American Bible Society has issued English Scriptures for the blind in the versions and systems indicated below. The date is that of the completion of the series cited; in most instances the first volume of a series began to appear several years in advance. Reprintings frequently followed.

O'Callaghan, p 258. Reprinted from the 1833 Oxford reprint of 1611, which uses modern spelling. Although the American and Foreign Bible Society was formed in 1836 by Baptists who were dissatisfied with the attitude of the ABS on the matter of transliteration of the Greek word for "baptize" in missionary translations, they adopted the "version in common use" for use in English. See 1838 NT, No 1027; also 1839 Bible, No 1042.

The Society is still in existence in 1960, a board of Baptist ministers administering the remaining funds for Bible distribution but it no longer publishes. See also the American Bible Union (1862, No 1764) and the American Baptist Publication Society, (1891, No 2048).

1842 The Holy Bible; Being the English Version of the Old and New Testaments, Made by Order of King James I. Carefully Revised and Amended, the meaning of the sacred original being given, in accordance with the best translations and the most approved Hebrew and Greek lexicographers: By Several Biblical Scholars . . . Stereotyped by L. Johnson. [Kay and Brothers, Printers] Published for David Bernard, by J. B. Lippincott: Philadelphia 1134

1 vol: (iv) (629) 630–632 (4) (iii) (192) 28 cm NN, NNAB

Preface signed The Proprietor, 1842, precedes text. Tables and Family Record follow OT. NT has Preface by A. C. Kendrick. Index of Names and Places at end. References arranged in double center column. Reference columns in OT also contain readings of the AV displaced by this edition. Copyright by David Bernard 1842.

The signer of the Preface, The Proprietor, no doubt refers to David Bernard. No clue is given to the translators of the OT. However, Dr. Simms (p 249) notes that Dr. George Ripley Bliss was among them. The Preface sets forth the purpose of the translation as an attempt to achieve uniformity of spelling and rendering, to correct the grammar, and to change such terms as are indelicate, antiquated or left untranslated in the AV. The NT, an "immersion" version, was translated by Dr. A. C. Kendrick, a Baptist scholar of Greek language and literature. The edition is apparently based on the Greek OT of John Pearson and on the Greek NT editions of Buck (1632) and Field (1665), as well as the AV. A second edition was also published this year.

Dated 1846 with, at foot of title, Entered . . . in the year 1843 by Harper and Brothers. Frontispiece and illuminated title to each Testament. Tables, Index, and Concordance at end.

NN copy has no date on title pages. NN has another copy (Arents Collection) in 54 fascicles, as originally issued.

This work was originally announced in 1843, and was issued in 54 numbers at 25¢ each. J. A. Adams, the engraver, is credited with having taken the first electrotype in America from a woodcut. Many in this Bible are so done. Artists were engaged for more than six years in the preparation of the designs and engravings included in this Bible, at a cost of over $20,000. (O'Callaghan, p 288.)

Frank Weitenkampf writes in The Boston Public Library Quarterly (July 1958, p 154–157): "The engravings after Chapman carefully reproduced the prim line-work of the drawings. There was very little of the tone-work made possible by the 'white line' method of the Englishman Bewick, introduced here by Alexander Anderson. . . . However, this Harper publication was a remarkable production for its time and place, and retains its importance in the annals of American book-making. W. J. Linton, noted wood-engraver and author, knew 'no other book like this, so good, so perfect in all it undertakes.' The illustrations are like picturings of history, as are so many of the old European Biblical paintings and illustrations."

The text corresponds in all respects with that of the 1833 Bible Annual (No 827). Has frontispiece to each Testament, Names and Order of Books, and Chronological Order of Books. Copyright 1833, by James Conner and William R. Cooke.

Also issued with illuminated title or without any year on title page.

"Mr. Conner having decided on stereotyping an elegant edition of the Polyglott Bible (12mo), he got up a new size and style of type called Agate, cut in a condensed and compressed manner; the intention being to admit of a certain number of figures and points coming within a given space — the whole included within a center column of notes. Of this Bible he made several sets of plates from the same composition; then took out the references and center column of notes, and completed many sets of an 18mo Bible, and a proportionate number of plates for the New Testament. 5 vols: Vol I, (x) (175); Vol II, 168 p; Vol III, 153 p; Vol IV, 149 p; Vol V, (135) 136–147 23 cm NNAB

Volume First, The Book of Genesis, preceded by Preface. Volume Second, The Book of Exodus. Volume Third, The Book of Leviticus. Volume Fourth, The Book of Numbers. Volume Fifth, The Book of Deuteronomy, with Contents of the five volumes, Directions for the Reading of the Law, and a Postscript at end. A mock title page for the Pentateuch (lacking in cited copy) precedes the individual title to each volume. The Hebrew text is on the right opening, and the parallel English version on the left, both in paragraph form. The facing pages are numbered separately (the Arabic figures one ahead of the Hebrew). A few notes are placed at the foot of the English pages. The Haphtoroth to the text, and also for various Sabbaths and festivals, are given at the end of each volume. Entered in the year 1845, by Isaac Leeser. The Postscript to Vol v is dated Tebeth 10th, 5506/January 8th, 1846.

Issued in two formats, octavo and duodecimo.

Rabbi Isaac Leeser (1806–1868) received Talmudic instruction and linguistic training in his native Germany. After coming to this country at the age of 17, he assisted his uncle, a merchant at Richmond, Va. When some articles he had written in defense of Judaism attracted attention, he was invited in 1829 to become hazzan, or precentor, of the Congregation Mikveh Israel at Philadelphia. The next year he began to deliver sermons and became recognized as the pioneer of the Jewish pulpit in this country. His Collected Discourses were published in ten volumes in 1867.

Rabbi Leeser had long hoped to prepare an English version of the Holy Scriptures for his fellow Jews. About 1838 he announced his project, and began publishing at his own expense seven years later. Concerning the style of his translation, Rabbi Leeser wrote (in Postscript to Deuteronomy, p 147) that "it has been the Editor's endeavor to furnish as nearly as possible, a literal transcript of the Hebrew, and any harshness which may have hence resulted, he trusts, will be kindly overlooked for the fidelity to the original. . . ."

While he made full use of the works of German writers from Mendelssohn on, he refrained from consulting with English-speaking Jews. His only acknowledgment among English writers is to the editor of Bagster's Comprehensive Bible, William Greenfield. He adopted the German and Hebrew text of Wolf Heidenheim, published between 1818–1821, for his edition of the Pentateuch.

In addition to the translation, he also produced, with the help of Joseph Jaquett, an Episcopal priest, an edition of the Hebrew Bible in 1849, the first American edition with Masoretic notes.

Minion 18mo, first edition. The plates were prepared "after a well known Oxford Bible of that size. From the compact form and yet bold and distinct letter there is little doubt that this book will soon have an extensive circulation." It was in 1845 that the ABS began a new practice of owning its own steam presses and doing its own printing. Formerly it had paid a printer even though the work was done in its own building. "The new presses procured are six in number and of two sorts, three of Adams (a Boston press) and three of Hoe & Co., of New-York . . . . The former is best adapted to nice, fine work; the latter executes with great rapidity, at the rate of 28 tokens each per day, enough for 392 nonpareil Bibles or 1260 small Testaments. It is computed that the six presses, running twelve hours a day, can print of the various sizes and qualities of books issued by the Society not far from 200,000 Bibles and 380,000 Testaments per annum." 1 vol: (8) 9–397 (4) 23 cm NNAB

Preliminary matter (in roman type) includes Recommendations; Preface; A Phonetic Alphabet of the English Language, Graphic and Typic, by Andrew Comstock, M.D.; and Remarks on the Phonetic Alphabet. The text is printed in a phonetic alphabet from a specially cut font of type. The transliteration of the title, as above, is only an approximation.

1848 The New Testament . . . Translated from the Greek, Into Pure English; with Explanatory Notes, on Certain Passages, Wherein the Author Differs from Other Translators. By Jonathan Morgan . . . S. H. Colesworthy: Portland; B. B. Mussey: Boston; P. Price: New York; J. Gihon: Philadelphia; A. T. Ames: Cincinnatti [sic]; Noble and Dean: Louisville 1389

Reported as (ix) 11–307 19 cm ICU, MeHi, NBuG, NcAS

Stereotype edition. The orthography is reported to be somewhat curious.

Jonathan Morgan was a lawyer and inventor in Portland, Maine, best remembered as an eccentric who wore a weird wide hat, a long cloak, and huge goggles. A printer who had set type for his Testament wrote that he was a constant attendant of the Universalist Church and possibly one of its founders. He loved to ask questions that were very difficult to answer. He seems to have been inactive as a lawyer and while his inventions were ingenious, he did not perfect them or profit from them. He patented a coffee grinder with a long handle and devised a brick steamboat. When his NT was being set he became interested in the plate-making process — at that time a plaster cast was submerged for nearly a whole day in molten type metal — and invented a "chemical card of papier maché" which, unfortunately, was consumed in the hot metal. In his translation, he modified some of the language of the AV and left in Greek some words on which translators differed. (Post Scrapbook IV, p 105.) This is a sample of his work: "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt hath perished, with what shall it be salted? thenceforth it is good for nothing, if not to be outcast and downtrodden of men." — Mt. 5:13. While Morgan made several attempts at spelling reform, the only instances appearing on two pages examined (p 14 and 15) is the use of ä to separate vowels in Judeä and liäble.

Preface signed by N. N. Whiting, Williamsburgh, Long Island. Text in paragraph form, with "controverted" texts printed in brackets.

Rev. Nathan N. Whiting was an Adventist. His translation is based on the Greek text of J. A. H. Tittmann as revised by Aug. Hahn and edited by Prof. Edward Robinson, 1842. The variations from the common version are few. In the Preface Whiting states: "Where the language of the common English version was not obscure, and where it gave the proper signification of the original it has been adopted." This is an "immersion" version.

1849 The Four Gospels, Translated from the Latin Vulgate, and Diligently Compared with the Original Greek Text, Being a Revision of the Rhemish Translation, with Notes Critical and Explanatory. By Francis Patrick Kenrick. Bishop of Philadelphia . . . Edward Dunigan & Brother: New-York 1414

572 p 24 cm DGU, NN, NNAB

The Four Gospels: Map of Palestine, Dedication to the Bishops of the seventh Provincial Council, Synopsis of the Gospels; Explanations; half title; General Preface; and Preface to St. Matthew precede text. Notes below text. Preface to each Gospel. No Approbation.

"A few years ago, a new version of the four gospels, made directly from the Greek . . . was published in England by . . . Dr. [John] Lingard . . . I have freely availed myself of his labors. . . ." (General Preface, p 29.)

This is the first appearance of the Kenrick Version. Francis Patrick Kenrick (1797–1863) was born in Ireland and received his theological training at the College of the Propaganda in Rome. He came to the United States about 1820 to assume the chair of theology at Bardstown Seminary in Kentucky. He was consecrated Bishop of Philadelphia in 1830 and was transferred to the See of Baltimore in 1851. His brother, Peter Richard, became Archbishop of St. Louis. Dr. Kenrick undertook a revision of the Rheims-Douay Bible, after it was decided at the Provincial Council of Baltimore in 1829 to prepare a revision of that translation. His work was published in parts over the period 1849–1860: The Four Gospels (1849); Acts-Revelation (see 1851, No 1484); Psalms, Books of Wisdom, and Canticle of Canticles (see 1857?, No 1665); Job-Prophets (see 1859, No 1708); Pentateuch (see 1860, No 1729); The Historical Books (see 1860, No 1730). The complete New Testament (revised) (see No 1761) was published in one volume in 1862. The revision is based on the Latin Vulgate and Rheims-Douay version. In the Introduction to the Pentateuch (p ix) Dr. Kenrick notes: "In revising the Douai translation I have constantly had in view the Hebrew original, which, however, I did not always feel at liberty to render closely where it would imply a departure from the Vulgate."

Pica Octavo, the first of a series of "standard editions." In 1847 the attention of the Committee on Versions had been called to the fact that there were minor variations among the English Bibles issued by the ABS and also by other publishers, mainly in the matter of the use of italics, punctuation, and capitalization. Italics had been used in the King James Bible to show that certain words not actually appearing in the Hebrew or Greek text were inserted to make sense in English; in black letter editions these were in small roman letters. The page headings also varied somewhat as it was necessary to revise them with most new settings since the Biblical material appearing on any page would be different. Changes seem to have been made by various printers, although American printers such as Isaac Collins claimed to have based their texts on the best Oxford and Cambridge editions, particularly the Oxford University Press edition of 1769 edited by Dr. Benjamin Blayney.

In 1847, the Board charged a committee to investigate the matter and prepare for the ABS a more accurate text, one in which the page headings and chapter summaries used only words and expressions found in the text. The Society's Royal Octavo Bible of 1833 (No 822) was to be compared with recent copies from London (BFBS?), Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh, and with the original 1611 edition. The results of a 3½ years' study were published in the Annual Report for 1852 (p 28–37). The Committee's report pointed out that although 24,000 variations had been found among the six copies examined, "there is not one, which mars the integrity of the text, or affects any doctrine or precept of the Bible" (p 36).

The New Testament cited above was the first result of the report. It was followed in 1852 by the Bourgeois Octavo Reference Bible (No 1504) which was voted at the annual meeting of May 1851 to be the Society's standard.

Preface signed by C. & W., New York, April 1850.

The Rev. Spencer H. Cone, D.D. (1785–1855) had been a teacher, actor, and journalist before being converted in 1814, after which he became a Baptist preacher. He was a Corresponding Secretary of the American Bible Society from 1833 to 1836 (when he became involved in the controversy over "immerse" editions) and was active in the founding of the American and Foreign Bible Society, serving as its president. In 1850, he was influential in founding the American Bible Union, an organization of Baptists interested in the publication of an improved version of the New Testament in English, and of which he was also president. (See 1862–63, No 1764.) The Rev. Henry William Wyckoff (1807–1876) was editor of The Baptist Advocate and minister of the Laight Street Baptist Church in New York. He was also active in the organization of the American and Foreign Bible Society and the American Bible Union.

The Cone-Wyckoff revision of the NT was based on the original Greek and the work of numerous commentators during the previous 200 years. The editors claimed to "have removed many of the most objectionable blemishes and so far made a good translation better," along with having made "several hundred emendations." It was an "immersion" version.

Dr. Cone was eager to have the version made available and in 1851 it was published "at the expense of a few benevolent individuals." Its publication at private expense grew out of the controversy then existing regarding the refusal of organizations, such as the ABS, to print sectarian versions. The revision was to serve until a more satisfactory work could be provided and the plates were to be offered to the AFBS for wide distribution for purposes of criticism and correction of the text.

ICN, NN, and NNAB have 1851 reprints by E. H. Tripp, New York (iv, 394 p). O'Callaghan (p 361) lists 1857 reprint, also by Tripp.

1851 The New Testament; or, The Book of the Holy Gospel of our Lord and our God, Jesus the Messiah. A Literal Translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D.D. [Stereotyped by Billin & Brothers. M'Gown, Printer.] Published by Stanford and Swords, No. 137 Broadway: New York 1477 outer margin. Appendix I, Distribution of the Syriac New Testament into Lessons, and Appendix II, The Syriac Translations of the Scriptures, at end. Copyright 1851 by James Murdock.

James Murdock (1776–1856) graduated from Yale College and entered the Congregational ministry. He was later professor of Ancient Languages at the University of Vermont, and professor of Sacred Rhetoric and Ecclesiastical History at Andover Theological Seminary. In 1828 he retired to devote himself exclusively to the study of church history, orientalia, and philosophy. Among his many undertakings was the translation of the NT into English from the Syriac. In the Preface, Mr. Murdock states that his aim was to accomplish a literal translation in idiomatic English (modelled after the AV) in Saxon rather than Latin phraseology, using English forms of proper names from the Peshito. The translation was considered a faithful and scholarly one, and was well and widely received.

Reprinted in 1852 with portrait of translator (NNAB) and in 1855. Issued with imprint of Robert Carter & Brothers: New York, various years from 1858 to 1879 (NNAB has 1859 copy). Horace L. Hastings of Boston reprinted it in 1892 (BM). In an 1893 "sixth edition" he contributed a historical introduction and sketch of the translator; a bibliographical appendix by Dr. Isaac H. Hall takes the place of Murdock's Appendix II (xlviii, 507 p, 23 cm, NNAB).

Of the Gospels, only Matthew is included. Divisions are entitled as follows. The Gospel of Matthew — "The Good News of Salvation According to Matthew"; The Acts — "The Doings of the Commissioners"; the Epistles — "The Letter of Paul to the Romans," etc. The object of the author of this edition was "to benefit the rising generation by presenting to them the Holy Scriptures . . . in an idiom with which they are familiar. . . ." (From Introduction, as quoted in Cheek, p 33.) Cheek (p 71) goes on to say that "if the KJ itself was not used as a basis, Woodruff had a text very close to it."

Rheims-Douay Version. Haydock text edited by Husenbeth. Has colored title page and added engraved title pages. Family Record follows OT. Verso of Dedication has Certificate of Accuracy signed by F. C. Husenbeth, Vicar General in the Eastern District of England and Canon of the English Chapter, dated 1850. All the Approbations on the following two leaves are by clergymen of the British Isles. NT imprinted Virtue, Emmins and Roberts, 26 John Street. Illustrated with 43 plates.

O'Callaghan (p 329) says this work was originally printed at Bungay in Suffolk, England, and published in London, 1853, in two volumes with 51 engravings. The plates were later imported into this country and the work issued in New York in 36 numbers. The copy he describes adds London to the NT imprint, has two pages with the Approbations of three American Archbishops and seven Bishops, and includes one engraving not in the NNAB copy. Father Parsons says it contains many errors.

[1853–56] The Family Bible . . . With brief notes and instructions by Rev. Justin Edwards . . . Including the references and marginal readings of the Polyglot Bible . . . published by the American Tract Society: New York . . . and Boston 1530

3 vols: Vol I, (664); Vol II, 665–1166; Vol III, (441) 665–766 24 cm NNAB

All volumes are undated. Vol I (copyright 1853) Genesis-Job. Vol II (copyright 1856) Psalms-Malachi, followed by Family Record. Vol III, the matching NT, seems to be a reprint of the 1851 edition (No 1476) with the addition of Tables (p 426–441) and Psalms (AV, p 665–766). The NT title does not mention Justin Edwards.

The object as stated on the verso of title "is to assist common readers to understand the meaning of the Holy Spirit in the Bible. . . ." It also announces the second volume of the OT in preparation, the NT having already been published.

Nonpareil Duodecimo prepared for Sunday Schools, with new ABS standard text and shorter chapter summaries. See 1850 NT, No 1443.

This must have been one of the first Bibles prepared in the new Bible House at Astor Place, opposite Cooper Union, to which the Society moved in 1853. The ABS's earliest depositories from 1816 to 1823 were in various locations on Nassau and Cedar Streets, Cliff near Fulton, and Sloat Lane (Hanover Street) near Exchange; in 1823 it built a new home on Nassau Street which, with various additions, was occupied until 1853. In this fine six-story building all printing and distributing operations could be carried on and the income derived from rented space used to cover maintenance costs. For an interesting description of the publishing processes in the 1860s, see the chapter entitled "For Christians to Read," in Mark Twain's Travels with Mr. Brown (Knopf 1940, p 202–209), in which Twain describes his visit to the building in 1867. The ABS moved most of its activities from the Astor Place building in 1936 and in 1953 the building was sold. It was demolished in 1956 to make way for new buildings for Cooper Union.

1163 p 40 cm NNAB

Imperial Quarto, the first ABS pulpit Bible. Has references and chronology. The text, based on the new standard text (see 1852, No 1504), was carefully prepared by a collator and compared with Oxford, Cambridge, and Queen's printers' editions. The ABS Report for 1856 (p 37) proclaimed it the best edition since 1611. The Board was so proud of this standard edition that it voted to grant a copy "to each theological seminary, or college having a theological or Biblical department." Originally priced at $10 or $12, depending on the binding.

NNAB also has an 1868 corrected copy.

A new edition of Wilbur's Reference Bible; see 1826, No 559. In the preface, the editor states: "In presenting to the public this copy of a stereotype edition of Wilbur's Reference Bible, in quarto, the Publishers feel themselves warranted in saying, that it possesses many advantages over any other quarto Bible now in the market. The Text has been carefully compared with the standard edition of the American Bible Society, which (from its frequent critical readings) is believed to be the most correct copy now in circulation. Canne's References and Readings will be found to be uncommonly correct, and are placed in a centre column, on the plan of the Polyglot Bible, by which arrangement they are not so liable to injury, or to be rendered illegible by becoming filled with ink, as when placed in the margin of the page."

"The duodecimo copy of this work having passed through six editions in a very short time, and public feeling appearing to demand a larger size of it for Family use, the Editor feels it due himself and others, to enter into some details of illustration, respecting the manner in which this work was intended to aid in the acquisition of scripture knowledge. . . . Renewed acknowledgments are here tendered to Rev. Dr. Miller of Princeton, Rev. Professor Goodrich of New-Haven, Rev. Justin Edwards, D.D. of Boston, and Messrs. J. E. Worcester and J. W. Gibbs for the assistance received from them in preparing the Tables. By the politeness of Professor G. access has been had to a new work from Edinburgh, from which important aid has been obtained in the application of Walker's general principles of pronunciation. Dr. Miller has revised the pronouncing vocabulary. . . ."

Pica Reference Octavo, the first printing of the new ABS standard text in this size. This edition was planned for family reading and for use in the conference or lecture room (ABS Report 1857, p 33). Its text conformed strictly to that of the 1856 Imperial Quarto (No 1602).

The ABS was proud of its new standard text (1852, No 1504) and had in fact sent copies to eminent citizens and to sovereigns all over the world. No word of criticism of this careful collation had been raised until an Episcopalian minister in Baltimore, the Rev. A. C. Coxe, published in January 1857 a pamphlet accusing the Society of violating its constitutional limitation to distributing the Scriptures "without note or comment," particularly by changing chapter summaries and running heads. The Society's defenders pointed out that the 1611 edition chapter summaries and page headings contained a good deal of interpretation which the editors had attempted to eliminate. The ABS reprinted from its 1851 Report the full report of the Committee that had supervised and recommended the standard text. (See 1850 NT, No 1443.) There was a good deal of comment in the newspapers and religious periodicals, largely reflecting a general lack of information on the history of the English Bible and problems of publication. A long unsigned article in the Biblical Repository and Princeton Review of July 1857 (p 507–542) summarized many objections of which the chief was to the changes in chapter summaries, although the writer admitted that the greater number of editions distributed by the ABS did not contain references and that many of the non-reference editions carried shortened summaries. The Committee on Versions issued a report in 1858 defending its work and pointing out the variations in such material in all American editions, as well as the fact that these accessories were not part of the Hebrew and Greek texts. Feeling within the Board of Managers ran high, most of the Committee on Versions resigned, and a new committee was formed to prepare a new standard text.

The above Pica Reference Octavo was the text in which the changes were to be made. All changes were printed in two pamphlets and first appeared in the NTs of 1860 (No 1736 and No 1739) and the Bibles of 1861 (No 1747 and No 1748). This remained the standard of the ABS until 1932 (see No 2328). The plates for existing editions of the new standard of 1852 were changed to contain the corrections. For further information, see ABS Report 1852 (p 28–37) and ABS Report 1858 (p 31–41); also Statements and Documents concerning the recent action of The Board of Managers of the American Bible Society, touching the Standard Edition of the English Scriptures, as circulated by that Society, published by Members of the Late Committee on Versions (pamphlet printed by John F. Trow: New York 1858; 112 p, 22 cm — bound with ABS Reports 1861–63).

Preface (dated 1858) and Order of Books precede text. Text printed in paragraph form, divided into sections, with section numbers indented in matching type. Verse numbers omitted. The Epistles are arranged in chronological order and Hebrews comes just before Revelation. Copyright 1858.

MB has second edition 1860, Walker, Wise & Co.: Boston. The text was revised to conform with the 1858 printing of Tischendorf's text. NNAB has third edition 1861 (twelfth thousand), with additional improvements. A new translation of Sawyer's NT was issued in 1891 (No 2048).

The Rev. Leicester Ambrose Sawyer (1807–1898) was ordained a Presbyterian minister in 1832, but later joined the Congregational Church and then the Unitarian. In 1864 he became pastor of the First Catholic Congregational Church (Independent) of Boston and called himself a Christian Rationalist. His translation is based on the Tischendorf Greek text of Leipzig, 1850. The Preface states that the translation is "a strict literal rendering," aiming "to express the original with the utmost clearness, force and precision. It adopts a thoroughly modern style, except for the prayers, and makes freely whatever changes are necessary for this purpose." He also published an Introduction to the New Testament (1883) and Final Theology (1891).

In the Preface (p vi–vii) Sawyer praised individual work in Bible translation, saying: "It is an unfortunate result of King James's translation of the Bible by an imposing council of learned men, that it has tended to discourage individual effort in respect to a labor of this kind, and to create a prejudice against it as necessarily incompetent and untrustworthy. . . . But there are great works which individuals can perform better than multitudes or councils. Councils did not make the Bible at first. It was made by individuals, each man acting for himself, and giving utterance to the mighty thoughts that God had given him. A council did not make Paradise Lost, and could not; nor has a council ever produced any immortal work of genius or learning, unless it is the English Bible of King James. . . . As individuals, therefore, have generally been the prosecutors of literary enterprises, in the department of Bible translation no less than in other departments, and as individuals have been eminently successful and useful in this department of labor heretofore, both in England and other countries, let it be hoped that they may be again."

For Sawyer's version of the OT parts, see 1861, No 1745; also 1864, No 1781, and 1883, No 2001.

In paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in left margin and variant renderings at foot of page. The Books in each volume are separately paged. There is no Preface.

Vol I, Matthew-Acts; Index at end (2, 123, 80, 134, 99, 130, 31 p). Vol II, Romans-Revelation; Index at end (2, 55, 53, 35, 19, 19, 14, 14, 13, 8, 16, 13, 8, 5, 42, 16, 16, 12, 16, 4, 4, 6, 64, 122 p).

O'Callaghan (p 368) lists a copy in 4 vols with Horne's Introduction (revised by Samuel Prideux Tregelles) and Student's Memorandum Book. NNAB has 1856 volume (108 p, 15 cm) containing Matthew, with Stockton's Baltimore imprint, stereotyped by L. Johnson & Co., Philadelphia, and printed by T. K. & P. G. Collins. O'Callaghan (p 352) lists a similar edition of Matthew, but with 123 p of text, p 124 blank, Index on p 125–130, and 1 leaf and an Appendix containing Horne's Introduction to St. Matthew.

The Divine Library was evidently the project of the Rev. Thomas H. Stockton who lived in Baltimore in 1853–57 and whose dates, according to the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore, are 1808–1868. For specimen number, see 1854, No 1559.

1 vol: (157) (10) 158–320 22 cm NNAB

Order of Books and Introductory Remarks and Explanations by the Spirit of Jesus Christ precede text. Text is printed in verse form, double column. Has Family Record and article, New Dispensation by the Spirit of Christ. Two colored plates, one of which shows the "King of Kings" on a white horse, much in the style of George III. Copyright 1861, by Leonard Thorn.

This translation is based on the AV. The Introduction informs us that Jesus and the Apostles came in spirit and revised and corrected the Books of the NT. In accordance with these corrections, the above Testament was accomplished by mediums through a superior medium. Several Books are shortened. Romans contains only seven chapters, Revelation only three, and Hebrews is entirely omitted. The text is changed throughout. Several pages containing a New Dispensation by the Spirit of Christ, which is intended for spiritualists, are added. See Simms, p 239.

The following appears in the Introductory Remarks and Explanations by the Spirit of Jesus Christ (p 3): "I was born about 1861 years since, in the town of Bethlehem, in Judea. . . . I was about thirty years and four months old when I began to preach. . . . I, Jesus, came in spirit bodily, and revised and corrected the first four books of the new testament, namely, Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, and also the Revelations. . . ."

Copy presented to NNAB in 1865 by S. Ide of Claremont, N. H., with note across title that he had printed thousands of these.

1862 The Holy Bible, Translated from the Latin Vulgate . . . First Published by the English College at Douay . . . 1609, and the New Testament . . . at Rheims . . . 1582. With Notes, Selected by Geo. Leo Haydock. E. Dunigan & Brother: New York 1757

Reported as 1667 p 34 cm CtY

Rheims-Douay Version. Probably same as Dunigan's 1852 edition (No 1485) in spite of difference in pagination. Has added engraved title pages to both Testaments. Illustrated.

1862 The Holy Bible . . . American Bible Society . . . : New York 1758

1 vol: (855) (262) 19 cm NNAB

Minion Duodecimo with revised ABS standard text. No chapter summaries or page headings; rules around text. As there had been no printing since 1922, the plates were scrapped in 1942.

The OT was published separately in 1863, particularly for Jews. (ABS Reports, 1860, p 29; 1861, p 27; 1863, p 26.) NNAB also has separate NT.

1862 The Holy Bible . . . American Bible Society . . . : New York 1759

1 vol: (879) (272) 19 cm NNAB

Minion 16mo. A squarish book, evidently printed from the same type as previous item (No 1758) but with chapter summaries and page headings.

1862 The Holy Bible . . . American Bible Society . . . : New York 1760

1 vol: (771) (243) 15 cm NNAB

Pearl Reference 18mo with revised ABS standard text.

1862 The New Testament. Translated from the Latin Vulgate, and Diligently Compared with the Original Greek Text. With Notes, Critical and Explanatory, by Francis Patrick Kenrick . . . Second Edition, Revised and Corrected . . . Kelly, Hedian & Piet: Baltimore 1761

1 vol: (xv) 17–861 24 cm DCU, MB, NN, NNAB

Bishop Kenrick's Version; see 1849, No 1414. Introduction (dated May 1862), Explanations, Index, Tables of Epistles and Gospels to be Read on Sundays and Holy Days, and Preface to St. Matthew precede text. Copyright 1862 by Francis Patrick Kenrick.

1862 The New Testament, From the Family Bible: With Brief Notes and Instructions Designed to Give the Results of Critical Investigation . . . The References and Marginal Readings of the Polyglott Bible . . . Published by the American Tract Society: New York 1762

1 vol: (781) 782–800 17 cm NN, NNAB, OCU

Two maps in color and General Introduction to the Gospels precede text. Synopsis of Robinson's Harmony of the Gospels and Chronological Index at end. Copyright 1862.

Also issued with The Bible, God's Gift for Men, signed by J. E.; The Harmony and Perfection of the Holy Scriptures, signed by T.C.; and the Synopsis of Robinson's Harmony before text.

1862 The New Testament . . . [Printed by Wood, Hanleiter Rice & Co., Atlanta, Ga.]. Confederate States Bible Society, Instituted in the Year 1862: Augusta 1763

13 cm CSmH, MBAt, MiU, NcD, NjP, NNAB, PPL–R

Appears to be from identical plates as the Tennessee Bible Society NT of 1861 (No 1752) but with new title pages. Order of Books precedes text. Contains the Book of Psalms with separate title page.

Also published without the Psalms.

The Confederate States Bible Society was organized in 1862. In an effort to secure Testaments, the Society tried to import Bibles and Testaments from the British and Foreign Bible Society. NNAB has a Gospel of Luke published by the BFBS that was one of those that ran the blockade. For details see Harold R. Willoughby, Soldiers' Bibles through Three Centuries, University of Chicago Press 1944, p 27–30.

1862–63 The New Testament . . . The Common English Version, Corrected by the Final Committee of the American Bible Union . . . American Bible Union: New York 1764

2 vols: Part I, (iv) (326); Part II, (iv) 327–540 15 cm MiU, MWA, NN

Part I (1862) the Gospels. Part II (1863) Acts–II Corinthians. No separate copy of Part III (Galatians-Revelation) has been located nor does an examination of The Bible Union Quarterly for the period indicate such publication. For 1-vol edition with complete NT text, see 1864, No 1787.

This is the first appearance of the American Bible Union Version. The ABU was formed in 1850 by Baptists who were not satisfied with the conservative attitude of the American and Foreign Bible Society (see 1838, No 1007) and were eager for an English "immerse" version. The revision was well underway by 1855, several tentative editions having been published for circulation and comment, particularly the work of Orrin B. Judd and John Lillie. Plans for lithographing the manuscripts were considered but abandoned. In 1857 Dr. Thomas J. Conant and Horatio B. Hackett were secured for the Final Committee. They were later joined by E. Rödiger and G. R. Bliss, and in 1862 by Dr. A. C. Kendrick (see 1842 Bernard Bible, No 1134), but other translators were responsible for the early work. The "Second Revision" was issued in 1866 (No 1804). These revisions appear, through comparison of the texts, to be of a progressive nature. Some of the more radical renderings of the provisional issues were softened in the 1863–64 text (No 1773) but the total effect was to produce a version which became, with each revision, increasingly independent of its basis, the "common" or Authorized Version. Outstanding was the prominence given to the rendering of baptizo. See the detailed study by Conant, published as an appendix to Matthew, 1860 and then to the Four Gospels, 1861.

The standard form for the "Revised English Scriptures with Notes" (the legend on the front cover of the quarto parts listed below) consisted of (1) an introduction; (2) the text pages carrying the King James Version, the Greek or Hebrew text, and the Revised text in three parallel columns, verse by verse, with notes to the text in double columns; and (3) the Revised text printed separately in paragraph form. The Greek text was printed from Bagster's edition of Mill's edition of Stephanus' third edition (1550). Of the several OT parts published, only Job (1857) and provisional issues from 1858 to 1864 carry the subsidiary imprint of the Bible Revision Association, Louisville. Ephesians and the 1864 reprint of John also have added imprint of the American Christian Bible Society, Cincinnati. The London agents were Trübner and Co. Many of the parts were also published serially in the monthly Bible Union Reporter before bound publication.

During the Civil War, thousands of Gospels in the ABU Version were distributed to the soldiers, in "convenient size and shape for a side-pocket." In 1864 the ABU was suggesting these for distribution to immigrants and in 1865, to freed slaves. NNAB has none of these Gospels.

NRCR–S has considerable manuscript material relating to the ABU Version. For further information, see Documentary History: consisting of a reprint of its constitution, annual reports, quarterly papers . . . etc., in the form of the Bible Union Quarterly, edited by W. H. Wyckoff and C. A. Buckbee, 4 vols.

In 1882 and 1883, the American Bible Union passed over its work to the American Baptist Publication Society. See 1891 Improved Edition, No 2048.

1864 The New Testament. Translated from the Original Greek, by H. T. Anderson . . . [Stereotyped by the Franklin Type Foundry, Cincinnati, Ohio]. Published for the Author: Cincinnati 1785

569 p 21 cm DLC, IU, NcAS, NN, NNAB, OC

Dedication and Preface, signed H. T. Anderson, Harrodsburg, Ky., 1864, precede text. Copyright 1864, by H. T. Anderson.

The Rev. Henry Tompkins Anderson (1812–1872), a minister of the Disciples of Christ and at one time a pastor in Louisville, Kentucky, was the translator of this NT. It does not seem to follow any particular text but is an "immersion" version. His aim was "to express the Truth of God as it is contained in the original . . . in the English language as now spoken." The language is for the most part that of the AV, and the translator says that whenever the AV expressed the sense of the original "in good English" he has adopted it.

A revised edition was issued in 1866 (No 1805) and an edition was printed in England in 1867. After publication of Tischendorf's Greek NT, showing readings of the Codex Sinaiticus, Anderson began a new translation. It was completed shortly before his death but not published until 1918? (No 2243).

1865 The Emphatic Diaglott: Containing the Original Greek text of what is commonly styled the New Testament, according to the recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlineary word for word English Translation; a new Emphatic Version, based on the Interlineary Translation, on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript together with illustrative and explanatory footnotes, and a copious set of references to the whole of which is added a valuable alphabetical appendix. By Benjamin Wilson . . . Published by the Author: Geneva, Illinois 1792

Reported as (iv) 419 leaves; 44 p 17 cm DLC, ICU

The interlinear English translation is printed in small type below the Greek, with the Emphatic Version in a narrower column at the right. Notes, references, etc. below text. Words rendered emphatic by the Greek article are printed in small capitals; Greek emphatic substantive pronouns are translated in black letters. Adjectives and pronouns only comparatively emphatic are translated with the initial letter in capitals and so are the translations of all Greek substantives. According to the Preface (dated Aug 1864) the work was first issued in parts to subscribers. Copyright 1864, by B. Wilson (b. 1817).

DLC has card listing first edition, New York 1864, but no copy has been located. Later editions were issued by Fowler and Wells, New York in 1865 (MH-AH); by Samuel R. Wells, New York in 1870 (NNAB, NNUT); and again by Fowler and Wells in 1883 and 1902 (both NNAB). In 1902 the text was endorsed by the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society and offered at reduced price with a year's subscription to Zion's Watch Tower. See 1927 NT, No 2291; also 1942 NT, No 2402.

Wells also printed in 1878 Wilson's Accompaniment to International S. S. Lessons Third and Fourth Quarters, 1878. Studies in Luke . . . With Alphabetical Appendix of Names, Weights, Coins, Words and Phrases, which included the front matter, text, and appendix as in the above NT (unpaged, 20 cm, NNAB, NjNbS).

1867 The Holy Scriptures, Translated and corrected by the Spirit of Revelation, by Joseph Smith, Jr., the Seer . . . [Westcott & Thomson, Stereotypers, Philada.]. Published by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Joseph Smith, I. L. Rogers, E. Robinson, Publishing Committee: Plano, Illinois 1817

Later editions have varying imprints. From 1881, when the headquarters were moved from Plano, Illinois, Lamoni, Iowa appears on title page but copyright date is 1867. From 1892, Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints: Lamoni, Iowa appears in imprint (CtY has 1909 copy; ICMcC has 1920 one). From 1921, place of publication is altered to Independence, Missouri (NN has 1925 copy). From 1936, title page reads Inspired Version. The Holy Scriptures . . . Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Herald Publishing House: Independence, Missouri; no copyright. For this edition new plates were made from the old by photographic process, the page being enlarged from 4½ × 6¾ inches to 5 × 8¼ inches. (NNAB has 1936 copy with Concordance and maps; for corrected and reset edition, see 1944, No 2425.)

Joseph Smith (1805–1844), founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), based his version of the Bible on a "direct revelation" which he first received in June 1830. The following extracts concerning his work are quoted from the Preface of the above edition:

> As concerning the manner of translation and correction, it is evident, from the MSS. and the testimony of those who were conversant with the facts, that it was done by direct revelation from God.
>
> It was begun in June, 1830, and was finished July 2, 1833. . . . The MSS., at his death, in 1844, were left in the hands of his widow, where they remained until the spring of 1866, when they were delivered to Wm. Marks, I. L. Rogers, and Wm. W. Blair, a Committee . . . to procure them for publication; and were by them delivered to the Committee of Publication, consisting of Joseph Smith [Jr.], Israel L. Rogers, and Ebenezer Robinson, and are now presented as they came into our hands.

On Smith's death the church split and this text is that of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Independence, Missouri). The Utah group continued to use the King James Version.

American Unitarian Association: Boston 1845

1 vol: (vi) (570) 20 cm ICU, MdBP, MiU, MWA, NB, NN, NNAB

Noyes Version; see 1827, No 592. Preface, Editorial Note, and Table of Books precede text. Text printed in single column, paragraph form, with verse numbers in left margin. Copyright 1868.

It was Noyes's aim "to make a version more free from wholly or nearly obsolete words and phrases," and at the same time "to retain . . . the savor and spirit of our familiar version." This NT was translated from the text of Tischendorf, using the eighth critical edition up to Luke 18:9, the second edition of his Synopsis Evangelica to the end of the Gospel of John, and the seventh edition of 1859 for the remainder. In the Preface, Dr. Noyes asks the reader "to bear in mind the Greek text which I have followed; otherwise some of my departures from the Common Version might seem to be unnecessary or arbitrary." The NT was published posthumously, although the translator had given the complete MS to the printer and had revised the proof sheets to the end of Philippians. Ezra Abbot completed this work, added a few notes, and appended a list of readings from Tischendorf's eighth edition through the sixth chapter of John.

Reprints were issued in 1870, 1873, 1878, and 1880. NNAB has 1870 and 1878 editions.

1871 [The Holy Bible] Hitchcock's New and Complete Analysis of the Holy Bible: or the Whole of the Old and New Testaments Arranged According to Subjects in Twenty-Seven Books on the Basis of Matthew Talbot, as Improved with Indexes, Tables, etc. by Nathaniel West . . . Revised and Edited by Rev. Roswell D. Hitchcock . . . A. J. Johnson: New York 1868

1 vol: v-xlvii [1] (685) [1] 687–1159 [1] (8) (19) [1] 28 cm NNAB

Frontispiece, Dedication, Preface signed by Hitchcock, Publisher's Announcement (including letter from Fred B. Perkins) are all dated 1869. The frontispiece, The Entrance of Thy Words Giveth Light, drawn by Thomas Nast and engraved by R. Kupfer, symbolically shows man's progress with a missionary leading a heathen from his idols. Nast's name appears also on three other less original engravings. Explanation and Contents precede text, which is arranged according to subject. Full Bible texts are printed under each subject. Cruden's Concordance, Dictionaries, Tables, etc., History of Bible, Family Record, and Recommendations at end. Copyright by A. J. Johnson, 1869. Printer's notice (Wynkoop & Hallenbeck).

1870 copy ascribed to NN could not be located in 1959.

This analysis was first prepared by "a wealthy currier of England," Matthew Talbot, and published about 1800. The material was arranged by subject in thirty Books divided into chapters and sections, giving every verse in the Bible but once. The two indexes (one really a table of contents, the other alphabetical) were inadequate. A plagiarized edition was published in 1848 by an Englishman named Whowell as Analogy of the Old and New Testament Systematically Classified. In 1853 came Nathaniel West's revision of Talbot's work, in which there was little change except that West included twelve verses that Talbot had inadvertently omitted (making a total of 31,173) and added a Consulting Apparatus of nine tables and indexes — a great labor but of considerable practical value.

A. J. Johnson bought the plates of the 1853 West edition from Scribner & Co. and asked Fred B. Perkins to see what they needed for improvement. He found many typographical errors, and recommended a revision in view of more recent scholarship. The old plates were then scrapped and the Rev. Roswell D. Hitchcock of Union Theological Seminary, New York, was employed to undertake a thorough revision. The work was completely recast, the Books reduced from thirty to twenty-seven, new indexes were provided, and Cruden's Concordance, newly set, was added. Mr. Perkins and the Rev. George W. Sheldon, of Union Theological, also aided in the work. As copy they used the recent text of the American Bible Society. In regard to the accuracy of that text, Mr. Perkins stated that he could find but one typographical error and that was a "somewhat doubtful case of 'wrong font.'" More "historical methods" were employed in this analysis, the division into chapters was by "thoughts" rather than by verses, and cross references were used. The indexes and tables were reduced to four.

Holman's Edition appears at head of title, which is printed in red and black with seal: Let there be light. Frontispiece, Order of Books, and Improved Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible (by Nevin, Rawson, & Horne) precede text. With Apocrypha, followed by Family Record. Maps of Jerusalem, Concordance, and Metrical Psalms at end. Illustrated.

This is the first edition published by A. J. Holman and Company, still active. The history of this firm goes back to the beginning of the century. Solomon Conrad went into business about 1801 and was joined by Benjamin and Jacob Johnson (see 1792 NT, No 41; also 1804, No 114). Other combinations followed: Kimber, Conrad and Co. with Jacob Johnson (see 1807, No 143), Kimber and Sharpless (see 1823, No 460), Jesper Harding (see 1826–28, No 551), Jesper Harding and Son (see 1857, No 1639), William W. Harding (see 1860, No 1728). Mr. Holman had been with the Harding firm from 1839 and gained control about 1864. The president of the firm in 1958 was Scott Lamb, Sr.; his son, Scott Lamb, Jr., was also a member of the firm.

The seal with the legend Let there be light appears on many books with other imprints and occasionally with no imprint. It would appear that these books were supplied by the firm to local distributors who issued them with their own imprints. An effort has been made to try to tie these editions up with Holman imprinted editions but, as many of them have a great deal of separately numbered and varying additional material, it has been impossible to do this without asking many libraries for data they have neither the time nor staff to supply.

This is known as "The Speaker's Commentary" and was prepared in England at the suggestion of the Right Honorable J. Evelyn Denison, Speaker of the House of Commons. The editor, F. C. Cook, began work in 1864, and the commentary was published in 10 vols from 1871 to 1881 by the University Press, Cambridge. The text is the AV with a great deal of comment in which variant renderings are given. The editors were outstanding clergymen of the period.

American editions bear the imprint of Scribner, Armstrong and Co., New York, and of Charles Scribner's Sons. NT Vols ii-iv (1880, 1881, and 1882) examined at NN give no indication as to place of printing and Charles Scribner's Sons in 1959 could give no information as to whether the books were ever printed here. The set was not included in a 1912 list of imported items. It was many times reprinted. OC has a set in 12 vols, including the Apocrypha, dated 1874–81.

Preface signed Julia E. Smith, Glastonbury, March 23rd, 1876. The Books of the OT are arranged in the Jewish order, with Chronicles at the end.

Julia Evelina Smith (1793–1886) was the first woman to translate the whole Bible. Her parents belonged to the small Sandemanian sect founded in Scotland about 1730, which had as an ideal the restoration of the apostolic church. A member of a picturesque family, she was an outspoken worker for women's suffrage, refusing to pay taxes — particularly on a fine herd of Jersey cattle. In her 87th year, to the consternation of many of her former supporters, she married the Hon. Amos Parker of New Hampshire. Her portrait is to be found in Simms, facing p 156.

The following is taken from the Preface to the above work:

> Over twenty years ago, when I had four sisters, a friend met with us weekly to search the Scriptures, we being desirous to learn the exact meaning of every Greek and Hebrew word, from which King James's forty-seven translators had taken their > version of the Bible. We saw by the margin that the text had not been given literally, and it was the literal meaning we were seeking. . . . I soon gave my attention to the Hebrew, and studied it thoroughly, and wrote it out word for word, giving no ideas of my own, but endeavoring to put the same English word for the same Hebrew or Greek word, everywhere, while King James's translators have wholly differed from this rule; but it appeared to us to give a much clearer understanding of the text.

>
> It had never at that time entered my mind that I should ever publish the work, but I was so much interested and entertained to see the connection from Genesis to Revelation, that I continued my labors and wrote out the Bible five times, twice from the Greek, twice from the Hebrew, and once from the Latin — the Vulgate. These three languages were written over the head of our Saviour. They are now dead languages and cannot be altered. . . . It may be thought by the public in general, that I have great confidence in myself, in not conferring with the learned in so great a work, but as there is but one book in the Hebrew tongue, and I have defined it word for word, I do not see how anybody can know more about it than I do. . . .

As a result of the use of the same English word for the same Hebrew or Greek word, the English of this translation is quite unnatural. The work was published at Miss Smith's own expense. Apparently the above edition was the only one published.

DLC and MiU have copies dated 1890.

The Rev. Joseph Bryant Rotherham (1828–1909) was first a Wesleyan minister, then a Baptist, and later a minister of the Disciples of Christ. His NT was first printed in London in 1872 and was followed by a second edition in 1878. It uses an elaborate system of symbols and type to show various classes and relationships of textual material. The NT was based on Tregelles' Greek text, but in 1897 was conformed to the Westcott and Hort text. A third edition was published in 1897 and the OT, based on Ginsberg's Hebrew text, was published in London in 1901–02. This is an "immersion" version. It is uncertain when this NT was first printed in America. It is possible that the above edition may have been printed in England. For the twelfth edition, revised, see 1896 NT, No 2073.

Amies' New and Improved Edition appears at head of title. ERV NT follows AV text; for ERV, see 1881 NT, No 1953. Has variety of supplementary matter, some copyright by A. J. Holman, 1872 (see No 1874 — probably a Holman edition). With Apocrypha in smaller type, and Brown's Concordance. NT imprinted Philadelphia and New York, William T. Amies, 1881. ERV NT has no imprint, but has usual Introduction and is followed by List of American Preferred Readings and Renderings (double paged, 1–172).

1 vol: (636) (104) (392); other matter var. paged 33 cm NNAB

While the OT and Apocrypha sections are similar to those in Holman and National Publishing Co. editions, the NT has been reset with the ERV in inner column; for ERV, see 1881 NT, No 1953. The AV NT was set from an ABS octavo edition, and the ERV one from the Oxford Large Pica edition; there is no imprint on either NT title. The Preferences of the American Committee follow text directly on same page. Most of supplementary matter is illustrated, some in color. Various copyrights by the publisher.

NNAB also has a similar edition imprinted Hubbard Brothers, Philadelphia, with Brown's Concordance and a section on The Jewish Tabernacle (copyright 1883, by the Rev. G. C. Needham, 12 p).

Cited copy consists only of title pages and a few pages of text from a mutilated book. AV text with ERV NT printed separately (147 p). All titles have the Holman device but both NTs lack imprint.

1881 The New Testament . . . Revised Version . . . A.D. 1881 and the Authorized English Version of the New Testament, with Introduction, and Various

Readings from the Three Most Celebrated Manuscripts of the Original Greek Text. By Constantine Tischendorf. In Parallel Columns on Same Pages . . . George Munro, Publisher: New York 1953

1 vol: (105) (122) 32 cm MH–AH, NN, NNAB

Seaside Library . . . Vol XLIX appears at head of title page. Has ERV and AV texts in parallel columns. AV is printed in traditional verse paragraph form; the ERV is in paragraph form with verse numbers in matching type, chapter numbers in bold face in margins, and alternative readings and renderings at foot of page. Poetical matter usually appears printed in separate lines. An Introduction dated Nov. 11, 1880 gives the history of the revision. Tischendorf's Introduction and the Committee's Preface follow John, part 1. Printed in an Appendix at the end are preferred renderings of the American Committee which were not accepted by their British colleagues. Published as a double number, copyright 1881 by Munro, entered at second class rates, May 21st and May 23rd, 1881.

Because of advances in archaeological and Biblical scholarship during the nineteenth century, the need for a revision of the AV constantly became more apparent. Numerous American efforts to supply a satisfactory revision have already been listed. The Revised Version (ERV) was begun at the suggestion of the Bishop of Winchester, who submitted in 1870 to the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury (Church of England) a proposal for a revision to correct places were the Hebrew and Greek texts underlying the AV had been at fault or wrongly translated. On its adoption a committee was appointed to set up rules and committees of revisers, which included the outstanding Biblical scholars of the day, who represented various denominations. The revisers began work in England in 1871; in 1872 two American committees began joint work, meeting regularly every month for eight years in the old Bible House at Astor Place (but they were not associated in any way with the ABS). The costs of the English group were met by the Oxford and Cambridge University presses in return for exclusive copyright privileges, no changes to be made for fourteen years after publication of the whole Bible. The expenses of the American group — working without compensation — were met by private subscription, donors to receive handsomely bound memorial copies when the work was completed. (These memorial copies are not included in this list as they were printed in England.) The members of the American Committee were: for the OT: C. A. Aiken (Princeton), T. W. Chambers (New Brunswick), T. J. Conant (Rochester), G. E. Day (Yale), J. DeWitt (New Brunswick), W. H. Green (Princeton), G. E. Hare (Philadelphia), C. P. Krauth (Lutheran, Philadelphia), T. Lewis (Union), C. M. Mead (Andover), H. Osgood (Rochester), J. Packard (Alexandria), C. E. Stowe (Andover), J. Strong (Drew), C. V. A. VanDyck (Beirut, translator of the Arabic B); for the NT: E. Abbot (Harvard), J. K. Burr (Drew), T. Chase (Haverford), G. R. Crooks (Drew), H. Crosby (NYU), T. Dwight (Yale), H. B. Hackett (Rochester), J. Hadley (Yale), C. Hodge (Princeton), A. C. Kendrick (Rochester), A. Lee (Bishop of Delaware), M. B. Riddle (Hartford and Western), P. Schaff (Union), C. Short (Columbia), J. H. Thayer (Andover, Harvard), E. A. Washburn (Calvary Church, N. Y.), and T. D. Woolsey (Yale). For further details as to personnel, methods, etc., one may consult the many good books on the history of the English Bible, or the pamphlet issued by the ABS, A Ready-Reference History of the English Bible (40 p).

The ERV New Testament was published in England, May 17, 1881, and in the United States on May 20. Advance interest in the NT was so high that a million orders were received before publication and the New York representative of the Oxford University Press sold more than 365,000 copies in the first year, most of them within the first few days of publication. It is said that more than 3,000,000 copies were issued during the first year. The Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Times published the entire NT in their issues of May 22, Matthew-Romans having been telegraphed from New York and the rest set from a copy rushed to Chicago. Some periodicals issued special editions containing the complete ERV NT (see No 1954). The Introduction to one of the many editions that followed says that the revisers gave their work "to the people free of copyright," probably because the expenses of the American committee were covered by donations. There seemed to be no restrictions on the use of the text or the form in which it should appear, as the following entries for this period indicate.

The new text actually followed the language and style of the AV, the changes consisting mainly in the correction of erroneous Greek readings or renderings, inconsistences in translation and vocabulary, and the clarification of obscure renderings. In spite of its large initial sale, however, the ERV never became generally popular. Although it represents very accurately the best Greek text of its day and although the rendering in the Epistles is clearer than in the AV, the public was disappointed by changes in familiar passages and in its rather stiff style.

The Old Testament was published in 1885 (see No 2019). For the American Standard Edition of the Revised Version (ASV), see 1901, No 2124. For the Revised Standard Version (RSV), see 1946 NT, No 2453.

ERV; see 1881 NTs, No 1953 and No 1972. History of the Revision precedes the second NT title page which has no imprint; but, in box, This Edition is the Official Text, authorized by the American Committee of Revision. Officers: Philip Schaff, President. George E. Day, Secretary. New York, May 20, 1881. A statement signed by G. I. Jones and Co., Publishers and Book Printers, and by the manager and three proofreaders, dated 1881, assures that this has been carefully read and twice compared with official copies from England and most carefully proofread (p 496). Copyright 1881 by Scammell and Co. must apply to the History of the Revision, for the Preface (1 p) states that the American Committee has declared that the "work shall be given to the people free of copyright."

1881 The Sinai and Comparative New Testament. The Authorized English Version; with Introduction, and various Readings from the three most celebrated Manuscripts of the original Greek Text, by Constantine Tischendorf; Tauchnitz Edition, Vol. 1000. With the various readings so inserted in the text, that the whole Scripture according to either the Sinai, Vatican, Alexandrian, or the Received Greek, can be read by itself, while the variations are all compared with facility. By Edwin Leigh. Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor, and Company: New York 1971

1 vol: (xix) (153) 19 cm NNAB

Vol. I — The Gospels appears on cover, with sub-title: Four in One; Sinai, Vatican, Alexandrian: the three oldest and best Copies. The New Testament as the early Christians had it in the Fourth Century . . . compared with the Modern Received Greek of the Sixteenth Century. There is no record that further volumes were published with the remainder of the NT. Frontispiece shows facsimiles from four MSS.

In the Tauchnitz edition (Vol 1000 of the Collection of British Authors, 1869) the text is straight AV, with the readings indicated in footnotes. Mr. Leigh, by using different type faces and a system of bracketing, here exhibits the different readings in a continuous text.

ERV; see 1881 NT, No 1953. Has Preface. Preferences of American Committee at end.

Numerous editions of the ERV NT similar in pagination and format, copies of most of which are held by NN and NNAB, were issued during 1881 by the following publishers: in New York by Baker, Pratt and Co., by Dodd, Mead and Co., and by Charles T. Dillingham; in Boston by Estes and Lauriat, and by Lee and Shepard; in Chicago by J. S. Goodman and Co.; and in Philadelphia an Anglo-American Edition, Facsimile of the Cambridge Edition, was issued by Hubbard Bros.

Other editions appeared this year containing a variety of added matter: J. S. Goodman and Co., Chicago, and Scammell and Co., St. Louis, issued editions with A History of the Revision added (the Scammell NT is illustrated). Hubbard Bros., Philadelphia, and the Goodman firm issued editions with A History of the Revision, Anglo-American Edition, prepared by Isaac H. Hall (119 p). The American Tract Society, American Book Exchange, Dodd, Mead and Co., and James Pott and Co., all of New York, issued editions printed with the AV on facing pages, text has double pagination.

In 1882 the American Baptist Publication Society of Philadelphia published an edition with the preferred readings of the American Committee printed in the text and the English ones in a supplement.

1881 The New Testament . . . Revised A.D. 1881 . . . R. Worthington: New York 1973

1 vol: (xxx) (483) 485–495 18 cm DLC, MA, MH–AH, MiU, NN, NNAB

ERV; see 1881 NT, No 1953. American Edition appears at head of title page. Contains American Preface by Roswell D. Hitchcock, dated June 28, 1881. The readings of the American Committee have been incorporated in the text and the Preferences of the English Revisers are in the supplement.

NNAB has another copy marked second impression with errors corrected, Aug 1881. PPi has copy imprinted Published for Samuel Williams, formerly Pastor First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., by Fords, Howard, & Hulbert, New York; bound with this are Samuel Williams' Reply to Lectures on the Nature, Subjects, and Mode of Christian Baptism, by John T. Pressley (2nd edition, Published by Moore, Anderson and Co., Cincinnati, 1853, 96 p) and two other pamphlets. Andover Newton Theological School has copy without the extra pamphlets.

"Various works sought to capitalize on the RV shortly after it came out, but the only one which claimed fresh revision for itself was the New Testament of Samuel Williams (New York, 1881). This not only incorporated the American preferred readings, but was still further 'amended.' Among his own readings was the one 'immerse.'" (Cheek, p 43–44 and 149; cf. Simms, p 252 ff.)

This is possibly the first American printing of the ERV OT. The ERV OT was published by the University Presses in England on May 19, 1885, with a Preface dated 1884, in format similar to the NT (see 1881, No 1953). The Apocrypha, the work of the NT Company on Ecclesiasticus, Tobit, Judith, Wisdom, and 1 and 2 Maccabees (completed later by the OT Company) was published in England in 1895. For an official edition of the Bible with revised references, see 1898, No 2091. An edition of the NT with still fuller references by W. F. Moulton and F. H. A. Scrivener, edited by A. W. Greenup and J. H. Moulton, was published at Oxford in 1910.

1885 [The New Testament] The Teaching and Acts of Jesus of Nazareth and His Apostles. Literally Translated Out of the Greek. [Privately printed]: Chicago 2023

Reported as (xx) (389) 17 cm DLC, ICU, MH–AH

The translator was W. D. Dillard. Copyright 1885.

The following is from the Preface to this work (p v) as quoted in Cheek (p 45): "Now, there ought to be a uniform standard of translation. Words of the same meaning, whether they be Chaldee, Hebrew, or Greek, should be translated into vernacular English words, having the same meaning. . . . Now we propose to render every word in the New Testament Greek into plain vernacular English words; just as they would now be written, if the facts they relate had occurred in our day and in our country. . . ." In spite of Dillard's intentions, the text is mainly a rewording of the AV.

3 vols: Vol I, (xii) (545); Vol II, (xi) (569); Vol III, (xii) (601) 21 cm MA

Vol I (1886) contains Hebrew Story from Creation to the Exile; "the story is told in the words of the Bible, but with considerable condensation and rearrangement." Vol II (1889), Hebrew Literature; Indexed contents on p 561–569. Vol III (1893), Christian Scriptures; Quotations from the OT on p 591–601. The text in the main follows the AV or ERV but has been changed in places in the interests of simplifying passages or idioms, and has been condensed and rearranged with glosses added, usually in parentheses. The Divine Name is rendered "Jehovah."

NNAB has Vol I only.

Both editors were on the faculty of the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia when the above work was prepared. NNAB Preface signed "E.F."

Frederick W. Grant (1834–1902) was a leader among the Plymouth Brethren. Born in the Putney district of London, he emigrated to Toronto at the age of 21. Later he moved to Brooklyn, and then to Plainfield, New Jersey. After his attention had been drawn to the "Pentateuch" of the five books in the Psalter and to the acrostic Psalms, he began to look for evidences for a law of numbers as a key to the interpretation of the Scriptures as a whole. He published the basis of his numerical system in 1876. In 1891, he began the publication of the above revision of the King James Bible. He finished the NT, but his death occurred before the OT could be completed. Certain parts of the Numerical Bible have been reprinted several times.

1891? The New Testament . . . American Bible Union Version. Improved Edition . . . [Edition with Immerse]. American Baptist Publication Society: Philadelphia 2048

590 p 16 cm ICU, MH, NNAB

Prefatory Note precedes text, which is in single column, paragraph form, with verse numbers raised in smaller type. Has alternative readings and renderings at foot of page.

The American Baptist Publication Society took over the work of the American and Foreign Bible Society and the American Bible Union, and a new committee was formed in 1883 to "improve" the ABU Version (see 1862–63 NT, No 1764). This committee consisted of Alvah Hovey, D.D., President of Newton Theological Seminary; John A. Broadus, D.D., President of Louisville Theological Seminary; and Henry G. Weston, D.D., President of Crozer Theological Seminary. The NT was issued first and appeared in two forms, one rendering the Greek word baptizo as "baptize," the other as "immerse." It was further revised for publication with the OT in 1912 by the Rev. J. W. Willmarth, D.D. The ascribed date of 1891 is taken from the Introduction to the NT in the 1912 Bible (No 2209).

The work on the OT was assigned in 1889 to Professor Bernard C. Taylor, Crozer Theological Seminary (the parts previously translated by Dr. Conant — see No 1764 — and the rest of the Pentateuch); Professor J. R. Sampey, D.D., Southern Baptist Theological Seminary (Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon, and Lamentations); Prof. William R. Harper, University of Chicago (Isaiah and the minor prophets); and Prof. Ira M. Price, Ph.D., University of Chicago (Jeremiah, Daniel, and Ezekiel). Dr. J. M. P. Smith, also of the University of Chicago, read proof of Dr. Harper's section. The OT was not published separately and first appeared in the 1912 Bible mentioned above.

To the marginal material of the ERV the editors have added more references showing in the Gospels parallel passages, and page headings with a new system of chapter and verse indication at the upper corners of the page. Maps.

The International Bible Agency was formed in 1892 by the Methodist Book Concerns of New York and Cincinnati and the United Brethren Concern of Dayton, each one being an equal partner. The Agency originally purchased minion, bourgeois and small pica Bibles from William Collins and Son of Glasgow, but gradually new editions were set, plated, and sold by them. These were printed by the Methodist Book Concern but published under the imprint of the International Bible Agency. The Agency was purchased in 1902 by the John C. Winston Company (see 1902 NT, No 2145).

1893 The Holy Bible . . . Published by the Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South: Nashville 2056

Reported as 836 p 59 cm TNMB

Only one copy of this "Exhibition Bible" was produced. It was manufactured by the Methodist Publishing House, Barbee & Smith, Agents, expressly for exhibition at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, to show the mechanical attainments in bookmaking in the southern states at the time. It received a Certificate of Award, accompanied by a "Medal for Specific Merit," and was later exhibited at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, Nashville, 1897. It is printed in letters of pure gold on sheets of sheepskin, each page having a border about three inches wide illuminated in color. The materials used in its manufacture cost $1700 and the work took many months. The text is set in 12-point Modern Roman in parallel columns, double leaded. The borders were printed first, then the gold leaf laid on the plate and pressed into the vellum by a revolution of the press cylinder. Although it was first planned to print fine pulpit Bibles from this type, there seem to have been no such editions published. The above copy is on permanent exhibition at the Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

1895–1906 The Modern Reader's Bible: A Series of Works from the Sacred Scriptures Presented in Modern Literary Form . . . Edited with an Introduction and Notes by Richard G. Moulton . . . [Printed at the Norwood Press, Norwood, Mass.]. The Macmillan Co.: New York 2066

22 vols 14 cm NN, NNAB

Several volumes are dated 1895; Vol I is dated 1896. Text is printed in paragraph form with verse numbers in margin. Subject headings replace chapter headings. Poetic passages are presented in poetry form. Bible Aids, etc. are sometimes appended to text.

Number of volumes in sets of this Bible varies. It has been published in many editions, with title changed slightly in some. A 1-vol edition was issued in 1907 (see No 2178).

Richard Green Moulton (1849–1924) was a British-born American educator and critic who taught at the University of Chicago, 1892–1919. Although Shakespeare was his special field, he is best known for the above work. It is not a new version, but a new arrangement of the ERV (see 1881 NT, No 1953; also 1885 OT, No 2019). 1895 appears to be the first date of publication of any part of the Modern Reader's Bible. In the Editor's Note, Dr. Moulton states that "the text . . . is one constructed specially for this work for which the Editor is solely responsible. It is based upon the English Revised Version, with choice between the readings of the text and margin, and such slight changes of wording as are involved in the adaptation to modern literary structure."

1895–98 The Woman's Bible . . . European Publishing Company: New York 2067

2 vols: Part I, 152 p; Part II, 217 p 23 and 25 cm KU, NNAB

NNAB has Part I only (1895): Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. KU has Part II only (1898): Comments on the Old and New Testaments from Joshua to Revelation; also contains an Appendix of Letters and Comments, a Resolution of National-American Woman Suffrage Association repudiating The Woman's Bible, and Speech of Susan B. Anthony.

KU also has third edition of Part I, 1898.

This Bible does not contain the complete text. It was prepared by a Revising Committee, chaired by Elizabeth Cady Stanton. The following members, in addition to Mrs. Stanton, made comments: Lillie D. Blake, Frances E. Burr, Lucinda B. Chandler, Clara B. Colby, Ellen B. Dietrick, Matilda J. Gage, Ursula N. Gestefeld, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara B. Neyman, Louisa Southworth, and an anonymous contributor. The original plan was to produce a complete edition of the Bible, in which only those passages "directly referring to women, and those also in which women are made prominent by exclusion" would be subject to revision. Since the published material was of a provisional nature, selected texts were lifted out and presented with comments. ". . . the Revising Committee refer to a woman's translation of the Bible [see Julia E. Smith's 1876 edition, No 1918] as their ultimate authority for the Greek, Latin and Hebrew text . . ." (Part I, p 149). However, the quoted texts conform closely to the King James Version.

1895? The New Testament with commentaries, references, harmony of the Gospels . . . illustrated and explained by over one hundred photographs . . . notes . . . by John Brown . . . assisted by Josiah L. Porter . . . descriptions . . . of photographs by Rev. James W. Lee . . . Photographic artist Prof. Robert E. M. Bain . . . N. D. Thompson Publishing Co.: New York and St. Louis 2068

1 vol: (xlvi) (539) 30 cm NNAB

Text printed in double columns with Brown's notes and references in two center columns and further "reflections," etc. at foot of page. Preceded by various tables and Harmony. Illustrated with half-tones of photographs of Bible Lands. For John Brown, see 1792, No 37. For Thompson's new illustrated edition of Brown's Bible, see also 1896?, No 2070.

1895? The Self-Pronouncing New Testament . . . with Psalms. National Bible Press: Philadelphia 2069

1 vol: 17–482 485–600 22 cm NNAB

Has illuminated Lord's Prayer; half-tone illustrations; History of the Psalms before Psalms text. Set in Pica type.

NNAB also has Red Letter edition with 6-page Preface.

1896? The Self-Interpreting Bible . . . With Commentaries, References, Harmony of the Gospels and Helps Needed to Understand and Teach the Text, Illustrated and Explained by Over Four Hundred Photographs Showing the Places of Bible Events as they Appear Today . . . Thompson Publishing Company: New York and St. Louis 2070

4 vols 30 cm DLC, OC

This is a new illustrated edition of Brown's Bible; see 1792, No 37.

CaBVi and CaNSHK have copies copyright 1896 imprinted World Publishing Company, Guelph, Ontario.

DLC also has 1901? and 1905? editions, the first titled The Bible Cyclopedia . . . Five Hundred Photographs . . . by Robert E. Bain . . . edited by . . . James W. Lee. Other editions were published during this period by Whitaker and Ray Co., San Francisco, 1896 (C); The Martin and Hoyt Co., Atlanta, copyright 1905 (NN); and the Bible Educational Society, St. Louis, in 1905? (OGK) and 1908? (NN).

The NT was issued separately by the Thompson firm in 1895–96 (xlv, 539 p; KyLo and NcD); J. Q. Adams and Co., Boston, 1909 (NNAB); and The Bible Educational Society, St. Louis, in 1909 (DLC), 1911 (ViU), 1916 (NN), 1917 (USl), and 1922 (imprinted Chicago instead of St. Louis; NNU–W).

1896 The Holy Bible . . . [Printed by Berwick & Smith, Norwood Press, Norwood, Mass.]. Thomas Nelson & Sons: New York 2070A

Oxford's 1906 Catalog (American Branch) carries an injunction inside the front wrapper against Wilmore-Andrews for using the Oxford name.

1896 The New Testament: Newly Translated [from the Greek Text of Tregelles] and Critically Emphasised, with an Introduction and Occasional Notes. By Joseph B. Rotherham. 12th Edition, Revised. 14th Thousand . . . [Robert Drummond, Electrotyper and Printer, New York]. J. Wiley & Sons: New York 2073

Reported as (xvi) (492) 21 cm ICU, MH–AH

Rotherham Version; see 1878 NT, No 1930. Has Preface to Second Edition.

Also published by F. H. Revell Co., New York, 1896. GEU has copy imprinted American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia.

1896? The Interlinear Literal Translation of the Greek New Testament, with the Authorized Version conveniently presented in the Margins for Ready Reference, and with the Various Readings of the Editions of Elzevir 1624, Griesbach, Lachmann, Tischendorf, Tregelles, Alford and Wordsworth. Arthur Hinds and Company . . . : New York 2074

1 vol: (viii) (670) 21 cm NNAB

This work clearly is an edition of The Englishman's Greek New Testament, first published in London by Bagster in 1877. The size of the type page has been increased — evidently by photographic process, and then printed from plates. The first indication of a date is found in later printings, which include Copyright, 1897, by Hinds & Noble at foot of title page. The body of the page contains the Greek text with sublinear literal renderings. The AV is printed in the outer margin in paragraph form, and the critical readings are at foot of page. For the Interlinear OT, see 1897, No 2082.

NNAB also has The Greek-English New Testament, being the Original Greek Text with a Literal Interlinear Translation, an undated text edition without AV or readings, published by the Handy Book Company, Reading, Pennsylvania (xii, 670 p, 20 cm); and three copies of The Interlinear Literal Translation . . . To which has been added A New Greek-English New Testament Lexicon, supplemented by a Chapter elucidating the Synonyms of the New Testament, with a Complete Index to the Synonyms by George Ricker Berry (vii, 670, vi, 137 p, 23 cm): one by Hinds, Noble & Eldredge, New York, no date; a second by the Handy Book Company, Reading, Pa., no date; and the third by Wilcox & Follett Company, Chicago, 1946.

1897 The New Illuminated Holy Bible, Self-Pronouncing with Marginal References and Concordance. 800 Original Illustrations . . . The Text Conforms to that of the Oxford Bible Printed at the University Press, Oxford . . . [Printed by The Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass. and Electrotyped by H. O. Houghton and Company]. American Bible Union: Philadelphia 2075

1 vol: (vi) (967) (299) (97) 29 cm NNAB

Edition De Luxe appears at head of title. Presentation page, Preface, Order of Books, Key to Pronunciation, and frontispiece (The Creation) precede text. Has Family Record. Frontispiece to NT. Concordance at end. Illustrated with half-tones, many set in the body of text. Copyright 1897, by Frank E. Wright.

NNAB has another copy published by the American Bible House, Philadelphia and New York, and printed by J. B. Lippincott Co., no date, which was probably printed at a later time (27 cm). DLC has an 1898? edition of The New Illustrated Holy Bible, International Bible Agency, New York, which seems to be a reprint. Also published by P. F. Collier, New York.

1897 Nave's Topical Bible. Digest of the Holy Scriptures. More Than Twenty Thousand Topics and Subtopics, and One Hundred Thousand References to the Scriptures . . . by Orville J. Nave . . . Chaplain in the Army of the United States. From the Press of Eaton and Mains, Topical Bible Publishing Company: New York 2076

Brings together in cyclopedic form and under familiar headings all the Bible contains on particular subjects, some verses appearing several times. Has Index showing the pages and columns in which each verse of Scripture is found (p 1465–1615). Copyright 1896 and 1897, by Orville J. Nave.

NNAB also has an undated copy imprinted International Bible Agency, New York.

Chaplain Nave claimed that the above work was much more satisfactory than the previous classifications of verses (see West's 1854 edition, No 1552; also Hitchcock's 1871 edition, No 1868). It was the work of fourteen years. On subjects relating to law he secured the assistance of the Hon. John Welch, Judge of the Supreme Court of the State of Ohio.

NN has copy of 1901 fifth edition (12,000 copies printed) which has on verso of title page: First edition, 1897, 5,000; Second edition, 1898, 10,000; Third edition, 1899, 10,500. A fourth edition was printed in 1900, 10,500 copies. The Topical Bible Publishing Co. issued a later printing in 1904 from Lincoln, Nebraska, marked "one Hundredth Thousand." In 1952 the Topical Bible was published by Moody Press, Chicago; seven editions in cloth and one in leather were issued by this firm by November 1958.

1897 The Holy Bible . . . Embellished with 852 Illustrations . . . [W. B. Conkey Company, Publishers, Printers and Binders, Chicago]. The Christian Herald: New York 2077

1897? The Emphasised Bible. A New Translation . . . with Expository Introduction . . . References, and Appendices of Notes. This Version has been Adjusted, in the Old Testament, to the Newly Revised "Massoretic-Critical" Text . . . in the New Testament to the Critical Text . . . of Drs. Westcott and Hort. By Joseph Bryant Rotherham. Standard Publishing Co.: [Cincinnati] 2078

4 vols in 1: (iv) (920) (272) 23 cm NN

Rotherham "Emphasised" Bible; see 1878 NT, No 1930. Each vol has separate title page. Copyright 1897, by Joseph Bryant Rotherham.

Although all the parts are copyright 1897, the OT was not published in England until 1901–02 and it seems unlikely that it was printed in this country earlier. This Bible may have been printed in England, but if it was printed in this country it was probably done between 1901 and 1916. See also 1902 OT, No 2139.

1897 The Holy Bible . . . American Bible Society, Instituted . . . : New York 2079

1 vol: (876) (271) (5) 22 cm NNAB

Bourgeois Reference Octavo with Tables after text (1 p), Family Record (4 p), and colored maps (8 leaves). Two thousand copies were printed from new electroplates.

In 1897, at the suggestion of the Massachusetts Bible Society and on the recommendation of the Committee on Versions, the Board of Managers approved the elimination from all reference editions of the dates from Ussher's Chronology, which had previously appeared at the head of reference columns. The decision was made too late to affect the above Bible, but NNAB has an edition of 1898 from which the Chronology has been removed.

1897? The Holy Bible . . . T. Nelson & Sons: New York 2080

1 vol: (956) (290) 21 cm NN

Has W. Wright's Illustrated Bible Treasury at end.

This was originally an English publication, but had been printed in America for many years.

1897? The Oxford Self-Pronouncing Bible, S. S. Teacher's Edition . . . Appointed to be read in Churches. [Printed by Manhattan Press, New York, U. S. A., from electrotype plates made at the University Press, Oxford.] Oxford University Press, American Branch: New York; . . . Henry Frowde: London 2081

Reported as (1056) (300) 21 cm DLC, OT, ViU

Preface dated 1897, but probably printed later. Contains the Oxford Cyclopedia Concordance (copyright 1903, 300 p).

ViU copy has Bible Helps (279 p with Atlas) which may be an older supplement.

1897? The Interlinear Literal Translation of the Hebrew Old Testament with the King James Version and the Revised Version conveniently printed in the Margins for Ready Reference and with Explanatory Textual Footnotes supplemented by Tables of the Hebrew Verb, and the Hebrew Alphabet, by George Ricker Berry . . . Part I — Genesis and Exodus. Hinds & Noble, Publishers: New York 2082

Part I: (vii) a-i (403) 25 cm NNAB

No further parts of the OT were published. Verso of title has The Value of Hebrew and Greek to Clergymen. Introduction (p iii–vii) and Hebrew Verbs, Explanatory Statements, Abbreviations, and Hebrew Alphabet (p a-i) precede text. Publisher's Advertisements at end (25 p). Cited copy has the following legend rubber-stamped above publisher's imprint: "Handy Book Company, Reading, Penna. Publishers of all Translations formerly of." The tailpiece bears the Handy Book Company imprint. Copyright 1896, by Arthur Hinds. Copyright 1897, by Hinds & Noble.

Reprinted by Wilcox and Follett in 194–. For the Interlinear NT, see 1896?, No 2074.

1897 The Emphasised New Testament. A New Translation Designed to Set Forth the Exact Meaning, the Proper Terminology, and the Graphic Style of the Sacred Original; Arranged to Show at a Glance, Narrative, Speech, Parallelism, and Logical Analysis; and Emphasised Throughout after the Idioms of the Greek Tongue. With Select References and an Appendix of Notes. This Version has been Adjusted to the Critical Text "formed exclusively on documentary evidence" of Drs. Westcott and Hort. By Joseph Bryant Rotherham . . . [Robert Drummond, Electrotyper and Printer, New York]. J. Wiley & Sons: New York 2083

Reported as 272 p 26 cm CU, DLC, PP

Rotherham "Emphasised" Testament; see 1878 NT, No 1930. This is the third edition of Rotherham's NT and is a reprint of the 1897 London edition.

Wiley's catalog for 1900 lists the above edition at $2, but the present firm has no record of when it began printing here.

1897 The New Dispensation. The New Testament Translated from the Greek by Robert D. Weekes . . . Funk and Wagnalls Company: New York and London 2084

1 vol: (viii) (525) 21 cm MA, MB, NCH, NNAB

Preface signed by Robert D. Weekes, East Orange, N. J., 1897. Printed in paragraph form. The order of the Epistles follows that recommended by Conybeare and Howson. Copyright 1897, by Funk & Wagnalls Co.

Robert Dodd Weekes (1819–98) was a Congregational layman who held various positions in teaching and business. His translation is based "in general" on the Greek text of Westcott and Hort. The Preface states that his aim was to "ascertain the thought of the writers, and then to express such thought correctly . . . with as little deviation from a literal rendering as practicable, and at the same time retaining in good measure the familiar style of the older [AV] version."

1897 The New Testament Emphasised. Based upon a Study of the Original Greek Text by Rev. Horace E. Morrow. [Norwood Press. J. S. Cushing & Co. — Berwick & Smith, Norwood, Mass.] Charles Reynolds: Middletown, Connecticut 2085

1 vol: iii–ix 3–435 (4) 21 cm NNAB

Preface, Explanations, Key to Pronunciation, and List of Proper Names precede text. Copyright 1897, by H. E. Morrow.

FULL-FACE type is used to denote emphasis; italic denotes a lesser degree of emphasis; and the "italic is also used to indicate impressive utterance, as in the impressive phrases in the discourses of our Lord, and in the didactic portions of the Epistles." (Explanations, p iv.)

The Rev. Horace E. Morrow was born in Gloucester, Mass. He attended Gloucester High School and Wesleyan University, and studied at Andover Theological Seminary before being ordained as a minister of the Congregational Church.

1898 The Four Gospels. A New Translation from the Greek Text direct, with Reference to the Vulgate and the Ancient Syriac Version. By Very Rev. Francis Aloysius Spencer, O.P. Preface by His Eminence James, Cardinal Gibbons. William H. Young & Company: New York 2099

Reported as (xii) (280) 20 cm DLC

Includes Approbatio ordinis, Preface, Introductory Remarks, Table of Gospels for the Church Year, and five plates.

NcAS has 1900 edition marked Third Thousand. NNAB has 1901 edition marked Fourth Thousand.

Seymour Hobart Spencer (1845–1913) planned as a youth to follow his father into Episcopal orders. In 1866 he became a Roman Catholic and, upon entering the Paulist novitiate, took the name of Francis Aloysius. After his ordination, he transferred to the Dominican order in 1871, where he was several times Superior and once Provincial. He translated the Four Gospels from the Latin Vulgate (1898) and from the Greek (1901), the latter being published in four editions. (Although all the sources consulted say that Father Spencer's translation from the Vulgate was published in 1898, no copy of a translation based on the Latin text alone has been discovered in this study. The NcAS 1900 and the NNAB 1901 copies of the Gospels are from the Greek and are copyright 1898. Their title pages read exactly like the above DLC copy and there is nothing in the translator's preface to indicate a previous edition.)

Father Spencer undertook a translation of the complete NT from the Greek texts available at the time. He died shortly after completing the manuscript, which remained unpublished for some time. In 1935, when the American hierarchy of the Catholic Church recognized the need for a new translation in English, Father Spencer's translation was brought to light. It was carefully edited and published in 1937 (No 2363) and was revised in 1940.

1899–1901 [The New Testament] The Modern American Bible . . . The Books of the Bible in Modern American Form and Phrase with Notes and Introduction. By Frank Schell Ballentine . . . Thomas Whittaker: New York 2102

5 vols 16 cm ICU, NNAB

Despite its title, The Modern American Bible, only the NT was ever published. The grouping of the Books was designed to give an historical view, and they were published as follows: Part I (1899?, vi, 123 p): S. Mark. Part II (1899?, 298 p): S. Matthew, S. Peter, S. Jude, and S. James. Part III (1899?, 331 p): S. Luke (Gospel-Acts). Part IV (1901?, 339 p): S. Paul (Thessalonians, Corinthians, Galatians, Romans, Colossians, Ephesians, Philemon, Phillipians, I Timothy, Titus, II Timothy, and Hebrews). Part V (1901?, xxiii, 309 p): S. John (Gospel, Letters, Revelation). All parts are undated; dates are taken from Introduction (1899) and copyrights (1899, 1901). Text printed in paragraph form, without verse numbers, in single column. Direct discourse in quotation marks and poetry printed as poetry. Extensive notes follow text.

NN has Part IV only.

The Rev. Frank Schell Ballentine (1859–1936) was affiliated with the Protestant Episcopal Church. Mr. Ballentine, on reading the Four Gospels in modern French as translated by Henri Lasserre, Paris, 1887, determined to "attempt to translate the various Books of the Bible into modern American idiomatic English." He first published the Four Gospels (Good News — The Four Gospels in a Modern American Dress by Frank Schell Ballentine. Good News Publishing Co., Scranton, Pennsylvania, 1897) and then turned to the translation of the complete NT. His translation is based on the Textus Receptus and later Greek texts.

Agate 32mo. Three sets of electro plates for this book were made in 1899. Although the figure 13,150,000 Printed appears at the foot of the Order of Books, this book is not the same as the 1868 Agate 32mo (No 1836); Agate 32mos had been printed as early as 1851 and this may be the total figure. About this time, instead of entering the number of the edition on the contents page (meaning the number of times books had been printed from the same plates), the ABS began entering the number of copies that had been printed.

Also issued with Psalms (p 401–503).

Reported as 1272 p 25 cm IaU

The Christian Commercial Men's Association of America (now known as the Gideons, or the Gideons, International) resulted from a meeting in the fall of 1898 of John H. Nicholson of Janesville, Wisconsin, and Samuel E. Hill of Beloit in a hotel in Boscobel, Wisconsin, and was organized, with William J. Knights of Wild Rose, Wisconsin, in July 1899 at Beaver Dam. Their inspiration was the story of Gideon in Judges 6 and 7; their initial concern was the religious life of commercial men who spent long periods away from home, staying in hotels. They began placing Bibles in hotels in 1908. The movement extended to serve other institutions and became widespread here and abroad.

Among later editions issued were the following: Master Guide Red Letter Edition in 1939? (DLC); Minute Reference Red Letter Edition in 1943?, printed and bound especially for Good Will Distributors, Gastonia, N. C., copyright 1943, by National Bible Press; and Gideon Edition in 1944? (MiD).

PP has Part I only: The Five Historical Books (undated, printed by Press of Braunworth & Co., Brooklyn). NNAB has Parts II and III only: Paul's Letters to the Churches (copyright 1900; printed by Caxton Press, New York); The Pastoral, Personal, and General Letters, and the Revelation (copyright 1901, printed by Caxton Press, New York). Tentative edition, printed in single column, paragraph form, with verse numbers in right margin. Has section headings. OT quotations, etc. appear in italics. Poetry in appropriate form; quotation marks for direct discourse. References at foot of page.

NNAB also has two copies of Part I printed in slightly different form from Parts II and III: one with no printer, but probably an American edition; the second an 1899 third edition by Revell, printed in England.

This translation, published simultaneously in New York and London, was made "by a company of about twenty persons, members of various sections of the Christian Church" in England. In addition to the Westcott and Hort text, the committee used the manuscript of the then unpublished Weymouth translation (see 1943 NT, No 2418). The project grew out of the desire on the part of a number of people for a modern English version. Among them were Mrs. Mary Higgs, the first woman to take a science degree at Girton College (Cambridge), a Congregationalist minister's wife, Sunday school teacher, and mother; and Ernest de Merindol Malan, a railway engineer and Greek student. A group of interested persons — who insisted on anonymity — worked for a number of years at considerable personal sacrifice and without any compensation. Some years ago their records were given to the John Rylands Library at Manchester, England. The translation was popular in the United States for many years. (See Simms, p 278–281.)

1 vol: (xiv) (969) (3) (xvi) (295) [1] 23 cm IU, MH–AH, NN, NNAB

Long Primer Square Octavo. Verso of title has statement from the secretaries of the OT and NT committees as to the authenticity of editions published by Nelson and Sons. Prefaces to the American edition and to the ERV editions of 1885 and 1881 (see OT, No 2019 and NT, No 1953) precede the text of each Testament. The OT and NT are followed by appendices showing differences between ERV and this text. Printed in double columns, paragraph form, with verse numbers in text. Has center references and alternative readings and renderings in outer margins. Page headings are in bold-face type. 12 maps with index at end (10 p). Copyright 1901, "To insure purity of text."

This is the first edition of the ASV — properly known as the American Standard Edition of the Revised Version, or more commonly, as the American Standard Version — which was issued on Aug 26, 1901. Although the British Committee disbanded soon after publication of the ERV, its American counterpart kept at work. Members of the American Committee felt that the lists of their preferences printed in the ERV editions did not adequately represent their wishes, as the lists had been prepared late and had not been fully examined by the British group. They further felt that often the language of the ERV was more British than American. According to agreement, they were unable to sanction editions other than those of the two university presses for fourteen years, but as that period ended they were ready with a revised text. The new version had page headings; altered paragraphing, punctuation, and use of italics; revised marginal readings and renderings and cross-references; and changes in the text which the whole American Committee had approved, including the use of "Jehovah" for the Tetragrammaton. The Committee's reasons for these changes are fully set forth in the prefaces to both Testaments, which appear in most Nelson editions.

This version represented the best scholarship and Biblical learning of its time and was more widely used than the ERV both in this country and in Britain. It was copyrighted by Thomas Nelson and Sons, who had invested considerable sums in the project. In 1929 the copyright was renewed by the International Council of Religious Education, but the text was still printed exclusively by the Nelson firm. These editions all carry on the verso of title page the statement, "This Standard American Edition of the Revised Version of the Bible, and editions in conformity with it published by Messrs. Thomas Nelson & Sons and certified by this endorsement, are the only editions authorized by the American Committee of Revision — George E. Day, Secretary of the Committee and of the Old Testament Committee and by J. Henry Thayer, Secretary of the New Testament Committee." Editions printed before 1910 carry the address of the publisher as 37 East 18th Street. From 1910 to 1930, the firm was on Fourth Avenue, the address appearing variously as Fourth Avenue Building; Fourth Avenue and 27th Street, 381 Fourth Avenue, and 381–385 Fourth Avenue. The Nelson firm then moved to 385 Madison Avenue, and in 1951 to 19 East 47th Street. The address seldom appears in recent years.

NN has the printer's copy for the first edition of the ASV OT (4 vols, 25 cm) placed on indefinite loan in 1924 by Thomas Nelson and Sons: Vol i, Genesis-Ruth, 621 p; Vol ii, i Samuel-Esther, 518 p; Vol iii, Job-Song of Solomon, 355 p; Vol iv, Isaiah-Malachi, 526 p. It is the British first edition of the ERV, 1885, printed in single column, with MS references in the outer margin and text changes in the inner margin. A rubber stamp has been used for "Jehovah." MS note on fly-leaf of each vol reads, "From this copy in four volumes was printed The Standard Edition of the American Revised Version, 1901. Horace Osgood, member of the American Revision Company, 1874–1901. Given to Tileston F. Chambers, January 1905. All the references in this volume were made by H. Osgood."

1902? Translation of the New Testament from the Original Greek. By Rev. W. B. Godbey . . . M. W. Knapp, Office of God's Revivalist: Cincinnati 2142

373 p 20 cm ICU, NNAB

Preliminary matter includes Dedication To the Holiness People in All Lands, Prologue, and Synopsis of the Harmony. Text of Gospels printed as Gospel Harmony (based on Robinson) in parallel columns. Text of Acts-Revelation printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in text. Apologue at end.

The Rev. W. B. Godbey (1833–1920) was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the author of NT commentaries, and a prominent "holiness" preacher. His translation is based on Tischendorf's edition of the Codex Sinaiticus which he regarded as an infallible copy of the original text. He did not follow the Codex Sinaiticus order of books and omitted the Epistle of Barnabas and the Shepherd of Hermas. In the Prologue he states that the Codex Sinaiticus was published in 1859, the year he graduated from college, and shortly thereafter he secured a copy of Tischendorf's edition. When he was assigned to camp-meetings in 1884 he began expounding the Scriptures from the Greek and many people urged him to publish a translation. After 20 years he yielded to this pressure.

1903 The Holy Bible . . . With the Marginal Readings Adopted by General Convention. Authorized to be read in Churches . . . [Printed by Norwood Press, Norwood, Mass.]. Thomas Nelson & Sons: New York 2149

1 vol: (1507) (279) 23 cm DLC, NNAB, USl, ViU

With Apocrypha. At end are colored maps and an Appendix containing a selection of renderings preferred by the Commission on Marginal Readings to those in the text or margin of the Bible, but not to be used in public reading. The suggested changes appear in the margins with the related word or words in the text underscored. Copyright 1903, by Thomas Nelson and Sons.

In order to provide an English Bible preserving the AV text but reflecting modern scholarship and changes in the English language, the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1895 appointed a Commission of Bishops and Presbyters (reappointed in 1898) to consider marginal readings that could be "authorized for the instruction of our people." To this end they studied the marginal readings of the 1611 edition of the AV and prepared a report listing suggested marginal readings from the AV and ERV and others based on further study of the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Syriac, and other early versions

NNAB has a Report of the Joint Committee on Marginal Readings in the Bible to the General Convention of 1901 (249, 82 p, 23 cm), giving the members of the committee, all the suggested changes (except for the Apocrypha), 82 p of specimen pages, and one leaf in lectern size. In the specimen pages the suggested changes are printed in smaller type above the word or words to be replaced, which are underscored. Copyright by Arthur C. A. Hall and Charles W. E. Body, members of the Committee.

The commission consisted of 5 Bishops and 5 clergymen, of whom 2 died and 4 resigned before the work was completed, others being appointed to replace them. A report on the NT issued in 1898 listed more changes than were included in the 1901 report.

[5664] 1903 תהלים The Book of Psalms. The Jewish Publication Society of America: Philadelphia 2151

311 p 13 cm NNAB

The facing series title reads: תורה נביאים וכתובים The Twenty-four Books of the Holy Scriptures. Translated from the Massoretic Text for the Jewish Publication Society of America. Copyright 1903. For the complete OT in the Jewish Publication Society Version, see 1917, No 2234.

Before the turn of the century initial steps were taken to produce a new English version of the Hebrew Scriptures for Jews. In 1892, the Jewish Publication Society of America selected a committee, headed by Dr. Morris Jastrow and, from 1903, by Dr. Solomon Schechter, to procure scholars to undertake independent translations of the various books. (A list of the translators can be found in the Preface to the 1917 Bible, No 2234.) Because of the complexity of this plan, the project languished from 1901 to 1908, and only the above Book of Psalms, translated by Kaufman Kohler and revised by the committee, was issued in this period.

The Book of Psalms in the 1917 OT is a revision of this text. It was again issued separately in 1925 in a format resembling the 1903 edition, but the text is that of the 1917 version (289 p, 13 cm, NNAB).

1904–27 The Student's Old Testament Logically and Chronologically Arranged and Translated by Charles Foster Kent . . . Charles Scribner's Sons: New York 2158

6 vols 23 cm NNAB

Vol I: Narratives of the Beginnings of Hebrew History from the Creation to the Establishment of the Hebrew Kingdom . . with Maps and Chronological Chart . . . 1904 (xxxv, 382 p). Vol II: Israel's Historical and Biographical Narratives from the Establishment of the Hebrew Kingdom to the End of the Maccabean Struggle . . . with Maps and Chronological Charts . . . 1905 (xxxi, 506 p). Vol III: The Sermons, Epistles and Apocalypses of Israel's Prophets from the Beginning of the Assyrian Period to the End of the Maccabean Struggle . . . with Maps and Chronological Charts . . . 1910 (xxv, 516 p). Vol IV: Israel's Laws and Legal Precedents from the Days of Moses to the Closing of the Legal Canon . . . with Plans and Diagrams . . . 1907 (xxxv, 301 p). Vol V: The Songs, Hymns, and Prayers of the Old Testament . . . 1914 (xxi, 305 p). Vol VI: Proverbs and Didactic Poems . . . [with the collaboration of C. C. Torrey and F. C. Porter] . . . 1927 (xxvii, 200 p).

In his preface to Vol I, Prof. Kent describes his purpose in the following terms:

> While this work aims to do three things, (1) to rearrange the writings of the Old Testament in a logical order, (2) to indicate their approximate dates and the classes of writers from which they come, and the more important reasons for the critical analysis of the different books, and (3) to introduce the reader by means of a clear translation to the beauty and thought of the original, it also seeks by occasional interpretative notes upon obscure passages, and by titles and brief side-headings, to make clear the thought of each section and the logical relations of the parts to the whole. (p x)
>
> Moreover, the classification must be more fundamental than that of a mere rearrangement of the books, for many of them are composite, containing the most varied material drawn from originally distinct sources. (p vi)

In Vol I the text, which is incomplete, is arranged according to possible sources. Poetry is printed in appropriate form.

Charles Foster Kent, Ph.D. (1867–1925) was a Congregationalist Biblical scholar who became Woolsey Professor of Biblical Literature at Yale in 1901. His aim was to translate the original texts into their modern English equivalents. He sought to conserve all that was good in previous translations, indicating in the margins any fundamentally different reading and preserving the Hebrew idiom where "thoroughly naturalized" into English. He also edited a 6-vol Historical Bible with an annotated text, various books on Biblical history, and served as joint editor with Frank Knight Sanders on The Messages of the Bible, a projected 12-vol set of which 11 vols were published. See also Kent's Shorter Bible (1918 NT, No 2242, and 1921 OT, No 2253) in which he was assisted by other scholars. George Dahl in DAB says of Kent that he "did more than any other American scholar of his day to make accessible to the public the significant results of modern biblical study."

Professor Kent served as co-editor with Henry A. Sherman, head of the Department of Religious Literature of Charles Scribner's Sons, for the purpose of translating and arranging The Children's Bible, Selections fom the Old and New Testaments, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, 1922 (xviii, 329 p; 24 cm; NNAB). This is Bible text "in the language of the child" — essentially the AV simplified and printed in modern literary style to meet the minds of children.

Adolphus S. Worrell (1831–1908) based his translation of the NT on the Greek text that parallels the ERV and on the Westcott and Hort text, as modified by Scrivener, and others. (See Cheek, Journal of Biblical Literature, June 1953, p 108.) In the Preface Worrell states that "the writer, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit (as he believes), undertook the immensely responsible task of furnishing to the public, a correct and literal translation of the Scriptures, put up in good style, with brief notes. . . ." An "immerse" version.

1904 [New Testament: Gospels, Selections] The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth, Extracted textually from the Gospels in Greek, Latin, French, and English by Thomas Jefferson. With an introduction. Government Printing Office: Washington 2162

1 vol: 18 pages; 8, 82, 4 leaves 23 cm NNAB

This is a facsimile of Jefferson's original book, now at the Smithsonian Institution, made by pasting up in parallel columns, two to a page, extracts from the Greek, Latin, French, and English texts of the Gospels in harmony form (82 numbered leaves). Nine thousand copies were printed by resolution of Congress in 1904. The English text was from a Testament printed in 1804 (see No 116). Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed has learned that the Latin and Greek were from a London edition of 1794, and the French from a Testament printed in Paris, 1802–1803.

According to the Introduction by Cyrus Adler, Jefferson's original idea had been to prepare a collection of Bible passages for the Indians. He refers to the project in letters to several correspondents in 1803 and 1804, indicating that he had prepared such a collection during "two or three nights" in Washington while he was President and produced a booklet of some 46 pages, using only the English text. In 1816 he wrote to Charles Thomson about his "Philosophy of Jesus; it is a paradigma of his doctrines. . . . A more beautiful or precious morsel of ethics I have never seen; it is a document in proof that I am a real Christian, that is to say a disciple of the doctrines of Jesus." His aim was to extract for his own use only what he considered the genuine morals of Jesus, free of later additions, etc. Probably prepared in its present form in 1819, Jefferson's book was known only to his closest correspondents. He was averse to any publicity for it, fearing misrepresentation of his ideas on religion.

Even before the publication cited here, there appeared a collection of the texts in English made up from the MS list of contents, The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth extracted textually from the Gospels, N. D. Thompson Publishing Co.: St. Louis, Chicago, and New York (168 p with frontispiece; 19 cm; copyright 1902). The following English editions have also been published: The Thomas Jefferson Bible, David McKay: Philadelphia, 1904 (xxiii, 161 p; 14 cm; copyright by George W. Ogilvie). The Thomas Jefferson Bible edited by Henry E. Jackson, Boni and Liveright: New York, 1923 (xi, 333 p; 22 cm), Weymouth and AV texts (for the Weymouth Version, see 1943 NT, No 2418). The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth edited and with a foreword by Douglas Lurton, Wilfred Funk, Inc.: New York, 1944 (xiii, 132 p; 17 cm). The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth with an introduction by Henry Wilder Foote, The Beacon Press: Boston, 1951 (151 p; 18 cm); printed in red and black, with Jefferson's title, p 60 of the text (double), and the first page of his table of texts in facsimile. NNAB has all of the above editions.

ASV; see 1901, No 2124. Label inside cover reads "This is No. 1 of the first one hundred copies of the American Revised Version of the Bible, in this size, published by the American Bible Society, March, 1905."

When the ABS was established in 1816, its constitution limited distribution of the Scriptures in English to the "version in common use," which was then the AV. After publication of the ERV and ASV, there were requests that the ABS publish these versions. In 1904, after two years of discussion, the constitution was changed to permit distribution of the two revisions. By agreement with Thomas Nelson and Sons, the distribution of the ASV was limited to inexpensive editions only. During 1904/05, the ABS issued Bibles in Minion type (available in three bindings) and a quarto Bible in English type to be sold only to churches for pulpit use. They also issued Minion type Testaments with and without Psalms. In all of these editions, the ERV and ASV prefaces were omitted.

Prepared with the Assistance of Eminent Scholars and Issued by Samuel Lloyd . . . with Preface by the Bishop of Durham . . . G. P. Putnam's Sons, The Knickerbocker Press: New York 2170

1 vol: (xxviii) (516) 28 cm DLC, NNAB

Has Preface, Introduction, and other preliminary matter. Printed in paragraph form. Copyright 1905, by Samuel Lloyd.

This NT was first printed in England in 1905, a tentative edition having been circulated privately in 1904 with which the grammarian G. W. Moon had been associated. The above edition closely resembles the smaller English one. The American plates were evidently taken from the English type, but the marginal references have been reset and enlarged and the page headings of the English edition have been omitted.

Mr. Lloyd, a Life Governor of the British and Foreign Bible Society, explains in his Introduction that he acted as general editor, receiving assistance from a large number of scholars, whom he lists. He was a member of the Church of England and lived in Birmingham.

The World Syndicate Company was formed early in the century by former employees of the Syndicate Company (see 1898 Bible, No 2093). They first used a set of plates for a Teachers Bible with center references leased from the Christian Herald (No 2177?). Printed from new plates this book is still in print. (For changes in the corporate name, see 1928? Bible, No 2295.) About 1914 the firm leased from the Christian Herald a set of plates for a Minion Reference Bible, smaller than the above, which World no longer uses. The firm also had made plates for three other often reprinted Bibles: a Junior Bible and a "Chain Store Bible", both still in print, and a Brevier Bible now discontinued. (Information supplied by The World Publishing Company, Aug. 1959.)

This Bible was planned particularly for the "intelligent Sunday School teacher," clergymen, and lay readers, with the hope of stimulating intelligent use of the Bible in the home and the school. The text is the ERV and ASV supplemented with "all important renderings from other versions," and is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in inner margin and references and notes below text. In Genesis the various sources are indicated by letters in the outer margins. The comments, notes, and introductions were intended to place at the disposal of the general reader the best results of modern scholarship. Most volumes carry several pages of publisher's advertisements at the end. John by Shailer Mathews and Romans by Edward L. Bosworth were advertised but there was no further publication in this series.

Cyrus Ingerson Scofield (1843–1921), first a lawyer and later a Congregationalist minister (for many years in Dallas, Texas), was a popular lecturer on Bible study. He began work on this Bible in 1902. He was assisted by a Board of Editors: Henry G. Weston, LL.D., James M. Gray, D.D., William J. Erdman, D.D., Prof. W. G. Moorehead, D.D., Elmore Harris, D.D., Arthur T. Pierson, D.D., and Arno C. Gaebelein, D.D. The reference system and the introductions to the various books set forth premillennial and dispensational teachings although the text is the King James Version. This edition proved very popular, many people purchasing it for its good type, reference system, and special notes. For further details, consult Dr. Arno C. Gaebelein's "The Story of the Scofield Reference Bible," in Moody Monthly (Oct 1942, p 65–66, 99; Nov 1942, p 128–129, 135; Dec 1942, p 202–203, 233; Jan 1943, p 277–279; Feb 1943, p 343–345; Mar 1943, p 400–401, 419) and John Wick Bowman's "Dispensationalism," in Interpretation (Apr 1956, p 170–187).

1911 The 1911 Bible. The Holy Bible . . . 1611, the Text Carefully Corrected and Amended by American Scholars, 1911. With a New System of References . . . Oxford University Press, American Branch: New York 2205

1152 p 21 cm IU, NN, NNAB

Contains a new system of references prepared by the Rev. C I. Scofield, D.D. (see 1909, No 2192), "tracing through the whole Bible the greater themes of the Divine revelation," and a new "collected-Reference system," grouping at one passage the most important occurrences of its most characteristic meaning. Although the text is printed in verse form, paragraphing is indicated by the insertion of blank lines. Copyright 1911, by the Oxford University Press, American Branch.

The Preface states that the text of this edition, commemorating the first publication of the AV, has been carefully scrutinized by a "committee of 34 eminent Hebrew and Greek scholars, representing all of the great evangelical bodies and many foremost Universities and Schools of Divinity." It claims to be "neither a new translation nor revision, but a scholarly and carefully Corrected Text." The Preface makes no further remarks on changes, but archaic words such as "leasing" (Psalm 4:2, 5:6) and "prevent" (Psalm 88:13) have been changed to "lies" and "come before." In Mt 23:24 the text reads "strain out a gnat."

2 vols: Vol I, 501 p; Vol II, 585 p 23 cm NNAB

Vol I (1911) contains the Holy Gospel; Gospel Subject Index at end (p 495–501). Vol II (1912) has the Acts of the Apostles, The Epistles, and the Revelation of St. John the Divine. The four texts (AV, Rheims, ASV, and ERV) are printed in parallel columns across each opening, without notes. The AV (set from an Oxford University Press, American Branch edition) and the Rheims text (from the 1899? H. L. Kilner & Co., Philadelphia edition; see note under No 2101) are in verse form; the ASV (from a Nelson edition) and the ERV (from an Oxford, American Branch and Cambridge-James Pott edition) are in paragraph form.

1912 The Holy Bible . . . An Improved Edition. Based in Part on the Bible Union Version . . . American Baptist Publication Society: Philadelphia 2209

1 vol: (6) 7–1086 (8) 9–311 [1] 20 cm NNAB

Improved Version; see 1891? NT, No 2048. Each Testament has Prefatory Notes, with information on the history of the version. NT marked fourth edition. Words which appear in italics in the AV are here printed in roman type or occasionally in brackets. The poetic form is used for much of the Prophets as well as for Job, Psalms, and Proverbs. Some alternative readings and renderings are given at foot of page. In the NT, "immerse" and related words are given in parentheses after the anglicized form of the Greek word.

In Isaiah 7:14, "young woman" (instead of "virgin" as in the AV) is used with a note: "The Hebrew word means 'a young woman of marriageable age'; it implies nothing one way or the other as to virginity." This translation was also adopted in the Jewish Publication Society (1917), Moffatt (1924), American (1935), and RSV versions. Knox uses "maid." (The Bible Translator IX, No 3 [July 1958] p 104.)

NN and NNAB have copies of a 1913 reprint.

1914 The New Testament from the Greek Text as Established by Bible Numerics. Edited by Ivan Panin. [The Commonwealth Press, Printers, Worcester, Mass.] Bible Numerics Co.: New Haven 2220

1 vol: (xx) (665) 16 cm DLC, NNAB

Printed in paragraph form with verse numbers in text. Alternative readings and renderings at foot of page. Copyright 1913, by Ivan Panin, Grafton, Mass.

Ivan Panin (1855–1942) was born in Russia, but his exile as a young man resulted in his eventually coming to the United States. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1882, and at about that time turned from agnosticism to Christianity. In 1890, Mr. Panin discovered a mathematical design underlying the Greek text of the NT. Subsequently he found that the OT had a similar structure. The above translation of the NT into English was in accordance with his system of Bible numerics. "The standard used for comparison was: for the Greek, the Revision of Westcott & Hort; and, for the English, the American Revised Version" (Preface).

In Panin's translation, every Greek word was rendered by the same English word, and each English word represented only one Greek word. Other literalisms were employed.

The second edition appeared in 1935 and was reprinted several times. Since 1935, it has been printed by the University Press at Oxford with varying imprints. In 1945 its distribution was transferred to the Book Society of Canada, Toronto. In the 1914 edition, the translation in Mark 14:27 appears as "all ye shall be stumbled"; in the 1935 edition, it reads "all ye shall stumble." Panin's edition of the Greek NT was published privately in 1934.

Army and Navy Edition, bound in blue or khaki. During World War I, the ABS supplied for the American forces a total of 4,920,543 volumes of Scriptures, most of them small Testaments (ABS Report 1920, p 18). "To expedite the printing and binding of a million Testaments for the Army and Navy two sets of electroplates were made from moulders and gauged for a certain imposition, from which four sets of steel plates were made for printing, amounting to 3,672 pages" (ABS Report 1918, p 39).

Other Army and Navy editions were printed from the 1855 Small Pica Octavo Bible (No 1587); the 1883 Minion 18mo Bible (No 1999); the 1887 Nonpareil 32mo NT (No 2029); and the 1899 Agate 32mo NT, with or without Psalms (No 2106). A Nonpareil Pocket NT (612 p, 10 cm) was issued in 1917. A 32mo NT (332 p, 13 cm) was issued in 1918 for the YMCA.

1 vol: (xv) (1136) 18 cm NNAB, OC

Jewish Publication Society Version; see 1903 Psalms, No 2151. Preface (dated September 27, 1916) and Table of Scriptural Readings precede text. Each of the three parts (The Law, The Prophets, The Writings) has its own title page. Printed in paragraph form, with poetical form in required places. Copyright 1917.

"The present translation is the first for which a group of men representative of Jewish learning among English-speaking Jews assume joint responsibility. . . . It aims to combine the spirit of Jewish tradition with the results of biblical scholarship, ancient, mediaeval, and modern" (Preface, p vii).

Professor Max L. Margolis prepared the manuscript of this version. His text was based on that of E. Baer, and for parts not completed by him, on the text of C. D. Ginsburg. The manuscript also made use of earlier translations which had been done for the Society, as well as ancient versions, other modern translations, and commentaries. In 1908, Prof. Margolis was elected Editor-in-Chief of a seven-member Board of Editors. The Board, sitting as a committee of the whole, considered this manuscript in sixteen sessions. At the last of these, in Oct – Nov of 1915, the revised proofs were accepted. (See Preface for a full account of the proceedings.) Psalms in this edition is a revision of the 1903 text.

This edition has been frequently reprinted with original date remaining on title page, but date of reprinting added on verso. A folio edition (34 cm) was produced in 1919 from a photographic enlargement of sheets of the 1917 edition. Abridgments were made for the armed forces of both World Wars: Readings from the Holy Scriptures for Jewish Soldiers and Sailors was published by The Jewish Publication Society of America in 1918 (iv, 276 p; 13 cm); a ninth impression of 20,000 copies was issued in 1941–42?, completing a total of 250,000 copies. Readings from the Holy Scriptures prepared for use of Jewish Personnel of the Army of the United States was published under the direction of the Chief of Chaplains by the United States Government Printing Office in 1942 (512 p, 14 cm). A peace-time abridgment, The Holy Scriptures . . . for use in the Jewish School and Home, was published by The Jewish Publication Society of America in 1931 (xxiv, 795 p; 22 cm). NNAB has copies of all of these.

1917? The New Testament; a New Translation by James Moffatt . . . New Edition, Revised. [Printed in the United States of America.] Hodder and Stoughton, George H. Doran Company: New York 2235

1 vol: (xii) (395) 17 cm NNAB

Moffatt's new translation of the NT was first printed by Hodder and Stoughton, Ltd., London, in 1913 (x, 327 p; 22 cm; NNAB). The publisher's records are incomplete because of war damage but the firm reports that "500 cancel titles" (with sheets?) were printed and an extra set of stereos sent to America about January 1914. The first royalties were received from the George H. Doran Company in July 1914; royalties for the same editions were later received in 1930 from Richard R. Smith and in 1933 from Harper and Brothers. NN, DLC, and other libraries have undated copies of the first edition imprinted Hodder and Stoughton, George H. Doran Company and copyright 1913. It seems impossible at this date to determine when the version was printed for the first time in America.

The New Edition, Revised, listed above, was purchased by NNAB in 1917 and may be the first American printing of the Moffatt Version. It is printed in paragraph form, single column. Sheets and then plates for this format were sent to Hodder and Stoughton in London in 1919.

NNAB has a reprint of the above dated 1930 and imprinted Richard R. Smith, Inc. NN and ViU have copies with Everyday Life Edition on title page, imprinted Association Press, New York, 1917. This was reprinted in 1941.

James Moffatt (1870–1944) was born in Scotland. He was Yates Professor of Greek at Mansfield College, Oxford, and later Professor of Church History at the United Free Church College, Glasgow. In 1927 he came to the United States and served as Washburn Professor of Church History at Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1927–1940. Dr. Moffatt made two different translations of the NT. The first preserved the language of the AV and was published in Edinburgh in 1901 under the title, The Historical New Testament . . . A New Translation. A second edition, somewhat revised, appeared in August of the same year. The second translation, based on the Greek text of von Soden, was first published in 1913 in England as noted above. It is a fresh translation in modern speech and not a revision of the 1901 edition (see Preface). This translation was published with the AV in a parallel edition in 1922 (No 2257).

Dr. Moffatt later translated the OT, which was first published in 1924–25 in 2 vols (No 2275). An edition of the complete Bible, incorporating the 1913 NT and the 1924–25 OT, was published in London in 1 vol in 1926; a revision was published in the United States by Harper & Bros. in 1935 (No 2350).

The Moffatt Version has been frequently reprinted in several formats. The NT text forms the basis of the Moffatt NT Commentary (17 vols). The text of the Gospels was also used in a continuous harmony arrangement with introductions and other comment in Everyman's Life of Jesus, a Narrative in the words of the Four Gospels, edited by James Moffatt, George H. Doran Company: New York, 1925 (242 p, 18 cm, NNAB).

1919–26? [The New Testament] Concordant Version. The Sacred Scriptures. Designed to put the English reader in possession of all the vital facts of Divine revelation without a former knowledge of Greek by means of A Restored Greek Text with Various Readings, conforming, as far as possible, to the inspired autographs; A Consistent Sublinear, based upon a Standard English equivalent for each Greek Element, and An Idiomatic, Emphasized English Version with notes, which are linked together and correlated for the English reader by means of An English Concordance and Lexicon and a complementary list of The Greek Elements. The Concordant Publishing Concern: Los Angeles 2250

20 cm NNAB

This consists of nine parts in a loose-leaf binder, with proof page numbers. Most of the parts are stapled in wrappers and printed on wartime paper. The Greek text and the annotated English version are on facing pages. Has six preliminary leaves, apparently issued as a prospectus, with copyright 1919, by A. E. Knoch on verso of title; Matthew's Account and Introduction has copyright 1926.

Cited copy lacks Concordance and other added matter.

Adolph E. Knoch was the editor of this version. His purpose was to give the Bible reader a means of interpreting the original text for himself through establishing a uniform English translation for each Greek form. To accomplish this work, Dr. Knoch and his assistants spent twenty-five years preparing a concordance in which the whole Greek vocabulary was analyzed and translated, along with a revision of the Greek grammar. This language system was the basis of the translation, which was made from the Textus Receptus with the addition of variations from the Alexandrinus, Vaticanus, and Sinaiticus codices. The translation was published in parts over the period 1921–26. It contains on one page the Greek text, including variations, with a sublinear English literal translation; and on the opposite page, the English idiomatic translation with notes.

A 1-vol reprint was issued in 1931 with proof page numbers removed (No 2323A). A pocket edition of the English idiomatic translation only was published in 1927? (No 2292).

Hodder and Stoughton, Ltd., of London made two sets of molds for this NT in 1922, one of which was sent to New York. Royalties were received from Doran in 1923, from Smith in 1930, and from Harper in 1933. Harper must have begun publishing this NT in the older text early in 1933.

NNAB has 1930 reprint issued by Richard R. Smith, Inc., New York. Harper published a new parallel edition with the Moffatt text from the 1935 revised Bible; see 1935 NT, No 2352A.

1922 [New Testament] A Plainer Bible for Plain People in Plain American . . . from the Original Greek by Chaplain Ballentine . . . Plainer Bible Press: Jersey City 2258

461 p 19 cm DLC, NN

Ballentine Version; see 1899–1901 NT, No 2102.

Simms (p 278) says that this edition is an improvement over previous editions. However, Cheek (p 150 f, note 2) says that "the two are quite obviously printed from the same plates and it is improbable that changes were made in the text. Obvious errors such as page numbers upside-down, omission of numbers and letters, badly broken and defaced type, and so on, are unchanged. Even the presswork is similar in such matters as poorly inked-pages and uncleaned type, which raises the question whether this was an attempt to dispose of the 7000 copies unsold from the poorly printed edition of 1909 [See No 2193]. In any case the 1922 edition is not to be considered a separate revision." Simms adds that the volumes were ruined by storage in a damp place before binding and only fifty or sixty copies were ever bound and given away.

1923 The New Testament. An American Translation by Edgar J. Goodspeed . . . The University of Chicago Press: Chicago 2260

1 vol: (ix) (481) 21 cm DLC, NcD, NN, NNAB, PPP

Preface and Contents precede text, which is printed in paragraph form, single column, without chapter and verse numbers. A key chapter and verse number appears at bottom of page. Poetical passages are in verse form, indented. Copyright 1923.

NNAB also has The Student's Gospels . . . arranged by Shailer Mathews, using The New Testament, An American Translation, By Edgar J. Goodspeed, The University of Chicago Press: Chicago, 1927 (ix, 193 p; 17 cm), which has the synoptic Gospels printed in harmonized form, with the Gospel of John Following.

Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed (1871–), professor of Biblical and Patristic Greek at the University of Chicago and one of the outstanding Biblical scholars of the country, translated the NT from the text of Westcott and Hort into "simple, straight-forward English of the everyday expression" for American readers. The Testament was well received and has been issued in numerous editions from 1923 to the present. The text has not been basically changed, though a few improvements were made in the Twenty-fifth Anniversary Edition of 1948. Dr. Goodspeed discusses many of his distinctive renderings in Problems of New Testament Translation, University of Chicago Press: Chicago, 1945. For a fascinating account of the reaction of the press, see Goodspeed's As I Remember, Harper and Bros.: New York, 1953. The NT was printed serially in the Chicago Evening Post. Early in October parts of it were read over radio station KYW.

In 1927 Dr. J. M. Powis Smith, in cooperation with other Biblical scholars, translated the OT from the Massoretic text into modern English as used by Americans, drawing on the latest scholarship in Hebrew and OT studies (see No 2290). In 1931 it was published together with the NT of Dr. Goodspeed under the title The Bible, an American Translation (see No 2321).

1923 The Riverside New Testament. A Translation from the Original Greek Into the English of To-Day by William G. Ballantine. The Riverside Press, [Cambridge] . . . Houghton Mifflin Company: Boston and New York 2261

1 vol: (vii) 3–499 21 cm CoD, CU, DLC, MB, NcD, NNAB, OC

Preface signed W. G. Ballantine and dated Springfield, Mass., January 1, 1923. Text printed in single column, paragraph form, without verse numbers. Copyright 1923.

William G. Ballantine (1848–1937), a Congregational minister and educator, was for many years associated with Oberlin Theological Seminary, serving as president from 1891–1906. His translation, based on Nestle's Greek text, is more literal than most modern speech versions. Ballantine states in the Preface that his NT aims "to serve as a plate glass window through which the man who does not read Greek will see in English what he would see if he did read Greek."

This Nonpareil 32mo was one of the first editions issued by the ABS after the discontinuance of printing at the Bible House. Printing machinery had improved so much by this period that it was deemed no longer practical for the Society to do its own work. From 1853 to 1922 there had been printed and bound in the Bible House 76,051,112 volumes of Scripture in sixty-eight languages and six systems of embossed type for the blind. During 1921 the Society experimented with having some books printed and bound elsewhere. As of February 1, 1922, the pressroom and the composing and electrotyping departments were closed and the machinery sold. Contracts were let to outside firms which, by the use of large presses, were, for example, able to print and bind five sets of the Gospel of John at a time. An edition of 250,000 copies was printed in May 1922 to sell at 1¢ each. In 1923 the bindery was almost completely closed down and other arrangements were made for printing for the blind.

In 1923, an edition of 250,000 of the above NT was printed, sewed in 32-page signatures, and bound "two-up," and sold at 10¢ each in limp cloth, cut flush. A wire-stitched Testament printed from the same plates was issued in two forms: one on inferior paper with paper cover, selling at 5¢; and another with better binding and paper and containing the Psalms. These processes were much more practical for the large English editions the Society needed. While from 1850 to 1900 three or four English Bibles had been set up each decade, none were set from 1900 to 1920. With funds now available from more economical processes, new English Scriptures were planned. (See ABS Reports for 1922, p 32 and 36; 1923, p 41–44; 1924, p 41–43; and 1926, p 60.)

1923–25 [The New Testament] The Gospel according to St. Matthew, American Bible Society, Instituted . . . : New York 2264

11 parts 12 cm NNAB

Above title taken from one of these 32mo portions of the NT, which are variously paged. These "penny portions" were published first with plain covers — some containing colored illustrations of places in the Holy Land — but later with picture covers — some with half-tones at end. They were originally issued at 1¢ each (2¢ with pictures); the price was raised to 2¢ in 1951, and to 3¢ in 1959.

ASV; see 1901, No 2124. This is an abridgment which omits the Levitical Laws, genealogies, parts of the prophecies, and some other matter. The Gospels follow the Harmony of J. M. Fuller. Text is printed in prose and poetry form in sections, without chapter or verse indication. Subject Index at end. Copyright 1924.

DLC has second edition, published in 1939 (xiv, 640 p; 21 cm).

The Everyday Bible was edited over a period of some 25 years by Charles M. Sheldon (1857–1946). He served a long term as pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Topeka, Kansas, and from 1920 to 1925 was editor of the Christian Herald. Among his many writings was the world-famous In His Steps (Chicago, 1896).

1924–28 [Old Testament] The Authentic Literature of Israel freed from the disarrangements, expansions and comments of early native editors, edited with an introduction by Elizabeth Czarnomska . . . The Macmillan Company: New York 2274

2 vols: Part I, (xxxv) (2) (422); Part II, (xxxi) (1) (553) 24 cm NN

Part I, From the Exodus to the Exile; Part II, From the Exile to the Recovery of Israel's Independence. Appendixes at end of each vol. The text is the AV with some modifications, notably the use of Yahweh for the Tetragrammaton. The arrangement of the text aims to show the results of the work of Driver, Haupt, Kent, et al, in simple form, without notes, and in chronological order beginning with the Decalogue. All the text is included at some point. Chapter and verse indication is given at the beginning of each section. Poetry is printed in broken lines, often attempting to show the parallelism of Hebrew poetry. The book is planned for the student and Bible reader to whom the longer and more elaborate works are not available.

1924–25 The Old Testament. A New Translation by James Moffatt . . . George H. Doran Company: New York 2275

2 vols: Vol I, (xi) (560); Vol II, (x) 561–1031 20 cm NNAB, OC

Moffatt Version; see 1917? NT, No 2235. Vol I (copyright 1924) has Preface dated Glasgow, 1924; Genesis-Esther. Vol II (copyright 1925) has Preface dated Glasgow, 1925; Job-Malachi. Printed in the U. S. A.

In the first six Books, Dr. Moffatt has indicated the several strata of texts by the use of italics and square brackets. Passages that are obscure in the Hebrew have been omitted, as indicated by dots.

1924 Centenary Translation of the New Testament Published to Signalize the Completion of the First Hundred Years of Work of the American Baptist Publication Society. Translated by Helen Barrett Montgomery . . . The American Baptist Publication Society: Philadelphia 2276

Reported as 724 p 17 cm PPABP

Dedication, Introduction, and Declaration of Discipleship precede text, which is printed in single column, paragraph form, with verse numbers in left margin.

NNAB has second printing, 1924 (same pagination and size as above). A 14th printing was issued in 1954. Title pages in current editions read Centenary Translation, The New Testament in Modern English. Translated by Helen Barrett Montgomery, A.M., D.H.L., LL.D. The Judson Press: Philadelphia, Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, and Seattle.

NNAB also has separate printings of the Gospels (1924; 7, 308 p; 16 cm) and Acts (pamphlet subtitled Acts of the Apostles, better entitled Acts of the Holy Spirit; 2, 311–393 p; 16 cm).

Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery (1861–1934) lived in Rochester, New York, and was a licensed Baptist minister. She was the first woman to independently produce a translation of the NT in modern speech. It was based on the Greek text underlying the ERV.

The color is added by over-printing. This text was also published with the words of Christ in red, and again in loose leaf form.

1928? The Holy Bible. Red Letter Edition . . . Large Type. Octavo. [Manufactured by The Commercial Bookbinding Company, Cleveland.] World Syndicate Company, Inc.: New York 2295

21 cm NNAB

Reprint of 1901 Red Letter Edition (No 2126) but with a shorter note (dated 1913) after the Synopsis of Books. Self-Pronouncing Helps and References appears at head of title page. Copyright 1901, by Klopsch.

In 1928 the Commercial Bookbinding Company of Cleveland, which had previously printed books for other publishers, bought out the World Syndicate Publishing Company. All Bibles and Testaments with this imprint must have been published before 1946, when the word "Syndicate" was dropped from the imprint. Copyright dates cover various types of added matter and do not indicate when the books were actually published. See 1907? Bible, No 2179. For other editions published by the firm at this time, see No 2296, No 2297, No 2298, and No 2300.

Self-pronouncing edition with center references and chronology. Has presentation page with colored picture on verso. Contains Synopsis of Books and note about * for Messianic OT prophecies. The note is shorter than in the Red Letter Editions of 1901 (No 2126) and 1928? (No 2295). Has Family Record. No imprint on NT title page. From the Fly-leaf of D. L. Moody's Bible, Order of Books, Bible Readers' Aids by Wright, and colored maps with index follow text. Colored illustrations and half-tones in NT.

1928? The Holy Bible . . . [Press of The Commercial Bookbinding Co., Cleveland]. World Syndicate Publishing Company: Cleveland and New York 2297

1 vol: (800) (246) (8) (28) (118) 20 cm NNAB

Self-Pronouncing Edition appears at head of title page. Following NT are Some of the Passages Changed in the Revised Version (5 p), A Brief Summary of the Characteristics of the Books (2 p), The Bible Readers' Aids by Wright (without imprint or copyright, 28 p), Concordance (118 p), and colored maps (8 p).

IaU and ICN have entries for similar books with 64 p of Bible Aids by Wright, dated 19—? and 194–? respectively.

NNAB also has: (1) A separate NT of the cited edition. (2) An edition (17 cm) received in 1950 and imprinted World Publishing Company, evidently made by photographic reduction of the above Bible; contains text and A Brief Summary . . . , plus colored presentation page; printed after 1945. (3) Another undated copy (15 cm) imprinted David C. Cook Publishing Company: Elgin, Illinois, printed on very poor quality paper and bound in coated stock, which was evidently reduced from the cited entry.

For World Syndicate Publishing Co., see No 2295 of this year.

Contains half-tone frontispiece, and Calendar for Daily Reading of Scriptures and Comment on the Lord's Prayer by the Rev. Hugh Macmillan. Copyright 1923, by World Syndicate Co., Inc.

Although this bears a 1923 copyright, it must have been published between 1928 and 1945. For World Syndicate Publishing Co., see No 2295 of this year.

NNAB has another copy with World Syndicate imprint only, containing same material but no copyright date. DLC has copy with World Syndicate imprint only.

1928 The Psalms Complete. Their Prayers, their Collects, their Praises, in three Books. Separated, arranged and translated by William Wallace Martin. Press of Marshall & Bruce Co.: Nashville, Tennessee 2302

3 parts: Part I, (14) 9–121; Part II, (14) 9–120; Part III, (14) 9–89 11 cm NNAB

NNAB also has 1940? reprint with additional notes, issued by The Parthenon Press: Nashville (xiv, 365 p; 16 cm).

Other parts of the Martin translation were published as follows (all held by NNAB):

1929 The Book of Job in two Versions: a Judean Version, an Ephramæan Version; and The Book of Ecclesiastes. Reconstructive Studies. Separated, arranged, and translated by William Wallace Martin. Press of Methodist Publishing House: Nashville
(191 p, 11 cm).

1940 Isaian Prophecies. Promises to Chosen People; Punishments to Chosen People; Promises to Other Peoples; Punishments to Other Peoples. Reconstructed, Retranslated and Annotated by William Wallace Martin. The Parthenon Press: Nashville
(xi, 262 p, 16 cm).

1940 Jeremiah-Ezekiel Prophecies of Promises to Chosen People . . . [etc., as above]. The Parthenon Press: Nashville
(xii, 301 p, 16 cm).

1941 The Book of Genesis Complete. The Ephramean Version, its Author a Descendant of the Northern Kingdom; the Judean Version, its Author a Descendant of the Southern Kingdom. Reconstructed and Retranslated by William Wallace Martin. The Parthenon Press: Nashville (x, 219 p, 16 cm).

1941 Twelve Minor Prophets, Complete . . . [as above]. Parthenon Press: Nashville
(xi, 206 p, 16 cm).

William Wallace Martin (1851–1947) was a graduate of Wesleyan University who later studied at Drew Seminary, Leipzig, and Bonn. For seven years he was professor of Hebrew at Vanderbilt University. In 1909 he was "set aside" by the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church "to pursue investigations in the Old Testament." He had previously published two books on the structure and documents of the Pentateuchal books, against the dominant Wellhausen school: Torah of Moses, 1900 (339 p, octavo) and Law and Covenant, being a critical study of Deuteronomy, its separation into two versions, 1902 (213 p, octavo).

In 1928 Martin began to publish the above parts under various imprints, at Nashville. (Parthenon Press is the term used when the Methodist Publishing House in printing but not publishing a work.) The work is of a highly original nature. The text is divided into brief sections with headings; the chapter number in the traditional order is noted at the end. So extensive are the rearrangements that it is impossible to determine without a full collation whether the entire text has been included, or whether some sections may not have been abbreviated or removed. For New Testament see No 2360, 1937?.

1928 The Christian's Bible  New Testament. A Translation from the Greek, Chiefly of the Codex Sinaiticus and Codex Vaticanus; These Being the Oldest and Most Complete MSS. of the New Testament. It is not Simply a Translation of Words, but Under the Guidance of the Holy Ghost, His Thoughts, as Recorded in Greek by His Specially Inspired Writers, are Made Known Unto Us. By a Servant of Christ. Published by George N. LeFevre: Strasburg, Pennsylvania 2303

Unpaged 23 cm NNAB

Preface, Brief History of English Versions, and Table of Contents precede text, which is in paragraph form, double column, with verse numbers in text. Footnotes. Material on codices Sinaiticus and Vaticanus at end, with facsimiles. Blank pages for notes. Copyright 1928.

George LeFevre is considered the translator as well as the publisher of this Testament. His aim was to make an English translation as close to the original as possible. The translation is therefore dependent on the interpretation of the translator as to meaning, and it contains a number of highly original changes. Simms (p 254) states that it is the last "immersion" version to be published in America.

Union Catalog lists entry for DLC with date of 1929, [352] p. In NNAB folder describing the translation, the title is reproduced with date 1929.

1928? The New Testament [and Psalms] . . . [Press of The Commercial Bookbinding Co., Cleveland]. World Syndicate Publishing Co., Inc.: New York 2304

1 vol: (990) (303) 17 cm DLC, NNAB

Text reprinted from the National Bible Press edition of 1926 (No 2288) but with considerable material omitted, a row of asterisks appearing in the blank spaces. Note on verso of title page: "This Twentieth Century Edition . . . from which certain indicated deletions have been made." The omitted material, all in the OT, seems to consist mostly of genealogies and passages considered "indelicate." Has presentation page, ornate title, and Order of Books classified by subject but in normal order. Also Family Record. Three blank pages for notes at end. Several half-tones of famous paintings. Blue fabricoid cover has a gold seal with an open Bible inside the legend, To read, to fear, to hope, to pray.

1929 The New Testament in Blank Verse by Geo. W. Wolff. Becktold Company, Edition Binders: St. Louis 2312

1 vol: (8) (586) 24 cm DLC, MB, NN, NNAB

Has Introduction. Text printed in blank verse form, single column, with regular verse numbers and chapter numbers in margin. Copyright 1929.

Mr. Wolff states that "a late authentic Bible" was used in his transposition of the text to blank verse (see Introduction). According to Cheek (p 156) this is only the AV in verse form, or as the Introduction states, "pentameter or so-called heroic or blank verse." Both italic and bold face type are used.

Text is based on the AV and ASV. Section I: Historical and General Information (a sort of concordance or Bible dictionary with lists of miracles, prayers, and parables) and maps and photographs (half-tones). Section II: Classified Scripture (text arranged by subject) followed by Laws, Prophecies, Gospels harmonized in parallel column (based on A. T. Robertson) and interwoven (by William M. Reese), Teachings of Jesus, Passages arranged by other subjects, Sayings of the Angels, Sayings of Satan, etc. Copyright 1922 and 1927. For earlier printing of Section II only, see 1922?, No 2256.

The System Bible Company also published this year The Bible in My Everyday Life, edited by Eugene Franklin Reese (432 p, 20 cm, NNAB) which consists of passages from the AV arranged by subject. This is much less elaborate than the System Bible.

1 vol: (vi) (848) (263) 21 cm NNAB

First edition of a new ABS standard text, in preparation since 1923. Some changes were made in orthography to conform to American usage; pronunciation marks were placed on most proper names in consultation with the G. and C. Merriam Company, publishers of Webster's Dictionary; and the page headings were completely re-edited. An English bold monotype face was chosen for its suitability to enlargement or reduction without resetting for other size books (for examples, see 1933, No 2337; 1935, No 2346; and 1938, No 2367). Copies were available also with maps and Concordance. Text preceded by Order of Books (1 p), Table of Pronunciation Marks (1 p), and Alphabetical Index (1 p).

Mittell, Editor: "To make available to all American Homes and Schools the best works of the world's literary masters, at a price within the reach of all." Bound in black suede paper. 100,000 copies were printed and 99,200 sold at 10¢ a copy from 1932 to 1941.

1932 The New Testament . . . American Bible Society, Instituted . . . : New York 2333

1 vol: (4) (376) (4) 13 cm NNAB

Photographically reduced from the 1933 NT (No 2338) which had been set in type in 1932. Table of Pronunciation Marks and Order of Books (2 p) precede text; black and white maps (3 p) at end (copyright 1928).

The changes approved for the 1932 Bible (No 2328) were not made in this book; however, the type was corrected for the 1933 NT before it was printed (see note under No 2338).

1933 The Holy Bible . . . Whitman Publishing Company: Racine, Wisconsin 2334

21 cm Not Located

One of the cheap editions issued by this publisher; see 1932, No 2331. According to information received from publisher, includes Pronouncing Guide, Calendar for Daily Reading, Bible Reader's Atlas, and 7 illustrations and 8 maps. Text (probably NT) ends on p 304. Not in print Jan 1959.

1933 The Short Bible, An American Translation. Edited by Edgar J. Goodspeed and J. M. Powis Smith. The University of Chicago Press: Chicago 2335

1 vol: (x) (549) 20 cm NNAB

American Translation; see 1923 NT, No 2260, and 1927 OT, No 2290. An abridgment. The sections have short introductions and are not in the normal Biblical order, but verse numbers remain in inner margins.

NNAB also has 1940? reprint (same pagination, 19 cm) issued by the Modern Library, New York.

1933? The Holy Bible . . . American Revision Committee A.D. 1901. Standard Edition. Made Specially for the American Bible Society . . . Thomas Nelson & Sons: New York 2336

1 vol: (4) (996) (4) (288) 19 cm NNAB

ASV; see 1901, No 2124. Reprint of 1919? ABS edition (No 2249) but with the 1929 copyright of the International Council of Religious Education.

In this and other ASV editions printed for the ABS after this date, the footnote to John 9:38 is omitted. Some members of the ABS Board of Managers had objected to the wording of this note in 1918 and the Board requested the publishers to omit the words "as here" from the note. However, the Nelson firm felt they were not at liberty to do so. After the copyright was taken over by the International Council, the question was again raised and the American Standard Bible Committee gave permission for the omission of the whole note.

A smaller Bible produced page for page by photographic reduction from the 1932 edition (No 2328).

1 vol: (4) (376) (4) (2) (94) 17 cm NNAB

A 24mo Testament (with Psalms) in the 1932 ABS standard text; see No 2328. Has Table of Pronunciation Marks and Order of Books (2 p). Black and white maps (copyright 1928, 3 p) follow NT. The 1932 NT (No 2333) was photographed from type set for this. Later the type was corrected to include the following changes before the above edition was printed: nowise for no wise (Mat 5:18), seaside for sea side (Mat 13:1), winefat for winevat (Mark 12:1), kinsfolks for kinsfolk (Luke 21:16), strake for struck (Acts 27:17), and God speed for God-speed (2 John 10, 11).

Also issued without Psalms

1933 The Four Gospels, a New Translation. By Charles Cutler Torrey . . . Harper & Brothers, Publishers: New York and London 2339

1 vol: (xii) (331) 20 cm NNAB

> Jesus and his disciples spoke and wrote Aramaic. His reported words and discourses, and the earliest accounts of his deeds, were written down and circulated in that language, as no one doubts. . . .
>
> It is purposed here to show that the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and John were composed in Aramaic on the basis of popular documents widespread in Palestine, and that they were by others translated into Greek without intended change. Also, that Luke employed only Semitic sources, assembling them into an especially complete Gospel, which he himself translated. (Preface, p ix)

An essay on The Origin of the Gospels and Notes on the New Readings follow text.

NNAB also has second edition revised, 1947, with new preface (xx, 331 p; 20 cm).

Dr. Torrey (1863–1956) graduated from Bowdoin College in 1884 and studied at Andover Theological Seminary and the University of Strasburg (Ph.D., 1892). From 1900 he was for many years professor of Semitic languages at Yale University and had been a collaborator on the Kent Version (see 1904–27 OT, No 2158, and 1918 NT, No 2242).

1933 The Four Gospels according to the Eastern Version. Translated from the Aramaic by George M. Lamsa . . . A. J. Holman Company: Philadelphia 2340

1 vol: (xxvi) (228) (4) 17 cm NNAB

Dedication to Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Rollins, Introduction, and List of Words with Many Meanings precede text. Has footnotes and maps. Copyright 1933.

George M. Lamsa (1892–) was born in Kurdistan where Aramaic or ancient Syriac is the language of the Church. He studied at Urmiah and Van, and in 1916 came to the United States, where he attended Virginia Theological Seminary and Dropsie College. It is his belief that the entire NT was originally written in Aramaic and that the Syriac text, known as the Peshitta, is "written in the language in which Our Blessed Lord, His disciples and the early Christians spoke and wrote." For a review of his work, see W. D. McHardy's "A Translation of an Ancient Version," in The Bible Translator (vol 7, no 2, p 66–72).

The Psalms were published in 1939 (No 2377), the NT in 1940 (No 2389), and the Bible in 1957 (No 2568).

1937? The New Testament critically reconstructed and retrans-lated. by William Wallace Martin. Parthenon Press: Nashville, Tennessee 2360

1 vol: (viii) (244) 30 cm NNAB

Martin Version; see 1928 Psalms, No 2302. Mr. Martin has reconstructed the twenty-one canonical Epistles into thirty-six, including as authors Apollos, Barnabas, and John, son of Zebedee (as the writer of part of the Epistle of James). Except for the Epistle to the Laodicaens, the destinations are not altered. Text is printed in double column format. The type already used for the parts was incorporated, without apparent change, into the completed work. Copyright 1937.

In 1929–30 the Epistles were issued in two volumes: Part I, Press of Marshall and Bruce Co.: Nashville, 1929 (6, 222 p; 11 cm); Part II, Press of Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church: Nashville, 1930 (246 p, 11 cm). Reprinted in 1942 with many notes interspersed with text (xi, 191 p; 16 cm). In "An Important Distinction" in the 1942 reprint, Mr. Martin wrote: "I am fully aware that I am open to challenge from scholars when I affirm that we have Epistles of length from Paul, and Apollos, and Barnabas. And if I reproduce them and use only material found in the Scriptures of the New Testament, I prove my assertion" (p 3).

1937 The New Testament. A New Translation and Explanation Based on the Oldest Manuscripts by Johannes Greber. Part I, Translation . . . John Felsberg, Inc.: New York 2361

463 p 23 cm NNAB

Text is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in margin. Copyright 1937, by Johannes Greber.

Johannes Greber (18??–1944?) of Germany, was a former Roman Catholic priest who came to believe in communication with the world of divine spirits. He based his translation on Codex Bezae (D), which "most nearly approaches the truth." "In the rare instances in which a text pronounced correct by the divine spirits can be found in none of the manuscripts available today, I have used the text as it was given to me by those spirits." "In my German Translation I made it my chief concern to reproduce the exact meaning of the Greek text in good but simple German. . . . The translation of the German original into English was made by a professional translator, corrected by a committee of American clergymen . . . and thoroughly revised by a teacher. . . ." (p 15f.)

Part II, the Explanation, "is not so much intended to make the translation clearer as it is to offer reasons for the several truths contained therein. . . ." (p 16.) Part II was never published.

Foreword and Contents precede text, which is printed in normal prose form without verse numbers. Explanatory and critical notes. Copyright 1937.

Mr. Williams (1860–1952) was a Baptist who aimed in his translation to make the NT readable and understandable by the plain people. It is based on the Westcott & Hort Greek text, and where there have been conflicts in the Greek text, the Vatican manuscript was used. The effort has been made to translate thoughts and not single words into idiomatic English. The translator spent twenty years on the work. (See Preface.)

1 vol: (vi) (2) (548) 21 cm DLC, NNAB

First edition, June 1941. Text printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in margin. Copyright 1941.

This Testament was reprinted from a Cambridge edition. It was prepared by a committee under the direction of S. H. Hooke (University of London), in collaboration with the Orthological Institute of Cambridge, using "Basic English," which is a simplified form of the English tongue developed by the English semanticist, Mr. C. K. Ogden of Cambridge. There had already been printed in England a book of selections in 1933, Micah and Habakkuk in 1934, Mark in 1945, and John in 1938.

Frequently reprinted. NNAB also has second printing, July 1941.

1 vol: (viii) (762) (10) 20 cm NcD, NN, NNAB, OC, OGK, ViU

Recommendation, excerpt from Encyclical of Pope Benedict xv, and Preface precede text, which is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in left margin. Bible Helps at end. Maps. Copyright 1941.

This translation, known as the Confraternity Version, was prepared at the request of the Episcopal Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, and approved by the Biblical Commission at Rome and by twenty-eight scholars of the Catholic Biblical Association under the chairmanship of the Rev. Edward P. Arbez. It is a revision of the Challoner-Rheims Version, taking advantage of advances in Greek scholarship but based on the Vulgate. Changes were also made in sentence structure and expression to "give a simple and clear modern version." After permission was granted by Pope Pius xii in 1943 for translations to be made from the original texts, a version of the whole Bible was begun under the same auspices and with the Rev. Louis F. Hartman, C.S.S.R., S.S.L., as chairman of the Editorial Board (see 1948– , No 2470). Three sections of the OT have been published and it is understood that when the OT is completed a new revision of the NT will follow, based directly on the Greek text.

Many times reprinted in two sizes but with the same pagination. Also printed with the Challoner-Douay OT a number of times, to which was added in 1954 Genesis-Ruth in the Confraternity text. (See 1952, No 2508; 1954, No 2539; 1957, No 2570.)

Also issued in brown cloth binding and marked U. S. Army. NNAB also has NT with Kingsport Press imprint only but with PTL membership card inside front cover and "decision card" inside back cover. Received 1947 (515 p, 11 cm).

The Pocket Testament League was organized in New York in 1916 as a world-wide Bible movement uniting those who agree to read the Bible every day and to carry a Bible or Testament wherever they go. It combines evangelistic effort with Scripture distribution. The League originated in England, but has been active in the United States and other parts of the world. At least as early as 1938 the John C. Winston Company began printing at the Kingsport Press, Kingsport, Tenn. for the PTL. During 1941 and 1942 this firm printed a great many copies for the League for distribution to the Armed Forces. Their leather-bound Testaments have usually been printed in England by the Oxford University Press.

American Pocket Edition printed in the United States in reduced size by photographic process from the London fifth edition of 1936. Copyright 1943, by The Pilgrim Press.

Also printed in a regular size edition.

This translation, first published in England in 1903, was the work of Richard Francis Weymouth (1822–1902), a Baptist layman who edited The Resultant Greek Testament in 1886. His aim was to express the Greek text in the form the inspired writers would have used if writing in our age and country, to serve as supplement and commentary to the versions in general use. The translation was completed in 1900 and seen through the press by the Rev. Ernest Hampden-Cook. It was issued with and without notes and has been very popular both in the British Isles and America. Earlier editions issued in the United States were actually printed in Great Britain. The text was revised in the 1924 edition by the Rev. S. W. Green, the Rev. Prof. A. J. D. Farrer, and the Rev. Prof. H. T. Andrews, and again in 1929 by the Rev. Prof. James Alexander Robertson.

Imprimatur, etc., Archbishop Spellman, New York. Preface signed by R. A. Knox, 1943. Text printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in margin. Notes and references at foot of page. Copyright 1944.

TxU has copy with statement: Fourth Printing, entered for 1944. MH has 1947 and 1949 editions.

In the third and subsequent printings, the title was shortened to The New Testament of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. A New Translation. (Pope, p 504.) The text follows the British "trial" edition of 1944.

Msgr. Ronald Arbuthnott Knox (1888–1957) was the fourth son of Dr. E. A. Knox, the Anglican Bishop of Manchester. He received his education at Eton and Oxford (Balliol) and took orders in the Church of England in 1912 but became a Roman Catholic in 1917. Msgr. Knox was an eminent scholar, churchman, preacher, literary stylist, satirist, and writer of detective stories. His translation of the Bible is based on the Latin Vulgate text, and he aimed at a sort of timeless English. While his work has delightful literary style, he occasionally resorted to paraphrase. The translation of the NT is probably more satisfactory from a scholarly point of view, particularly in the Epistles, than of the OT. Professor Robert A. Dyson, S.J., says of his work: "His translations will reach more people and influence more lives than anything else he did." Some changes were made in a "final" edition (1945) printed in England. Among these are Lads to Friends in John 21:5 and It is within your knowledge to You yourselves can testify in Acts 20:18.

1 vol: (v) (672) 15 cm DLC, NNAB

Preface signed G. V. Text printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in margin. Commentary below text. First printing, October 1945. Copyright 1945.

Dr. Verkuyl, a Presbyterian, was born in Holland in 1872. He was a New Testament fellow at Princeton and also studied at Leipzig and Berlin, receiving his Ph.D. from Leipzig. He based his modern speech translation on the Tischendorf and Nestle and Leusden Greek texts, on the Latin New Testament, and on some modern language versions. Words which could not be translated adequately are explained in footnotes. Dr. Verkuyl also worked out as far as possible the dates of events or sayings and of writings of the NT.

In 1946 the Gillick firm printed an edition in which forty-one errors were corrected; in 1947 they issued another edition with additional corrections. Zondervan published editions in 1950 and 1953 with corrected notes but the original text. The copyright was assigned to the Zondervan Publishing House in 1958.

A translation of the entire Bible was published in 1959 (x, 944, 2,289 p; 22 cm; NNAB). Dr. Verkuyl served as editor-in-chief for the OT, assisted by a large group of scholars and advisers. While this text is "in tune with the AV," it claims to be a fresh translation from Hebrew and Greek with reference to Aramaic and the Greek LXX.

Has Preface. Text in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in text; references and alternative readings and renderings at foot of page. Copyright 1901, by Thomas Nelson & Sons; copyright renewed 1929, by the International Council of Religious Education; copyright 1946, by the International Council of Religious Education.

This is the first appearance of the Revised Standard Version, or RSV. When the copyright to the American Standard Version was transferred in 1929 to the International Council of Religious Education, consideration was given to its further revision. In 1930 the American Standard Bible Committee was set up, with Dean Luther A. Weigle, of the Yale University Divinity School, as chairman. At meetings in 1930 and 1931 there was a good deal of discussion as to how much revision was desirable. Although none of the members of the committee were to receive salaries or honoraria, there would be considerable expenses for travel to meetings, etc. In the early 1930s funds were difficult to secure for such a project but in 1936 satisfactory financial arrangements were made. New members were added to the original committee of thirteen and in 1939 the Committee defined its task "to be that of revision of the present American Standard Edition of the Bible in the light of the results of modern scholarship, this revision to be designed for use in public and private worship and to be in the direction of the simple, classic English style of the King James Version." Dr. James Moffatt, retiring from the faculty of Union Theological Seminary in 1938, became the executive secretary until his death in 1944. Dr. Weigle carried on this responsibility until the appointment in 1947 of Dr. Fleming James, dean emeritus of the School of Theology, the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Other members of the NT Committee: H. J. Cadbury (Harvard), E. J. Goodspeed (U of Chicago), W. R. Bowie (Grace Church), F. C. Grant (Union), M. Burrows (Yale), C. T. Craig (Oberlin), and A. R. Wentz (Lutheran). For fuller details as to personnel, procedures, etc., see the Prefaces to the NT and Bible, and two pamphlets published by Thomas Nelson & Sons: An Introduction to the Revised Standard Version of the New Testament by Members of the Revision Committee, Luther A. Weigle, Chairman, copyright 1946, and a similar one on the OT, copyright 1952.

The NT was published on Feb 11, 1946, and dedicated at a service of thanksgiving at a session of the International Council in Columbus, Ohio. The OT (No 2514) and the complete Bible (No 2510) were published in 1952. The RSV NT was widely welcomed but the publication of the OT in 1952 raised a storm of violent opposition on the part of a small group of conservatives who objected particularly to the translation of Isaiah 7:14. In spite of this the RSV Bible has received constantly increasing acceptance as the best English Bible for general Protestant use.

1947 The New Testament . . . Translated from the Greek text of Westcott and Hort. By Rev. George Swann . . . [Printed by the Pentecostal Publishing Company: Louisville, Kentucky] 2464

1 vol: (vi) (262) (2) 24 cm NNAB

A second edition was issued in 1949. NNAB has third edition imprinted New Testament Publishers: Louisville, Kentucky (vii, 262, v p; 23 cm).

George Swann (1882–) received his A.B. degree from Transylvania and College of the Bible, Lexington, Kentucky, in 1909 and since has served as pastor in Christian churches in Kentucky, being with the Edenside Christian Church in Louisville from 1928 to 1952. Ten years were spent in the preparation of this work. He has sought to avoid paraphrase and has enclosed added words in parentheses. He has retained the "thou" forms in the Gospels in about half of their occurrences, eliminating them elsewhere except in direct quotations. In the first two editions the traditional chapter and verse numbering is given only at the head of the page, a system of continuous versification (1–1782) being used instead. In the third edition the usual numbering is given at the right of the caption. A brief index, based on his numbering, follows the text. Mr. Swann has made changes in each edition.

Fly title, List of Aids, Preface, Contents, account: "God Has Spoken," History of the Bible, and Introductions precede text. Account: "From the Old to the New" follows OT. Introductions precede NT. At end are Concordance, Bible Atlas, and Index to maps. Maps and plans.

This work was prepared by a group of scholars from several Protestant denominations. Introductions are provided for each Book and footnotes trace ideas, explain archaic words, and clarify difficult passages.

1948–49 [Holy Bible] The Book of Human Destiny . . . By Solomon Goldman. Publishers, Harper & Brothers: New York and London 2468

2 vols: Vol I, (xiii) (459); Vol II, (xiv) (892) 24 cm NNAB

Vol I (1948), The Book of Books: An Introduction. Contains an evaluation of the Hebrew Bible and the impression it has made on the mind of Western man. Vol II (1949), Genesis. Contains selections from text, commentary, etc. The rather large amount of supplementary matter includes some useful material on the influence of the Bible on literature, entitled "Echoes and Allusions." Other volumes were planned but the project was discontinued.

Rabbi Goldman (1893–1953) was born in Russia. He received an A.B. degree at New York University in 1917 and later studied at the Jewish Theological Seminary, Columbia University, and the University of Chicago.

1948 The Holy Bible . . . with Notes Especially Adapted for Young Christians . . . Pilgrim Edition. Oxford University Press: New York 2469

1 vol: (xxii) (1721) (17) 20 cm DLC, MB, NNAB

An abridgment of the AV edited by a group of scholars, pastors, teachers, and editors, headed by E. Schuyler English, Litt.D. Planned originally for children, it developed into a text understandable "to any young Christians of any age, children included." With a somewhat "dispensational slant," it is related to the Scofield Bible (see 1909, No 2192). Some of the "literal or more accurate" translations of the revised versions are included in the notes. The footnotes also have definitions, refinements of translation, and sidelights from contemporary literature. Between the OT and NT is a History of the Intertestament Period. Has Introductions to each Book, maps, and plans. Ussher's Chronology is included and italics are employed for supplied words.

1948– The Holy Bible. Translated from the Original Languages with Critical Use of All the Ancient Sources by Members of the Catholic Biblical Association of America. Sponsored by the Episcopal Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine . . . St. Anthony Guild Press: Paterson, New Jersey 2470

Confraternity Version; see 1941 NT, No 2397. This work is still in progress. The volumes published to date are all 20 cm with notes and references at foot of page, and are located as follows:

The Book of Genesis, 1948. (vi, 1, 2–129 p; NN, NNAB)

The Book of Psalms and the Canticles of the Roman Breviary, 1950. (vi, 1, 2–301 p; NN, NNAB)

[Volume One] Genesis to Ruth, 1952. (xii, 1, 2–664 p; OC)

Genesis is reproduced without substantial difference from the 1948 edition. The following misprints have been noted: ". . . bdellium and onyx [are] there" (Gen 2:12, p 6) and ". . . the skunk (for skink), and the mole" (Lev 11:30, p 255).

These errors have been corrected and the textual notes reset in the 1953 reprint (x, 1, 2–662 p; NNAB).

[Volume Three] The Sapiential Books, Job to Sirach, 1955. (viii, 1, 2–712 p; NNAB)

[Volume Four] The Prophetic Books, Isaia-Malachia, 1961. (viii, 1–776; NNAB).

1948–50 The Old Testament newly translated from the Vulgate Latin by Msgr. Ronald Knox at the request of His Eminence The Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster. . . . Issued by Sheed & Ward, Inc.: New York 2471

2 vols: Vol I, (10) (737) (3); Vol II, (6) 741–1604 22 cm NNAB

Knox Version; see 1944 NT, No 2429. This is the first American printing of the Knox OT. Vol I, Genesis-Esther. Vol II, Job-Machabees; also contains an alternative version of the Psalms based on the Latin text of the Pontifical Biblical Institute (Rome, 1945), printed in smaller type (p 1535–1604).

The alternative Knox version of the Psalms was also printed separately with the Pontifical Biblical Institute Latin text: The Book of Psalms in Latin and English, Sheed and Ward: New York, 1950 (451 p, 15 cm).

1 vol: (x) (373) 25 cm NN, NNAB

American Translation; see 1923 NT, No 2260. Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Edition 1948. Dr. Goodspeed furnished materials for numerous changes to improve the translation. The format and type page were changed in an attempt to make this the most readable NT on the market. It is printed in paragraph form, double columns, with verse numbers in margin. Copyright 1923 and 1948.

ICU has 1951? edition (ix, 372 p).

1948 Letters to Young Churches. A Translation of the New Testament Epistles by J. B. Phillips, with an Introduction by C. S. Lewis . . . The Macmillan Company: New York 2473

1 vol: (xiv) (225) 21 cm NNAB

Preliminary matter includes Order of Books, Introduction by C. S. Lewis, and Translator's Preface dated 1941–46. Text printed in paragraph form, single column, with section heads and chapter and verse indication. Copyright 1947.

This volume was followed by:

The Gospels, 1953. (ix, 2, 243 p; 21 cm)

The Young Church in Action. A translation of the Acts of the Apostles, 1955. (xvi, 2, 3–103 p; 21 cm)

The Book of Revelation, 1957. (xiv, 50 p; 21 cm)

Letters to Young Churches . . . Epistles, a corrected edition, 1957. (xiv, 225 p; 21 cm)

The New Testament in Modern English, translated by J. B. Phillips, 1958. (xiv, 575 p; 21 cm)

The Gospels, a corrected edition, 1958. (x, 252 p; 21 cm)

NNAB has all of these. All but the NT were printed first in England, usually a year before American publication, by Geoffrey Bles. The NT appeared in London two weeks after the American edition.

John Bertram Phillips (1906–) was born in London and returned there after taking a B.D. degree at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and studying for the ministry at Cambridge. He was ordained a priest in the Church of England in 1930, but because of ill health served as a journalist between his first two curacies. In 1940 he became vicar of the Church of The Good Shepherd in London and remained in that much-blitzed section until nearly the end of the war. In 1955 he retired from parish work to devote himself to writing and speaking. It was during the War that he was impressed by the fact that young people in his parish could understand hardly a sentence of the AV. His translation is rather free but is based on somewhat conservative scholarship. The Letters to Young Churches has been extremely popular in Britain and America. By the end of 1957, over 400,000 copies of the cheap edition had been sold in England.

The following is from the Foreword to the NT: "... the translator's function is to understand as fully and deeply as possible what the New Testament writers had to say and then, after a process of what might be called reflective digestion, to write it down in the language of the people today.... Occasionally one is driven into what appears to be a paraphrase, simply because a literal translation of the original Greek would prove unintelligible."

1949 The Holy Bible . . . The World Publishing Company: Cleveland and New York 2474

1 vol: (xxiv) (942) 49 cm CtY, DLC, MH, MnU, NN, NNAB

Has type ornaments on title page, and ornamental head and tail pieces and initial for each Book. Dedication to King James with border reflecting the English rose, Scottish thistle, fleur-de-lis, and harp of Ireland of the 1611 edition. Contains The Translators to the Reader (14 p). Printed in paragraph form, double columns, with poetry passages indented. NT title lacks border and imprint. Colophon reads "Printed by A. Colish from designs by Bruce Rogers for the World Publishing Company Cleveland and New York MCMXLIX nine hundred and seventy-five copies."

This is World's Bruce Rogers Bible. The type is based on that originally designed by Frederic Goudy (Newstyle) and considered by Rogers for the Oxford Lectern Bible. It was modified by Rogers and cast for Monotype composition. The type and the ornaments were thought to give a slightly oriental flavor to the volume, reflecting the Syriac and Hebrew sources. It was planned for memorial presentation to schools and churches, as well as for collectors and book lovers.

1949 The New Catholic Edition of the Holy Bible, Translated from the Latin Vulgate. The Old Testament, Douay Version, with Newly Edited Annotations of Bishop Challoner and a New Translation of the Book of Psalms from the New Latin Version Approved by Pope Pius XII and the New Testament Confraternity Edition, A Revision of the Challoner-Rheims Version Edited by Catholic Scholars under the Patronage of the Episcopal Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine . . . [The Riverside Press, Cambridge] Houghton Mifflin Company: Boston 2486

1 vol: (xxxviii) (1257) 23 cm NNAB

Preliminary matter includes dedication to Dartmouth College, Advisory Board, etc., Contents, list of maps, Authors' Preface and The Bible Through the Ages. The text is printed in paragraph and poetry form with verse numbers in the margins. About half the full text is omitted (repetitions, material of interest only to technical students), such omissions usually being indicated. Footnotes give readings of modern scholarship in addition to explanations. Ruth, Esther and Jonah are placed together, Proverbs is broken up into subject divisions, the Prophets and the Epistles arranged chronologically, and the Gospels harmonized. Has Key to Abbreviations, bibliography, and A Modern Reader's Index (45 p) at end. Colored maps of the OT and NT worlds are used as endpapers.

1950 [New Testament] New World Translation of the Christian Greek Scriptures Rendered from the Original Language by the New World Bible Translation Committee . . . [Publishers: Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Inc.; International Bible Students Association: Brooklyn] 2494

1 vol: (792) (8) 19 cm DLC, NN, NNAB, OC

Foreword and other explanatory material precede text, which is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in text and references in margin. Has textual interpretations in footnotes. Appendix, Bible Helps, and maps at end. Copyright 1950.

NNAB also has 1951 reprint with additional notes and minor changes.

The New World Translation Committee, an organization of the Jehovah's Witnesses, based its translation largely on the Greek text of Westcott and Hort, supplemented by the texts of Nestle and the Jesuit scholars Bover and Merk. Variations from Westcott and Hort are shown in the footnotes. The translators aimed to dispose of archaic language and "to give as literal a translation as possible. . . . To each major word we have assigned one meaning and have held to that meaning as far as the context permitted . . ." (Foreword, p 9). The Foreword (p 25) contains an extended vindication of the rendering "Jehovah" in place of "the Lord" in cases of quotations from or apparent allusions to the Hebrew. The translators would have preferred "Yah·weh" but kept the form "Jehovah" because of its familiarity.

This translation is understood to have been made by Mr. A. B. Traina and printed at his expense. At the end of the Preface, signed Scripture Research Association, Philip B. Wisman . . . April, 1950, acknowledgment is made of "the work of Pastor A. B. Traina . . . whose many years of extensive scriptural research have given continuity to our efforts and has brought them to successful completion" (p 13). The work attempts to restore Semitic proper names to their Aramaic or Hebrew form and to clear up difficulties in the text in the light of possible Semitic background. The text of the AV is used as the framework for this version.

1 vol: (xxii) (2) (997) (7) (294) [1] 22 cm DLC, NN, NNAB, OC

RSV; see 1946 NT, No 2453. The RSV Bible was published simultaneously in New York, Toronto, and Edinburgh. Contains Preface and Key to Abbreviations. Alternative readings and renderings and references at foot of page. Text printed in paragraph form, double columns, with verse numbers in text. Poetical sections in poetry form. OT copyright 1952 and NT 1946, by the Division of Christian Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

The addresses of the Nelson offices in various parts of the world are listed on the last page, followed by the statement: "The text for this book was set in 9 point Linotype Electra on a 9½ point body with short descenders by: H. Wolff Book Mfg. Co., Inc., New York, N. Y. Paper supplied by: Central Paper Company, Inc., Muskegon, Mich. Buckram and imitation leather for binding supplied by: The Holliston Mills, Inc., Norwood, Mass. Stamped in 24 karat genuine gold supplied by: M. Swift and Sons, Hartford, Conn. Buckram edition manufactured by: American Book-Stratford Press, Inc., New York, N. Y."

NNAB has another copy for which the paper was supplied by Crocker, Burbank Papers, Inc., Fitchburg, Mass., and the printer of both buckram and leather editions was the Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass., bound by Thomas Nelson & Sons, Camden, N. J. In later printings p 294 is not numbered. NNAB also has an edition printed in 1953 in which certain errors in the NT have been corrected: "has" to "hast" (Luke 2.31) and "kill" to "killed" (Acts 3:15). At Mat 1:16 occurs a note that was later eliminated. (See 1952 NT, No 2517).

In addition to Dr Weigle, Dr Moffatt, and Dr Burrows, the following scholars were active on the OT Committee: W. R. Taylor (Toronto), G. Dahl (Yale), W. A. Irwin (U of Chicago), W. L. Sperry (Harvard Divinity), L. Waterman (U of Chicago), K. M. Yates (So. Baptist), W. F. Albright (Johns Hopkins), J. P. Hyatt (Vanderbilt), J. Muilenburg (Pacific), and H. M. Orlinsky (Jewish Institute of Religion).

Thomas Nelson and Sons were granted the exclusive rights to publish this Bible for ten years. In 1962 other publishers will be granted rights to publish. The Apocrypha was published in 1957 (see No 2573). An edition of the Bible with references and concordance was published in 1959. By 1960 more than eight million copies of the RSV Bible had been sold.

The Standard Bible Committee, a Standing Committee of the Division of Christian Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A., continues to exist, having charge of the text. It has recommended (1959) that no revision of the RSV be undertaken at present but an edition published by Nelson in Nov 1960 had certain corrections in punctuation, capitalization or footnotes but with a few changes in wording: "from," Job 19:26; "bread," Mat 7:9 and 1 Cor 10:17; "the husband of one wife," I Tim 3:2, 12; 5:9 and Titus 1:6 and a few others. These changes will appear in editions issued by other publishers in 1962.

RSV; see 1946 NT, No 2453. Copyright 1946, by Division of Christian Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America.

The Division of Christian Education, etc. took over the work of the International Council of Religious Education in 1950. The text was reset by linotype from the 1946 edition with a number of corrections. One of the most frequent changes was substituting "Other" for "Some" or "Many" in the identification of alternative readings; i.e., "Other authorities read. . . ." Other changes include "thou" to "you" (Mat 2:6, etc.) and "consecration" to "holiness" (ɪ Thess 4:7) and to "sanctification" (ɪɪ Thess 2:13). The error in Luke 2:31, "has" for "hast," still stands. In this edition a footnote was added at Mat 1:16: "Other ancient authorities read Joseph, to whom was betrothed the virgin Mary, was the father of Jesus who is called Christ." This was eliminated later.

NNAB has a copy of the 1946 NT which contains all the changes and corrections marked by the Nelson proofreader.

1953 Young's Literal Translation of the Holy Bible, by Robert Young . . . Revised Edition. [Photolithographed by Cushing-Malloy, Inc.: Ann Arbor, Michigan.] Baker Book House: Grand Rapids 2523

Reported as (16) (586) (3) (178) 23 cm MH–AH

Contains Preface to the 1898 Edinburgh edition.

This is the first American edition of Young's Literal Translation. Robert Young (1822–88), a Presbyterian, was a lay theologian and orientalist who took up printing and book selling in 1847. He spent the years 1857–61 in India as superintendent of the Mission Press at Surat. His literal translation, first published in Edinburgh in 1863, was intended to help "the reader think, see, feel and reason" as does the writer of the text. Even more famous than this frequently-reprinted translation was The Analytical Concordance of the Bible, 1879. He also prepared A Concise Commentary on the Holy Bible, which was published in 1865.

1953–60 [Old Testament] New World Translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. Rendered from the Original Languages by the New World Bible Translation Committee . . . Publishers: Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Inc.: International Bible Students Association: Brooklyn 2527

New World Version; see 1950 NT, No 2494. The basic Hebrew text is the seventh edition of Kittel's Biblica Hebraica, 1951. Issued in five vols: [Vol I], Genesis-Ruth, 1953 (853 p, with maps and plan); Vol II, I Samuel-Esther, 1955 (705 p, with maps and plans); Vol III, Job-Song of Solomon, 1957 (511 p, including 1 plan); Vol IV, Isaiah-Lamentations, 1958 (398 p, with maps and figures) and Vol V, Ezekiel-Malachi, 1960 (472 p with 8 maps and plans).

All the volumes issued are inscribed "First Edition" on the verso of title, with the date of first issue. Mr. Glass of the Brooklyn Office has reported that the number of copies in print is increased with each new run, but that the book is to be considered first edition until major revisions are made.

1953/54? The New Testament. A New, Independent, Individual Translation from the Greek, by George Albert Moore, Colonel, USA., Rtd. Issued Serially. The Country Dollar Press: Chevy Chase, Maryland 2528

1 vol: (14) (353) 29 cm DLC, NNAB

Has Preface and biographical material. Text in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in margin. "This collector's edition is limited to 250 copies signed and numbered." Stencils cut and mimeographing done by Country Dollar Press. Copyright 1953.

Using Souter's 1950 Greek text, Colonel Moore made a line for line comparison with the edition of the Latin Vulgate printed at Tournai, 1894; Martin Luther's German translation, Halle edition of 1741; the French translation of the Bible Society of France of 1918; and the English translations of Lattey, the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, R. A. Knox, and the AV. The translator states in the Preface, "The reason for this translation is that I want to do it, that there is none that exactly suits me, and that, since it is absolutely mine, and mine only, independent, individual, unsponsored, and dedicated solely to accuracy, clarity, and simplicity, it is possible that it may induce more individuals to read the Scriptures."

NNAB has separate issue of the Gospels, 1953.

1954 [Old Testament] The Septuagint Bible. The Oldest Version of the Old Testament in the Translation of Charles Thomson, Secretary of the Continental Congress of the United States of America, 1774–1789, as Edited, Revised and Enlarged by C. A. Muses . . . Falcon's Wing Press: Indian Hills, Colorado 2540

1 vol: (xxvi) (1426) 22 cm NNAB, OC

Charles Thomson Version; see 1808, No 153. Does not include Apocrypha. Fly title, Dedication, Acknowledgments, Foreword to the Reader, Introduction, Order of Books, and half title precede text, which is printed in paragraph form, single column, with verse numbers in brackets in text. Square brackets indicate material added by the editor to make the meaning clear, while parentheses indicate a parenthetical expression in the text itself. Footnotes are those of Thomson, except for linguistic notes by the editor. Copyright 1954, by the Falcon's Wing Press.

According to the Foreword, the editor confined himself to changing Thomson's work only where the facts of the text required it, or where another translation was called for preferentially by the oldest manuscript tradition. The editor added that portion of the Greek version of the Book of Esther (from 10:4) which did not appear in the Thomson text.

1954 The New Covenant . . . Revised Standard Version. American Bible Society . . . : New York 2541

RSV; see 1946 NT, No 2453. Wide margin Testament similar in format to the ASV NT of 1940 (No 2388). Type set from the 1952 edition (No 2517) but adjusted so that each column ends with a complete sentence or phrase.

In 1951 the constitution of the ABS was changed to permit distribution of the 1946 RSV NT. However, arrangements with Thomas Nelson and Sons and the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. would permit the publication of a complete NT only in a bi-lingual form, for missionary purposes. The above edition, prepared especially for students, was an exception.

This is the Kleist-Lilly Version, a translation from the 1943 Bover Greek text into modern popular English. James A. Kleist, S.J. (1873–1949) was born in Germany. He became Professor of Classical languages at St. Louis University in 1928, and for many years edited the Classical Bulletin. He was the author of a Greek grammar and made a translation of the Apostolic Fathers. Father Kleist translated The Memoirs of St. Peter, or the Gospel according to St. Mark, translated into English sense-lines . . . (Bruce Publishing Co., Milwaukee, 1932; xvi, 216 p; 22 cm). Another edition was published in 1936 (xxii, 266 p). Joseph L. Lilly, C.M. (1893–1952) was Assistant Professor of NT Exegesis at the Catholic University of America and served on the editorial boards of the NT Revision Committee (Confraternity) and of the Catholic Biblical Quarterly. The work of these two men was brought together by the late Joseph Husslein, S.J., of St. Louis University. Father Kleist died before he had completed the notes to the Four Gospels; they were largely composed by the Rev. Henry Willmering, S.J. Father Lilly had completed the notes for his division at the time of his death.

The Psalms in Rhythmic Prose, translated by Father Kleist and Thomas James Lynam, S.J. (1887–), was published in 1954 by the Bruce Publishing Company (xii, 236 p; 22 cm). This is based on the 1945 Latin text of the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome.

The Good News, The New Testament with over 500 illustrations and maps appears as cover title. Reproductions in color of photographs of River Jordan and Sea of Galilee on front cover, and of Athens, Corinth, Rome, and Island of Patmos on back cover. Each of the portions is available separately and has its own title:

The Light of the World: Matthew.
Sowing the Seed: Mark.
The Good News: Luke.
He gave His Only Son: John.
Into All the World: Acts.
More than Conquerors: Romans-Corinthians.
A Cloud of Witnesses: Galatians-Hebrews.
Out of Death into Life: James-Revelation.

Matthew, Mark, and John are RSV and were first printed in 1953; Rom-Cor and Jas-Rev are also RSV and were first printed in 1955. Luke, Acts, and Gal-Heb are in the AV and were first printed in 1950, 1951, and 1955 respectively. An Index of Pictures was added to a second printing late in 1955, and a key letter identifying each portion was added to the page number.

The pictures were carefully selected by the Rev. Gilbert Darlington, D.D., for many years Treasurer of the ABS and in charge of its Publication Department, to show as much as possible of the life and atmosphere of the places and things mentioned in the NT. The captions and historical introductions were checked with Dr. F. W. Albright and other scholars. The text is printed without chapter or verse numbers except for identification at the end of the section headings.

A similar edition has been printed in German, and several of the sections have appeared in Arabic, Chinese, Danish, Dutch, French, Modern Greek, Japanese, Korean, Indonesian, Norwegian, Portuguese, Spanish, and Swahili.

1955 The New Testament for English Readers . . . marginal corrections of readings and renderings; Marginal References; and a critical and Explanatory commentary. By Henry Alford . . . Moody Press: Chicago 2555

1 vol: (viii) (1952) 23 cm NNAB

This is the first American edition of Alford's NT, first published in London in 1863. Henry Alford (1810–71) was an English churchman and writer, Dean of Canterbury, and one of the original members of the ERV NT committee. His edition of the Greek NT was well-known and from that grew the above. He also prepared a revised English NT (1869). In the cited NT, in the Gospels and Acts passages translated by Dean Alford are printed in italics in the notes; but in the remainder of the NT the AV appears in italics, separated from the new translation by a rule. A publisher's note states that the long Introduction, referred to in the notes, is omitted from this edition.

Vol I (1956) The Gospels, Vol II (1958) Acts through Ephesians, and Vol III (1959) Philippians through Revelation. Preliminary matter in Vol I includes The Advantages of an Expanded Translation (p 11–24), The Supreme Importance of the Doctrine of Verbal Inspiration, in the Translation of the Greek New Testament (p 25–30), and A Personal Word to the Reader (p 31–37). A Personal Word also precedes text in Vol II (1 p) and in Vol III (2 p). Vols II and III each contain Definitions of Terms and a Bibliography at the end. Text is printed in paragraph form, single column, with introductions to each Book. Verse numbers appear only at beginning of paragraphs. The added words are not indicated by differences in type, but through them the translator seeks "to bring out the richness, force, and clarity of the Greek text." He also tries to follow the Greek word order and to reflect other peculiarities of Greek grammar, etc., still using modern English.

ASV; see 1901, No 2124. Revisers' Prefaces, Key to Pronunciation, Order of Books, and Consecutive Daily Bible Reading by J. W. Baer precede text. At end are Bible Dictionary (copyright 1900) and Concordance (combined for AV and ASV). Set in Onyx type, with center references and alternative readings and renderings at foot of page. Title appears at outer corner and chapter and verse index at head of each column. Copyright 1901 and 1929.

Although cited copy was actually published in 1957, this format was probably printed before 1925 as it appears in Nelson's catalog for that year.
